BEAT NEW DEAL, SAVE U.S., GREEN EXHORTS G.O.P.

Outlines National Party Policies

BY ROBERT HOWARD

Gov. Green called upon the Republican party yesterday to return to the "straight thinking and plain speaking" necessary to save America from the chaotic failures of the Truman New Deal.

Republican Presidents again can be elected and America can be returned to prosperity and sound progress, the governor said in his welcoming speech as the party's national committee opened a two day session in the Stevens hotel.

The governor was introduced by National Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. as "one of the greatest Republicans in the country." Green was interrupted frequently by applause and was given a standing ovation when he finished.

Sound Program Demanded

He said Republican failures have been caused by weak compromises designed to ape New Dealism. He called for the national committee to adopt and to stick to "a sound declaration of principles" at the start of the 1946 campaign.

"Let us Republicans be true to ourselves and our honest beliefs," Gov. Green said. "I predict that, if we do that, we shall gain 10 votes for every one we lose."

Stressing his constructive program, the Illinois leader also warned that America's world position is being wrecked, in the aftermath of victory, by ineptness of President Truman's administration.

Four Freedoms Violated

Gov. Green said:

"We propose a complete about face from the weak and vacillating Truman New Deal diplomacy, which has suffered the most humiliating defeat in American history.

"With the greatest military force in the world, it has lost every skirmish on the diplomatic front. The four freedoms and the Atlantic Charter have not only been disregarded, but specifically violated.

"American diplomacy under Truman, instead of standing as a fortress for the freedom of peoples and the integrity of national existence of small nations, has become the abject servant of British, French, and communist imperialism.

Hybrid Administration Flayed

"Truman-Democratic-New Deal diplomacy is losing the peace six months after American armies and navies won the war. Power politics again rules the world, and the Truman administration has stood helplessly by. We warn that appeasement now can be as dangerous as at Munich, especially when it means compromise with the conscience of America."

Courage must be substituted for compromises at home and abroad, he continued, adding:

"We know that our country is today by long odds the strongest of all nations, more than a match for any combination that might be brought against us, but we have too often given lip service to a foreign policy founded upon fear.

People Tired of Double Talk

"We have been told that we must not raise our voice against the rape of Java by the British and Dutch for fear of offending some voters, and we have been told we must not even protest against the shameful betrayal of Poland for fear of offending Russia's following over here.

"We say we don't want commu-

Police Seize Two, Hunt 3; Find Arsenal

Detectives on the trail of a band of seven gunmen accused of having held up a number of Chicago gambling syndicate handbooks in recent months last night shot two ex-convicts, one of them fatally, in a gun battle outside a garage in the rear of 2216 Kimball av.

The ex-convicts, Sgt. John Hanrahan said, were plotting a $50,000 pay roll robbery at Mars, Inc., candy manufacturers at 2019 N. Oak Park av., and encountered four squads when they came to pick up a stolen car reserved for the holdup.

The dead bandit was Christ Perres, 27, of Joliet. His companion, Lawrence [Tiny] Mazzanars, 34, of 3402 Lyndale st., was shot in the left shoulder. He was taken to Bridewell hospital.

Nine Policemen Unscathed

Heroes of the battle include Sgt. Frank Pape, Detectives John D. Moss, and Rudolph Friedl, all winners of The Tribune hero award. They and six other detectives, including Sergeants Ben Smith and Earl Cook, emerged unscathed in an exchange of bullets, one of which penetrated the home of Eugene Barnes at 2216 Kimball av.

A jittery witness to the battle was Renoro Lolli, 39, of 6311 Eggleston av., an ex-convict, who had informed police after his arrest at 1:30 p. m., that he, Tiny, and Perres had planned to rob a currency exchange truck stationed outside the Mars plant at 5:30 p. m.

Handcuffed to Detective Moss, Lolli was taken to Mazzanars' home to point out the garage in which Lolli and other members of the gang had stored a Cadillac automobile stolen Nov. 29. After the garage was located, Lolli and Moss retired to a squad car parked in Lyndale st.

Wait for Mazzanars

Scattered thruout the neighborhood, detectives waited for Mazzanars to return to his home. About 10 p. m. Mazzanars drove up in an automobile, also believed to have been stolen, and he and Perres got out. They strode toward Mazzanars' home, then changed their plans and headed toward the garage.

Sgt. Pape, accompanied by Dan Byrnes and Patrick Daly, sighted the pair and moved south on foot in Kimball av., to head them off at the garage. Thru a gangway, Sgt. Pape said he observed them about to enter the garage.

Daly flashed a light on the two men, then Pape called out, "Put up your hands! Police!"

One or both of the men, police said, fired in the direction of the light. As they fled north toward Lyndale st. Pape and his squad raced to the alley thru a lot and fired a volley at them.

Mazzanars Runs, Then Falls

In Lyndale st. Moss, still handcuffed to Lolli, Friedl, and Sgt. Smith, fought the remainder of the battle, firing several shots from Smith's car. Perres dropped on the north side of the street, while Mazzanars ran half a block before he fell.

One .45 caliber pistol was found in the alley, another revolver was found in Mazzanars' home, and a pistol and a rifle were found in the car in the garage. Two bullets from the pistol shattered the windshield of Pape's car, parked in Lyndale st.

When Lolli was seized at Madison and Paulina sts. he was walking with James J. Kelly, 37, of 2813 Warren blvd., another ex-convict, and reputed "fixer" for the gang. Kelly was rearrested later.

A city-wide search was in progress for the three other accused members of the band. They have been tentatively identified as Big Bob, and the Summers brothers, all ex-convicts, who are said to have participated in several or all of the handbook robberies.

Confesses Holdup in Loop

An arsenal of the gang was found in Lolli's room at the Eggleston av. flat. It included a submachinegun, a sawed-off shotgun, three .38 caliber revolvers, and three .32 caliber automatic pistols—all well oiled, cleaned, and loaded. A store of ammunition and nylon stocking masks also were found.

Lolli admitted that he accompanied other members of the gang on two of the handbook robberies. One of these was committed Nov. 28 in Dave Russell's handbook on the second floor at 226 N. Clark st.

Altho estimates of the loot ranged from $10,000 to $30,000, Lolli said he and three other gunmen got only $4,700, which they carried away in

Rector Seizes Church Thief, Sets Him Free

Dr. Leland H. Danforth, rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth, surprised a burglar in the sacristy of the church yesterday and made him prisoner after a brief struggle.

The captive was Edwin H. Mischau, 51, 8005 Exchange av., Chicago, an electrician and until recently the co-owner of a refrigeration service, who said he had stopped in Kenilworth on his way back from a job seeking automobile trip to Milwaukee.

Rector Senses Something Wrong

Mischau admitted jimmying a window of the organ room of the church and using a screw driver to pry open cabinets in the sacristy, a room off the auditorium where sacred vessels and vestments are kept. He was about to take a sip from a sacramental wine cruet when Dr. Danforth entered the room.

Dr. Danforth, who had come from the adjoining rectory at 333 Warwick rd. because of a feeling that something was amiss, challenged the intruder. Mischau replied that he was a light company inspector and began fumbling with the switch at the end of a drop cord. He had forgotten his credentials, he added.

Rector Makes a Tackle

The rector, noting the "inspector's" unshaven face and shabby clothing, grabbed Mischau, who tried to break away. Dr. Danforth, who was a tackle on the Kenyon college football team in his student days, gripped Mischau firmly by both arms and marched him to the rectory.

Mischau pleaded that his wife was seriously ill, but admitted having "a criminal record." That settled it for Dr. Danforth, who turned him over to Police Chief Walter C. Yackel.

Released at Rector's Request

Mischau was held for several hours. Then Yackel conferred with Dr. Danforth. Mischau's "criminal record," it had developed, was an unsuccessful attempt, 36 years ago, when he was 15, to cash a bad check that other lads had made out. Mischau's story of his wife's illness was correct. The suspicion that a $5 roll of dimes, a handful of pennies, and a stapling machine found on Mischau had been stolen could not be confirmed.

"Chief Yackel is releasing Mischau on my recommendation," Dr. Danforth announced. "His record was not as bad as we first thought and I feel that he acted as he did under a great mental strain and should be given another chance."

'DOLLIE' AND 3 PUPS LEAD ANIMAL LEAGUE 'OUT OF THE WOODS'

Last Oct. 23, Dollie, a brown toy shepherd dog which for two months had haunted Ryan woods at 87th st. and Western av., lost her wild freedom. Neighbors sought the aid of the Animal Welfare league, 6224 Wabash av. The league sent Allen Glisch to the grove.

Glisch succeeded in drawing close enough to the dog to slip a noose over her head. Whining, Dollie pulled the league agent several hundred feet to a pile of brush. In a leaf lined nest she had fashioned were her three week-old puppies, their eyes still unopened.

The next day a story of the rescue of Dollie and her puppies was published in THE TRIBUNE, a copy of which was seen by Mrs. Marguerite Doe Ravenscroft, a Californian and honorary president of the welfare league. Yesterday the league received $15,000 from Mrs. Ravenscroft to help build an animal home and shelter on Chicago's north side.

Dollie was grateful for giving her and her puppies a home. Certainly the league yesterday was grateful to Dollie.

THUMBS RIDE TO HER WEDDING IN ZHUKOV'S AUTO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 7—Helen Matthews, an American Red Cross girl, thumbed a ride in Marshal Zhukov's limousine to hitch-hike to her wedding this afternoon when a jeep broke down and threatened to leave the bridegroom, Capt. William Nimmo, and the assembled party waiting at the church.

Miss Matthews of New York City, recently voted the prettiest girl in Berlin by United States district command headquarters, and her maid of honor, Elizabeth Barlow of Buckhannon, W. Va., started for the chapel, but the German chauffeur got the gears of the jeep jammed and was unable to proceed. Helen failed to flag down civilian trucks but a car with the pennon of a Red army marshal fluttering from the radiator cap appeared and she stepped into the middle of the street. Astonished Russian soldiers halted, then took Helen and Elizabeth to the district headquarters, where the bridegroom was nervously waiting, and the ceremony proceeded.

Wife Chases Mate with Car; Hits, Kills Him

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Geneva Humphrey, 47, was charged today by Assistant Prosecutor Jasper G. Kirchner with chasing her husband with an automobile, cornering him in a blind alley, and crushing him to death against a garbage pile in front of a door. She was held on a murder charge.

Kirchner gave this account of the death of Hugh Edwin Humphrey, 43, chauffeur-butler to erstwhile Suffragist Carrie Chapman Catt, and the arrest of his wife, maid in Mrs. Catt's New Rochelle, N. Y., home:

The chase early today in near-by Singac followed a quarrel between the couple that had started shortly after midnight in a taproom over another woman with whom Mrs. Humphrey said her husband had been "running around."

Join Another Couple

The Humphreys, who until 10 days ago had worked in a war plant in Clifton, N. J., left New Rochelle last night for Passaic county to see about leasing their former Mountain View residence to Mr. and Mrs. John Lombardo of Wayne township.

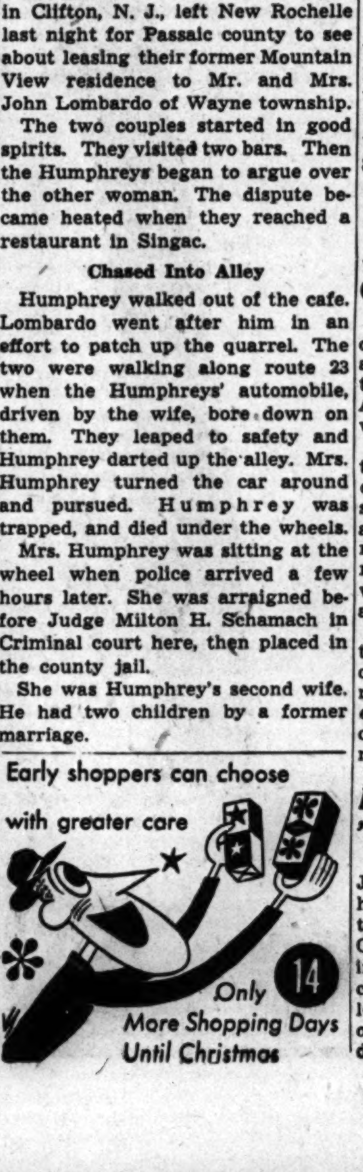
The two couples started in good spirits. They visited two bars. Then the Humphreys began to argue over the other woman. The dispute became heated when they reached a restaurant in Singac.

Chased Into Alley

Humphrey walked out of the cafe. Lombardo went after him in an effort to patch up the quarrel. The two were walking along route 23 when the Humphreys' automobile, driven by the wife, bore down on them. They leaped to safety and Humphrey darted up the alley. Mrs. Humphrey turned the car around and pursued. Humphrey was trapped, and died under the wheels.

Mrs. Humphrey was sitting at the wheel when police arrived a few hours later. She was arraigned before Judge Milton H. Schamach in Criminal court here, then placed in the county jail.

She was Humphrey's second wife. He had two children by a former marriage.



CANADA SWINGS TO EUROPE FOR WORLD CAPITAL

Poland, Greece Also Vote for It

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 7—Doubt that the United States will be chosen as the site for the headquarters of the united nations became apparent today when Canada, Poland, and Greece swung their support to Europe.

The preparatory commission delegates were thrown into a flurry of excitement by the announcements, as a two-thirds majority is necessary to decide the location of the permanent world capital. Debate on the subject is expected to continue for several days, however.

Adlai Stevenson of Bloomington, Ill., acting American delegate, didn't help Chicago's chances to win the honor when he read a formal statement saying the United States is not seeking the headquarters.

"Act in Best Interests"

"My government wishes the members of the united nations to come to their decision, whatever it may be, free from any influence or pressure and after the different points of view have been fully and fairly presented," said Stevenson. "If they decide to confirm the recommendations of the executive committee to come to the United States we want them to make that decision solely in the best interests of the united nations organization and for no other reason. My government has not sought and is not seeking the headquarters."

Canadian Delegate Leolyn Wilgress said his support was thrown to Europe because most of the problems the united nations organization will have to solve are there.

In support of a United States site, Filipino Delegate Pedro Lopez said the "seat of the united nations must be in the United States to keep the United States in the united nations."

Cites Isolation Danger

"The danger of the United States returning to isolationism," he asserted, "is as great today as it ever was in the '20s."

Today's London Evening News "Talk of the Day" column gossiped that "the odds still appear to be in favor of Chicago."

All 51 united nations are represented on the committee, which will recommend a site to the first meeting of the general assembly of the new world order here in January.

In an earlier meeting of the trusteeship committee Lopez pleaded also for provisions for elections every three years in territories taken over as trusteeships. This was opposed by Great Britain and South Africa.

MILLIONS IN U. S. AIR EQUIPMENT GIVEN AUSTRALIA

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 7—Millions of dollars worth of United States army air force communications installations are being transferred to the Australian air force as a gift along with five air fields in New Guinea.

The army's "roll-up" program in the Southwest Pacific area is proceeding swiftly. Many bases, once swarming with thousands of GI's and scores of American planes, are now devoid of Yanks. Australia is receiving a ready-made air field network ready for use for defense or air line purposes.

Physical facilities transferred to the R. A. A. F. include homing beacons, radio ranges, radar beacons, radio markers, direction finding equipment, long-range radar beacons, and instrument landing equipment.

Hasn't Seen Wife Since '24, Finally Gets a Divorce

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7 (AP)—It took John P. Gasson 21 years to give up hope his wife "might try to get in touch with me again." That was Gasson's explanation for his delay in filing for divorce. The decree became final today. He said his wife left him 21 years ago after one year of married life, and since 1930 he didn't even know where she lived.

Urges Britain to Free Poles of Red Grip

BY E. R. NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 7—A demand that the British government intervene to end Russia's stranglehold on Poland was sounded by Adm. E. A. Taylor [Conservative] in the house of commons today. He charged that Polish independence is as far off as ever and that Poland lacks freedom of speech, press, and radio.

The provisional government, Taylor said, is completely under Russian control and is not supported by the majority of the Polish people. He urged that Russian troops and secret police, except those needed to guard communication lines, be withdrawn.

Taylor asserted the entire Polish air force is Russian, the Polish army is largely officered by Russians, the Polish navy has Russian officers, and the Russians control both of Poland's principal ports. He acknowledged that the Russians took over control at the invitation of the provisional government.

Rape and Looting Charged

"An enormous number of Polish women have been raped," Taylor declared. He said mass arrests of Poles are taking place, with deportations to Russia or to concentration camps, which he described as "holes in the ground six feet deep and 60 yards square, covered with barbed wire." Such camps, he declared, accommodate 50 men without sanitary arrangements or medical attention. Twice a day the inmates are given food and water.

Taylor charged that Poland is being strangled by systematic spoliation. Factories have been stripped and plants sent to Russia, he said, and the textile industry of Poland is being exploited for the benefit of Russian troops while the Polish people are in rags. In addition, he said, large numbers of Polish cattle have been exported to Russia and private houses looted.

Don't Want to Return

Describing the Russian interpretation of democracy and freedom as "100 per cent different from ours," Maj. T. V. Beamish [Conservative] pointed out that at present there are 236,000 Polish men and women in the allied forces of whom anly 37,000 have asked to return to Poland.

Hector McNeil, undersecretary in the foreign office, in reply to Taylor's charges said that Foreign Commissar Molotov had assured the British ambassador to Moscow that withdrawal of Russian troops already has been effected. McNeil declared the British government accepted Molotov's statement but would "continue to conduct normal observation concerning disposition of these troops."

Admits Press "Control"

McNeil also protested that it was untruthful and harmful to say that there was an iron curtain screening Poland or that reporting facilities were unobtainable.

There is "some sort of control" over the press, he admitted, but no evidence of any censorship by the Russians. He agreed that concentration camps existed and that Russian troops had misbehaved.

FOREIGN CHIEFS ALSO TO TACKLE WORLD ISSUES

Byrnes Plans to Fly to Red Capital

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The foreign secretaries of the United States, Britain, and Russia will meet in Moscow Dec. 15, the state department announced tonight, to tackle an array of critical international issues including control of atomic energy.

Secretary of State Byrnes is planning to fly to the Russian capital, probably leaving Washington, D. C., early next week.

It is considered improbable that he will be home by Christmas.

This will be the first meeting of Byrnes, Foreign Minister Bevin of Britain, and Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia since the breakdown of the London council of foreign ministers in September. The plan for the meeting was suggested by Byrnes on Nov. 24.

Text of Statement

The official statement issued by the state department said: "A meeting of the foreign secretaries of Great Britain, the soviet union and the United States has been arranged to take place in Moscow Dec. 15. This meeting has been called in accordance with the decision taken at the Yalta conference providing for quarterly conferences of the three foreign secretaries.

"The meeting will provide an opportunity to the British, American, and soviet governments for informal and exploratory discussions on a number of matters of current concern to the three countries and also for an exchange of views on the subject of the control of atomic energy."

Problems Confronting Nations

Here are some of the main problems confronting the governments of the three nations:

1. The whole machinery of European peace making has stalled as a result of the breakdown of the council at London in September and there has been no final agreement on a compromise proposed by Byrnes that a general European peace conference should be held by the end of this year.

2. The refusal of the United States and Britain to recognize the governments of Romania and Bulgaria remains a touchy point.

3. The United States and Russia particularly remain without agreement over allied control machinery for Japan.

Iran Source of Conflict

4. Another source of conflict among the powers is Iran, where Russian and British troops remain in occupation.

5. At the moment the three nations are working together reasonably well in China, in the opinion of diplomatic officials here, but there is constant apprehension that there may be future trouble which agreement among the powers now could avoid.

FBI MAKES SURE ATOM MEETING IS KEPT SECRET

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The senate atomic bomb committee, organized to study all atomic control legislation, held a secret session today and its members couldn't have had more privacy if they'd held it in the double eagle suite of the gold vault at Fort Knox, Ky.

Before the session, held in the finance committee room of the senate office building, three FBI men cased the meeting place, pulled out every drawer, looked behind the window drapes, and even looked under the tables. Then they inspected rooms above and below the hearing chamber. Five capitol policemen were posted at various entrances.

Then the FBI admitted the committee, together with War Secretary Patterson and Gen. Groves, the army's atom boss. Three hours later the committeemen began drifting out. One had tried drifting ahead of time and found the doors locked.

BYRNES GRILLED ON POLICY PLOT; DEFENDS 3 AIDS

Charge Not Answered, Hurley Asserts

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—State Secretary Byrnes today personally defended the state department employes whom Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley accuses of sabotaging American foreign policy for the benefit of the armed Chinese Communists.

Administration leaders tugged at the rug beneath Hurley's feet at another of the senate foreign relations committee's unparalleled hearings on the accusations that are rocking the state department.

Charges "Not Answered"

But when Byrnes had finished parrying questions that struck at the very highest officials of the government, Gen. Hurley told reporters in a ringing voice:

"My charge was that state department career men tried to arm the Communists with lend-lease weapons, which would have destroyed the Chinese government I was sent to China to preserve. Mr. Byrnes did not answer that charge."

Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] hammered at Byrnes regarding reports that government agents had intercepted messages in which the career men told the Communists that Hurley, while special ambassador to China, was not the voice of the American government.

Theft Inquiry Cited

Bridges demanded to know if investigation of John S. Service had not been halted by a telephone call from "very high up" when Service was being investigated in connection with the theft and illegal use of secret government reports while the war was still in progress.

But Byrnes gave no evidence in confirmation.

Recalling that George Atcheson Jr. of Hurley's embassy staff had advised Washington to arm the Communists with lend-lease weapons nine days after Hurley left China, Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] demanded to know how Byrnes would regard such undermining by a subordinate.

But Byrnes defended his men on the ground that he wants them to report changing conditions.

Hammers at Byrnes

Some of Vandenberg's questions were:

"Wouldn't you feel strange if nine days after you left for Potsdam, the undersecretary told the President you were all wrong? When you went to the London conference, you left Assistant Secretary Dunn in charge. If you returned nine days later to find Mr. Dunn had written a letter suggesting reversal of everything you had done, you would not feel very good about Mr. Dunn, would you?"

Vandenberg also asked Byrnes about Hurley's charges yesterday that State Undersecretary Acheson [not to be confused with George Atcheson Jr.] had "dynamited" Byrnes' policy in Iran. Byrnes replied that yesterday was the first he had heard of the dynamiting.

Denies Policy Destroyed

[President Truman today denied at his press conference that the American policy in Iran has been destroyed.]

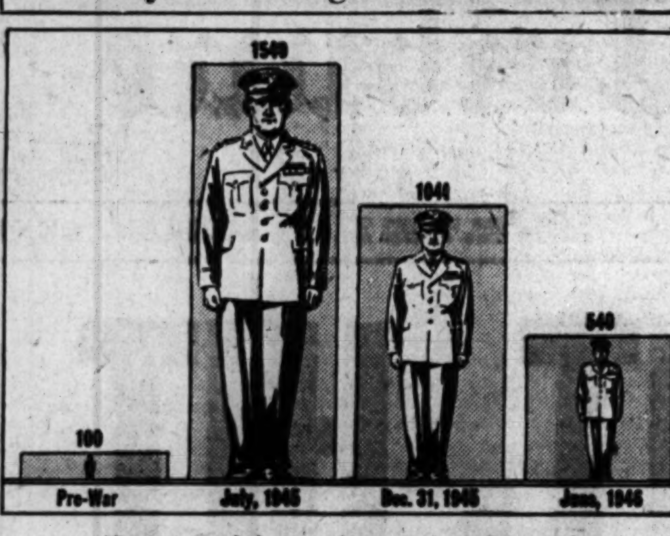
Chairman Connally [D., Tex.], an administration supporter, repeatedly emphasized points unfavorable to Hurley with his questions and gave special attention to Byrnes' assertion that Byrnes had no evidence that state department career men had communicated directly with the Chinese Communists.

Hurley has accused underlings of telling the Communists the United States would not keep its promises made to them by Hurley.

"Did you ever hear of any intercepted messages between Service and Atcheson and the Communists?" asked Bridges.

Byrnes insisted he had not.

Army Plans Big Cut in Generals



How army plans to reduce number of generals.

Dropping 500 Now

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The army will have approximately 500 fewer generals at the end of this month than it had at its peak strength of 1,540 last July.

The war department announced this today in connection with a further detailing of plans reported last September for a cut in the general officer roster thru retirements and reduction of war time rank.

With the roster reduced to 1,040 by the end of the month, the army plans a continued cut-back which will place the total of generals at 540 next June when the size of the army will be reduced to 1,630,000. This will compare with about 100 general officers on duty prior to Pearl Harbor.

The army said that under present plans further reduction in the number of generals will be made at the rate of about 100 in each of the first four months of 1946 and 50 each in May and in June.

REPORTS ARMY DUMPS GOODS IN SEA; ASKS PROBE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—Rep. Latham [R., N. Y.] said today he had learned from a "thoroly reliable source" that vast quantities of surplus war property are being "wantonly destroyed" in the southwest Pacific.

Calling on the house for a "vigorous investigation, so that those at fault may be punished," Latham, a former navy lieutenant, said information had reached him that the supplies had been "dumped in the sea or burned at Noumea, New Caledonia."

Latham's charges paralleled allegations which have appeared in an Australian newspaper.

The war department tonight issued a statement from the Australian purchasing committee in New Guinea denying reports that large stocks of American army supplies were being destroyed in the Finschhafen area of New Guinea.

MARINE GENERAL OPPOSES MERGER OF THE SERVICES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, one of the top marine corps leaders in the Pacific, protested today that the war department proposal for a merger of the military services was based on the lessons learned in World War I.

"Surely some lessons must have been learned from the present war; surely some additional principles and ideas should be given recognition in any blueprint that would elevate a single department to a national and all-embracing level," he told the senate military affairs committee.

Geiger, a veteran of Guadalcanal, Bougainville, and Okinawa and now commander of the fleet marine force, appeared in opposition to the army plan to establish a single defense agency—with ground, air and sea forces co-equal.

PAULEY, BIG OIL MAN, IS SLATED FOR CABINET JOB

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—Edwin W. Pauley, President Truman's personal representative on reparations, is expected to get a cabinet post, probably navy secretary or interior secretary, when he completes his study of what the axis nations can pay for war damages.

The multi-millionaire oil operator, who holds the rank of ambassador, has recommended that Japan be stripped of all assets abroad. He also proposes virtually all steel, chemical, and ship building be suspended and that Japan's tool machine and electric power industries be cut in half.

These recommendations are en route to President Truman from Tokyo, where the former treasurer of the Democratic national committee now is. Pauley said his program will guard against any possibility of Japan waging war again and that the stripping of assets will help to reimburse nations Japan victimized.

Same Plan for Germany

Pauley, who stands high in Presidential favor as a hard trader, made similar recommendations on Germany after serving on the German reparations committee in Moscow. He suggested Germany be stripped of her industry and loot. German reparations will come largely in labor and natural resources, he said.

Pauley, who is 42, is a native of Indiana. For some years he has made his home in Beverley Hills, Cal., in which state he has extensive financial interests in tideland wells.

To protect these interests, which are being eyed by the interior department at the expressed command of Interior Secretary Ickes, Pauley, then with the Democratic committee, went personally to President Roosevelt in an effort to stave off the filing of a test suit by the department of justice claiming federal rights to the billions of dollars of oil in these wells.

Federal Control Sought

The suit, instigated by Ickes, is pending in the Supreme court. The suit would take control of the wells from the state and vest it in the federal government. The theory of the suit, according to Ickes, is the state would waste the petroleum where the government and his interior department would conserve them.

Pauley was special representative of the governor of California on the natural resources commission in 1939 and on the interstate oil and compact commission in 1940. The following year he was special United States representative to act as liaison with Great Britain on the use of oil tankers, special United States representative in formulating the office of the coördinator of the petroleum industry in 1941, and special United States representative on petroleum supplies for Britain and Russia, and for a joint report with Britain on enemy petroleum supplies.

Pauley is president of the Petrol corporation of Los Angeles, the Fortuna Petroleum corporation, and the Golconda Petroleum corporation. He was president of the Independent Petroleum association, 1934-'36. He is a director of banks and corporations.

Friends say Pauley would sever all oil connections if he were proposed as interior secretary or navy secretary. It is acknowledged these connections would make senate confirmation for either post a bit on the stormy side.

Victor Mature and June Haver.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 7 (AP).—Starlet June Haver is the latest heartthrob of Victor Mature—once described as a "beautiful hunk of man"—but June says there's no engagement and none in prospect for the immediate future. "I've no time for love," she remarked. Vic said, "She's wonderful."

Six weeks out of the Coast Guard, Mature says he's still getting adjusted. "Marriage," he observed, "is a full-time civilian job." He picked June's picture out of a movie magazine as a pin-up gal at sea, but did not meet her until his return to 20th Century Fox, where she also works.

BYRNES RENEWS U. S. PLEDGE TO KEEP IRAN FREE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes reaffirmed today the pledge made by the United States at Tehran to maintain the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iran.

In a telegram to Abolghassem Nadjm, foreign minister, who had recalled the promise made by the Big Three when they conferred in the Iranian capital in December of 1943, Byrnes said:

"I welcome this opportunity of expressing again the recognition by the government of the United States of the assistance rendered by Iran in the recent victory over our common enemy and assuring you that the interest of the government of the United States in the maintenance of the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Iran as set forth in that declaration has not changed in any respect."

GETS NOTHING FOR $4,500, BUT 'HE'S SATISFIED'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—An Indiana manufacturer who said he paid $4,500 to Engineers Group, Inc., and got neither contracts nor his money back, told the federal court today he feels he got his "money's worth."

"They tried hard; I never complained," H. Donald Forse, president of the Forse corporation, Anderson, Ind., asserted at the mail fraud trial of Rep. Curley [D., Mass.], Boston's mayor elect, and four others.

The other defendants are James G. Fuller, now serving a five year federal penitentiary term on conviction of sending fraudulent securities thru the mails; Donald Wakefield Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington, D. C.; James Barton Underwood, formerly of Washington, and Bert Hall, Dallas, Tex., and Tulsa, Okla.

They are charged with falsely representing themselves as experienced and competent consulting engineers with special facilities for obtaining contracts.

U. S. DISCLOSES ANTI-TRUST SUIT THREAT TO G. M.

Company and CIO Recess Bargaining Session

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 7 (AP)—A government investigation of General Motors corporation under anti-trust laws was disclosed today while the corporation and the CIO United Auto Workers wrangled in their wage dispute.

The department of justice in Washington, D. C., confirmed a union announcement that it was inquiring into operations of the corporation, which has been crippled for 17 days by a strike. The union had asked such an inquiry.

Representatives of the corporation and the union meanwhile recessed a bargaining session until Monday, reporting little progress in the attempt to settle the UAWs demand for a 30 per cent wage increase without price increases.

Will Give More and More

General Motors officials said there would be no company statement on today's negotiating session, but Walter Reuther, UAW vice president, told a press conference:

"The 13½ cent an hour offer is only the beginning. The corporation will give more and more and more and finally will wrap it up and we'll all go back to work."

He referred to GMs offer yesterday to reinstate the 13½ cent increase, which the UAW rejected shortly before the strike was called at GM plants in 20 states.

As today's bargaining session was going on, the office of President R. J. Thomas of the union announced that Atty. Gen. Clark was investigating General Motors with a view of determining whether G. M. was in violation of anti-trust laws.

Probing Several Cases

Clark declined comment, but the justice department said the attorney general had sent this telegram to Thomas: "The department has been investigating several anti-trust cases of the type you mention, among which is General Motors. Glad to receive any additional information."

The auto union had asked the investigation to determine if General Motors held a "monopoly" in view of its manufacture of auto parts for competing car manufacturers. The company had proposed reopening of its parts plants during the strike for the benefit of other manufacturers.

A General Motors spokesman said there would be no comment from the corporation regarding the investigation.

In requesting an inquiry last week, Thomas said General Motors, thru its request for continued parts operations, had shown "strong corroboratory evidence" for a union contention that G. M. held a "monopoly position" in the auto industry.

"Ability to Pay"

Reuther said that in the bargaining session today the corporation refused to discuss wages on "ability to pay" even should the union abandon its demand that G. M. open its books in the discussion or if car prices were kept out of the parleys.

Asserting that was the "farthest the union has gone" in the negotiations, Reuther said, however, that the union was not abandoning its original position.

In Washington, D. C., President Truman said the fact finding board for the strike was not quite ready to be announced, but would be soon.

Meanwhile the CIO's United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers today rejected a 13½ cent an hour pay increase offer from G. M. which would apply to 30,000 workers. The union has demanded an increase approximately 25 cents an hour. Its rejection of the offer was announced after an executive board meeting in New York.

TWO BOYS TRAP 8 FOOT SNAKE ON NORTH SIDE

Police had a number of possible explanations for the presence yesterday of an eight foot bull snake in an alley at the rear of Wendell st., between Franklin and Wells sts., where it was trapped by two Negro boys. They were, [1] that the reptile had escaped from some snake charmer who is hibernating in a north side apartment; [2] that it rode into the city on a truck, possibly one carrying Christmas trees, or [3] that it had lived in the vicinity all the time but kept out of sight. Policemen destroyed it.

a laundry bag. One of his pals took a diamond ring from one of the bettors, Lolli said.

Lolli also told Sgt. Hanrahan that he and four other gunmen participated in a robbery of a handbook at 118 Washington st., Waukegan, on Nov. 8. The bandits, after terrorizing 35 patrons, fled with about $10,000.

Kelly was released after he and Lolli were seized at 2 p. m. by Detective Emil Smickles and his squad. They explained that Kelly had been in custody on Nov. 13 and that he then convinced police he had no connection with the gang of handbook bandits being sought.

As soon as he was released, Kelly telephoned Atty. Louis Gould and asked him to petition Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of Criminal court for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Lolli. Gould immediately filed the petition, but Judge Ward deferred the hearing until Monday when police showed him the arsenal found in Lolli's room.

Kelly Seized Again at Flat

Kelly was seized again later when he walked into the Eggleston av. flat. He explained that he merely intended to notify Lolli's father and mother of their son's arrest. Detectives suspected, however, that he had called to remove the arsenal.

Lolli was sentenced to a 1 to 14 year term in Pontiac prison in 1925 for armed robbery. He was paroled in 1929 and was sentenced in June, 1933, for a 10 year term for larceny. He was released in December, 1943, and turned over to police of Janesville, Wis.

Kelly was sentenced to Pontiac prison for armed robbery in 1929 and was released in 1939. In 1941 he was committed to the Menard asylum and was released a year later.

LEARN CONGRESS MEMBERS CAN'T SIT IN LEAGUE

BY WILLIAM STRAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—Members of the house foreign affairs committee betrayed their pique today when they learned that senate amendments to pending legislation governing United States participation in the new league of nations would prevent members of congress from serving in the organization.

They asserted the house is duty bound to show members of the other chamber the error of its ways. Rep. Jonkman [R., Mich.] suggested that his colleagues might find it necessary to change the Constitution, since the founding fathers did not anticipate American participation in world organization when they wrote the nation's basic law.

The legislation, adopted by the senate Tuesday, would empower the President to send United States troops to war without consulting congress. Its critics assert this is in direct contravention of the constitutional warmaking powers of the legislative branch.

Can Apply Sanctions

Broad powers to apply economic sanctions against any other nation at the league's discretion also would be given to the President. This section states that the President, notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, can apply sanctions to the extent he deems necessary to make the decisions of the security council effective.

Under the warmaking clause of the bill, the President would be authorized to negotiate special agreements with the security council, subject to congressional approval, providing for the numbers and types of American fighting forces, which would be available to the security council for enforcement purposes.

Control of the troops would pass automatically to the President upon congressional approval of his agreement with the league council, it was explained. The consent of congress would be required before the nation would provide additional forces to meet any emergency.

Urges Speedy Action

Scant attention was paid to these sections of the bill by the house committee members who began hearings this morning. Chairman Bloom [D., N. Y.] had told the group that speedy consideration was necessary in order to have the measure passed in time for the league meeting in January.

However, it was a different matter when the members began consideration of the terms of the bill covering appointment of individuals to represent this country in the league and its various subsidiary organizations. Assistant State Secretary Acheson, the first and only witness, said the senate version would require senate approval for those appointed to serve as representatives in the league assembly and also allowed them a salary to be paid at the rate of $12,000 a year. The senate, it was noted, had inserted a somewhat similar proviso in connection with appointments of those serving on other of the league's agencies.

Smile Wryly

"It appears that the senate has acted to deprive the organization of the services of members of congress," asserted Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.] as his colleagues smiled wryly The Constitution prohibits a member of congress from serving in an office which was created during his term in the national legislature. Acheson also read from the federal statutes which bar government employes from holding two paying jobs at one time in the salary brackets above $2,500 a year.

As introduced, the measure did not provide for senate approval of the appointments or paying salaries to the appointees. It was the opinion of the legal minds on the committee that the posts thus did not constitute an office within the meaning of the Constitution or existing law and could have been filled by members of congress.

STRIKE HALTS BUS SERVICE IN EAST ST. LOUIS

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 7 [Special]—Thousands were without public transportation today as a result of a strike of 97 drivers of the Belleville-St. Louis Coach company.

State Rep. John L. Wellinghoff [D., Belleville], president of the company, said he met the grievance committee of local 1018 of the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employes last Friday regarding the firing of Jerry Davis, a driver, on charges Davis was discourteous to other employes, but that the company had had no notice of a strike. Drivers went on strike beginning at 4:30 a. m. today.

Alec W. Todd, president of the union, said the strike is unauthorized. He said that unionists voted 25 to 13 last night against arbitration and he had thought the matter was settled.

The company operates 65 buses and carries 25,000 passengers daily, including 12,000 between St. Louis and Belleville. It also serves Scott field and Sparta, Ill.

VET, GIVEN JOB AT LOWER PAY, SUES COMPANY

Charging violation of the selective service act, Harold G. Hardy, 5840 Lafayette av., Negro, a war veteran, filed suit in United States District court yesterday seeking back pay amounting to $125 from the Studebaker corporation, where he is employed. The suit charges Hardy was employed as a polisher at $1.25 an hour when he was inducted into the army in 1943 and that when he was discharged from service he returned to the employ of the company as a truck driver at $1.04 cents an hour. Atty. Joseph Snowden said the outcome of the suit would affect other workers who are war veterans.

CHARGES CANADA IS ASKED TO HELP U.S. CLUB BRITAIN

BY FRANK HUGHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 7 — J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit member of parliament, last night accused the United States of clubbing England to death and charged that Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley advocated "that Canada, eldest daughter in the British family, pick up the club and go and help the United States beat the motherland to death."

Blackmore spoke in commons in opposition to the indorsement of the Bretton Woods monetary agreement urged by the Mackenzie King government.

"I have noticed that since 1942 there have been appearing in the ordinary periodicals of the United States outlines of the terms of victory or conquest they were going to dictate to Great Britain," Blackmore said.

"A Helpless Foe"

"One would think that the people who caused the war, who attacked the other nations, was Britain. The terms they were going to dictate to her were terrible. Here we have one of them—Bretton Woods. This is one of the terms dictated by a conquering nation upon a helpless, conquered foe — Britain. Britain, which as we all know stood and defended Americans, is to be crucified by a callous administration not knowing what it does. . .

"Think of a noble nation like Britain clubbed into a position which she knows herself means her utter economic destruction. Then to have the minister of finance of the elder dominion in the empire advocate in this house that Canada, eldest daughter in the British family, pick up the club and go and help the United States beat the motherland to death. . ."

Blackmore said that the United States persistently refused to accept goods in repayment of the British debt after World War I.

Denies Debts Are Dishonored

"And the United States was not even honest enough to tell her own people what the situation was," he said. "She led her people, almost the whole rank and file of them, to believe that Britain had dishonored her debts when, as a matter of fact the United States had dishonored Britain's debts by putting up tariff barriers which prevented Britain's goods from entering the United States."

He defended the sterling bloc which Britain uses in world trade as being "there to protect a number of these debtor nations. And one of the fears we need to have about Bretton Woods is that it is designed to destroy the sterling bloc."

Debate on the Bretton Woods bill continued today in commons when the Progressive-Conservatives joined in the fight against the measure.

Clark, international president of the union, said yesterday. Further meetings will be held with other meat packers next week. Meetings with Armour are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday. The union's request for increases covers 100,000 employes in the meat packing industry, who have voted to strike if their demands are not granted.

BARE LETTERS SENT TO DEWEY BY MARSHALL

Pearl Harbor Committee Ignores His Protest

BY PHILIP DODD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—Over the protest of Gen. Marshall, former army chief of staff, letters he wrote to Gov. Dewey of New York during the 1944 presidential campaign urging Dewey not to disclose information that might reveal we were breaking the Japanese codes were made public today by the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

Marshall objected to a public reading of the letters, it was learned, because they revealed we had the secret to German codes as well as Japanese and that he believed publication of that fact would embarrass us in our relations with England. The committee, in executive session, decided to accept the responsibility.

Some High Points

High points of the letters and of Marshall's subsequent testimony included:

1. Altho we were breaking German codes, our best information on Hitler's intentions came from interceptions of messages from the Japanese ambassador in Berlin to Tokyo reporting interviews with Hitler.

2. Our interception of Japanese messages was seriously hampered in 1943 by the Office of Strategic Services when it made a secret raid on the Japanese embassy in Lisbon, Portugal, resulting in Japan's changing its military attache code.

3. Marshall asserted he never told President Roosevelt of his letters to Dewey and that he assumed Mr. Roosevelt died without knowing of his action.

4. Breaking of the Japanese code came in handy even after Japan ceased fighting last summer, enabling our army to determine the strength of Japanese garrisons and what size American forces would be required to occupy Japanese held areas.

Requested a Gag

5. Marshall asked Dewey to prevent further debate in congress on the Pearl Harbor disaster which might reveal our possession of the Japanese codes, and noted that nothing further was said in congress that would embarrass the army in its code breaking activities.

Marshall first wrote Dewey on Sept. 25, 1944, sending the letter by a personal messenger, Col. Carter Clarke, to Oklahoma, where Dewey was campaigning. The letter was headed "For Mr. Dewey's Eyes Only" and admonished Mr. Dewey to read no further than the second paragraph if he was not willing to agree to keep the contents strictly secret.

Marshall told Dewey he would prefer to talk to him in person but that he could find no way in which he, as chief of staff, could meet the Republican Presidential candidate without exciting press and radio interest.

"Wealth of Information"

Dewey was told frankly that, after analyzing Japanese diplomatic communications and the machine used for encoding them, we have developed a corresponding machine to decipher Japanese messages. As a result, Marshall said, the army was enabled to possess a wealth of information on Japanese movements in the Pacific and which was vital to success in the war.

Marshall said he was faced with a "military dilemma" in that the instant Japanese suspicions were aroused, the army's machinery for obtaining information would be wiped out.

"You will understand," Marshall wrote, "the utterly tragic consequences if the present political debates regarding Pearl Harbor disclose to the enemy, German or Jap, any suspicion of the vital sources of information we now possess."

Cites a Speech

Marshall went on to say a "recent speech" in congress by Rep. Harness [R., Ind.] could clearly indicate to the Japanese we were reading their codes, altho neither Harness nor the American people would draw any such conclusion.

"I am presenting this matter to you, for your secret information," Marshall wrote, "in the hope you will see your way clear to avoid the tragic results with which we are now threatened in the present political campaign."

Marshall testified that Col. Clarke reported to him that Dewey refused to read the Sept. 25 letter further and sent it back to Gen. Marshall, in Clarke's hands.

Had Previous Knowledge

Dewey said, according to Clarke's report to Marshall, that he was unwilling to commit himself to a secrecy agreement in view of the fact he already knew certain of the things "probably" referred to in the letter, suggested to him by the word "cryptographic."

Clarke told Marshall Dewey also said that he could not feel such a letter could be addressed to a Presidential candidate by an officer in Marshall's position without the knowledge of the President.

Marshall then wrote another letter, dated Sept. 27, 1944, and sent it to Albany, N. Y., with Col. Clarke. In it, he insisted neither the President nor War Secretary Stimson was aware of either letter and that only Adm. King, chief of naval operations, had been consulted. Marshall said in the letter he was willing to accept a promise that Dewey would not reveal any information in the letter which had come to him from other sources.

"Embarrassment" to British

The second letter then repeated all the information contained in the first about our method of breaking the Japanese code and Marshall's request that Dewey keep the subject out of campaign debates. An added paragraph said:

"A further most serious embarrassment is the fact that the British government is involved concerning its most secret sources of information, regarding which only the prime minister, the chiefs of staff, and a very limited number of other officials have knowledge."

Marshall testified Clarke called him from Dewey's Albany office, at which time he was delivering the second letter, and reported Dewey demanded he be permitted to read the letter in the presence of at least one adviser. Marshall assented and Elliott V. Bell, New York state banking superintendent and one of Dewey's closest associates, joined Dewey.

Keeps the Letter

Dewey also asked permission to keep the second letter in his secret file, and Marshall agreed to that also. Dewey then read the letter. Marshall said he then noted there was no further reference to Pearl Harbor in the campaign which would reveal the code secret.

After the election, in which Dewey was defeated, Marshall said he felt Dewey should have more information on the code matter, so he sent Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, intelligence chief, to Albany to show the governor copies of intercepted messages and to explain their value.

"The governor's attitude was gracious and friendly," Marshall testified.

When Bissell returned to Washington, Marshal said, he reported Dewey had told him he understood there would be further discussion in congress of the Pearl Harbor matter and wanted to know if Marshall wanted him to try to stop it.

No Further Debate

"I told Bissell to tell Mr. Dewey," Marshall said, "that I'd already embarrassed him with a request affecting his personal actions, that I had anticipated his suggestion, but had no suggestion to make. As far as I know, there was no further debate on the question in congress."

Marshall told the committee he was originally led to write Dewey by his fear that charges made in campaign speeches would lead to other governments to realize we had a way to break their codes. He said Bissell suggested that he take the matter up with the President, but that he demurred, feeling it was better for him to make a personal approach to Dewey.

Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] asked Marshall whether his "only" purpose in writing Dewey was to save lives and shorten the war, and Marshall replied, "that is correct, sir."

Another Lucas Question

Lucas then asked the general what led him to believe that Gov. Dewey knew the Jap code had been cracked. Marshall said he didn't remember whether he had positive knowledge that Dewey had this information at the time the letter to the governor was written.

Dewey did make a statement about it to Col. Clarke "at one time," Marshall said. He added that the subject was aired at a later time on the house floor.

Gen. Marshall said he heard of "whisperings" in Washington during 1944 to the effect that we had broken the Jap code and that these "whisperings" were of great concern to him. He said a "responsible citizen" called him personally and told him of "very careless talk" in Washington about the code-breaking.

The Yamamoto Case

The witness said the whisperings related specifically to the shooting down by American flyers in 1944 of a Jap plane carrying Adm. Yamamoto. Marshall explained that this coup was made possible by the code-cracking, and that this fact was known to our flyers in the operation.

The whisperings were so "dangerous," the witness continued, that he asked the federal bureau of investigation to investigate. Marshall said there was constant peril that our knowledge of the enemy code would "boomerang" if the Japs discovered we knew about it and crossed us up by changing their military plans.

Following discussion of the Dewey letters, Marshall was questioned by committee members on his views in 1941 about the possibility of war with Japan.

Marshall said it had been his opinion the Japanese were confidently expecting the Germans to capture Moscow in December, 1941, and thus bring about a Russian collapse. Had they set Jan. 1, 1942, as the date to start the war, the conflict might never have come about, Marshall said, because by that time the Russians had routed the Nazis before Moscow.

"Secretary Hull told us the Japanese were hell-bent on conquest," said Rep. Cooper [D., Tenn.]. "Did you feel that way?"

"My feeling," said Marshall, "was that they were going to profit in every conceivable way from a German destruction of Russia. What I couldn't decide was from the curious way Germany and Japan conducted war—moving in without a formal declaration—how far they were going before breaking out with an overt act."

Defending the Philippines

Marshall told the committee that the army, feeling the Pearl Harbor defenses were adequate, was trying feverishly to build up the defenses of the Philippine islands late in 1941 to block Japanese expansion to the south and their entry into the war.

"Positive indications were that the Japanese had evil intentions toward the south China sea," Marshall testified. "If we could make the Philippines reasonably defensive, particularly with heavy bombers, we thought we could block the Japanese advance and block their entry into the war.

"So, in the summer of 1941, after giving Hawaii what we could, we turned to helping Gen. MacArthur, to give the Philippine area an adequate defensive setup.

"Our First Concern"

"I recall the President in 1940 had expressed the hope that we could do something for the Philippines. I said we could not at that time—our first concern was the defense of the continental United States, including Hawaii and the Panama canal. Anything we then sent to the Philippines would prevent our building up the army at home.

"Quantity production of materiel was approached in August, 1941, so we turned to building up the Philippine islands as a threat to Japanese moves to the south. That is why we were working on far eastern defenses rather than on Hawaii in the fall of 1941."

Attitudes Toward Attack

Committee Counsel William D. Mitchell asked Marshall if the danger of an air attack on Pearl Harbor had "faded from the minds" of high army officials late in 1941, after Gen. Short, commander in Hawaii, and other army and navy officials had stressed in official reports the need for building up defenses.

"The fear of an air attack had not faded," Marshall asserted. "The point was, new commanders had been appointed in Hawaii and they wanted steps taken to bolster the defenses of that command. We were in a state of woeful inadequacy in all materials. Therefore, from February into the summer, we did our utmost to provide what the army and navy commanders thought they needed for Pearl Harbor defense. We gave to a point where we thought they were reasonably prepared."

Fail to Identify Police in Theft Quiz

Officers Cleared

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday absolved of theft those Shakespeare av. police who investigated a fire Oct. 13 in which Mrs. Huldah Sittig, 81, of 2247 Armitage av., burned to death. Citation charging complicity in the disappearance of thousands of dollars which the elderly widow reputedly had in her second floor apartment had been asked by Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the public administrator.

At an earlier hearing Ronald Elliston, 12, told of finding envelopes containing $10, $20, and $100 bills that he said he turned over to police. Only $39.66 was given by police to the coroner's office. Other neighbors told of seeing showers of bills float from a mattress thrown out the window.

Neither Ronald nor his father, Edward Elliston, could identify policemen to whom they said they gave the money. All policemen at the fire testified they had turned over the money they found.

"I believe they are telling the truth," Judge O'Connell commented.

MARSHALL ON DEC. 7

BY LAURENCE BURD

Gen. Marshall's memory failed him in spots as he told the Pearl Harbor investigating committee's morning session where he was and what he was doing just four years ago today in the fateful few hours before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

It was the former chief of staff's first public statement on his actions Dec. 7, 1941, when he took his usual Sunday morning horseback ride before turning to his official duties.

Marshall could not remember what time he received word from his office of "important information" indicating an imminent Japanese attack, nor could he recall what time he reached his office.

Some Previous Testimony

Previous testimony has indicated Marshall did not get to his office until about 11:25 a. m., some four hours after intelligence had intercepted and decoded the two significant messages that tipped off Japan's plan to attack. These were the now famous 14th part of the Jap message directing a break in diplomatic relations with the United States and an instruction to Japan's envoys to deliver the message to State Secretary Hull at 1 p. m. Dec. 7.

Marshall could not recall, either, how long his subordinates estimated it would take to deliver the warning message he sent to Pacific bases two hours before the Jap attack. The warning, sent by commercial radio, arrived in Hawaii hours after Jap bombs fell.

The five star general told his story in response to questions by Committee counsel William D. Mitchell, who started by asking the witness if he "remembered" the two messages.

"Yes, sir," replied Marshall, who then began his account of the morning of Dec. 7.

Takes His Ride

"Between 8 [o'clock] and the time I went to the war department," he said, "I ate, probably read the Sunday papers, and went for a ride. I don't know how long I rode, but I rode along the Potomac about two-thirds of the way down to the national airport. The average time of my rides is about 50 minutes, so I would say an hour or less. I then returned to the house.

"While I was taking a shower word came to me that Col. Bratton [army intelligence] had important news for me and wanted to come out to Fort Myer.

"I told him I would come to the office. What time I actually got to my office is conjecture. When I arrived, Bratton gave me the 14 part message. I read it twice. When I reached the end, the next document was the 1 o'clock message. That, of course, was indicative to me and to others that some Jap action was going to follow."

"Very Definite Action"

The witness said the documents indicated "some very definite action" at 1 p. m. Washington time.

"I think I immediately called Adm. Stark on the phone and I think he had already seen the message," the general continued. "I told him I was composing a message warning our Pacific commanders. Adm. Stark felt this might confuse them since we had already given them a warning. I hung up and wrote the message in longhand."

Marshall said he talked with Stark again, and probably read him the message just composed. Stark then asked him to add a note, Marshall said, requesting that the warning be shown to naval commanders.

No Time for Typing

"I then asked Bratton to take the warning at once to the message center. [A message center is an army distribution point for written messages of all types.] A proposal was made to type it. It was decided we had no time to type."

Marshall told the committee he sent Col. Bratton back to the message center twice to get definite information on how long it would take to have the warning delivered to the Pacific commands, including Pearl Harbor.

MITCHELL—What report did he [Bratton] make to you?

MARSHALL—I couldn't tell you offhand. It's in the documents.

Q.—Did anybody in your office make any mention of the fact that 1 p. m. in Washington would be about 7:30 a. m. in Hawaii? A.—There was no mention of the 1 p. m. message until I came across it at the end of the other.

PEARL HARBOR DEAD OF 4 YEARS AGO PAID TRIBUTE AT SERVICES

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 7 (AP)—Soldiers, sailors, marines, and civilians joined today in solemn tribute to those who died beneath the Japanese war lords' first blow here four years ago today.

Virtually the only reminders today of the disaster were the rusting, barnacled sections of unsalvaged ships in the harbor, and the rows of crosses against the green hillside.

Requiem mass was said at 9:30 a. m. at Pearl Harbor's Bloch arena. Scores of servicemen and civilians gathered in Halawa naval cemetery for Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant services, and to hear a commemorative speech by Rear Adm. E. W. Hanson, naval base commandant. The only strident voices raised were those of lonely GIs and sailors, shouting: "Get us home! Get us home!"

NISCHT'S FIGHT FOR LIFE OPENS ON 'CONFESSION'

State Strives to Let Jury Hear It

BY FRANK CIPRIANI

Joseph Nischt's battle to escape the electric chair began yesterday before Judge Charles E. Byrne in the Criminal court when the state sought to get before the jury his repudiated confessions that he killed Mrs. Rose Michaelis and destroyed her body in an apartment building furnace.

The jury of eight women and four men was excluded and the first of 20 police and other witnesses were called. The initial witnesses quoted Nischt's alleged admissions, or identified a statement signed by him, reputedly admitting the crime.

Hearing Continues Today

The hearing is to determine whether Nischt made the purported confessions freely or was forced to make them, as he alleges. The hearing will continue today. If the challenged confessions are barred Nischt will go free. He is accused of burning Mrs. Michaelis' body last Feb. 28 in the building furnace at 6855 Clyde av. where she lived and he was janitor.

Star witness in the battle of the confessions was Detective Emmett Murphy. Questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Clement Cody, who is prosecuting with Blair L. Varnes, Murphy told how Nischt was first arrested March 1 and released, then rearrested in his home at 1:15 a. m. March 3.

Reports His Apology

As the squad was taking Nischt down the alley to the squad car, the detective continued, another policeman remarked that because of Mrs. Michaelis' Jewish faith no funeral could be held for her until her body was found. At that, Murphy said, Nischt broke away slightly from the police and cried. "You won't find her body; I burned it in the furnace!"

From that moment on, Murphy testified, Nischt admitted informally and confessed formally that he killed Mrs. Michaelis. Confronted later by Mrs. Michaelis' husband, Milton, and her daughter, Mrs. Pearl Weiss, the detective said, Nischt apologized, saying, "I'm sorry; I don't know why I did it."

Tell of Signing

At no time, Murphy declared, was Nischt maltreated. Cross-examined by Robert E. Romano, a defense lawyer, the policeman held to his story and specifically denied that Nischt was punched in the kidneys in the alley when he first broke down.

Other witnesses were John Hayes, hotel owner; Joseph Zuckerman, hotel manager, and Thomas FitzSimmons, a bank official, who were invited by police to witness Nischt's signing of a confession on March 5. All testified he signed the document voluntarily and did not complain of duress. Mr. Michaelis also testified, but did not complete his story.

'BLUE BABY' DUE AT HOPKINS ON DEC. 18 FOR TEST

Janice Marie Hayden, the "blue baby" of Michigan City, Ind., who suffers from a deformed heart, will be examined in the Johns Hopkins University hospital, Baltimore, Md., on Dec. 18 to determine if surgery can save her life.

Physicians in Michigan City have feared the child may die before she reaches her 3d birthday next Feb. 8. The child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hayden, 1709 E. Michigan st., Michigan City.

Arrangements to send the child to the Johns Hopkins hospital were made thru contributions received by a Michigan City newspaper from citizens of the town.

COOK ACCEPTS 7-14 YEAR TERM IN HOTEL KILLING

Defense Fight Lost, He Shifts Plea

BY GEORGE WRIGHT

Donald Jay Cook, 16, said last night in the county jail he was satisfied with the 7 to 14 year prison term imposed for slaying his chum, Morton Stein, in the Stevens hotel, May 10.

Cook had been sentenced earlier in the day by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court after the slayer, in a surprise move, changed his plea of not guilty to murder to a plea of guilty to manslaughter, for which the law provides a maximum penalty of 14 years.

Defense Loses, Plea Changed

His guilty plea ended a jury trial before nine women and three men which started last Monday. Cook's attorneys were unsuccessful in barring a confession by Cook that he stabbed Stein to death in a fight over division of loot they had stolen in several burglaries.

The confession was to have been read to the jury yesterday. The defense attorneys, Michael Brodkin, George Bieber, and Thomas Cavanagh, however, asked that the trial be held up while they conferred in the judge's chambers with State's Atty. Tuohy; his first assistant, Wilbert Crowley, and Richard Austin, the trial prosecutor.

Also Sentenced for Burglary

It was reported that the defense sought a five year minimum prison term, but it finally was agreed that a mistrial would be declared and the killer permitted to plead guilty to manslaughter, 7 to 14 years recommended as the sentence term.

Cook also was allowed to plead guilty to two charges of burglary with sentences of 2 to 4 years, these to be served concurrently with the manslaughter term.

Killer Calm Under Sentence

"You understand, by pleading guilty to manslaughter," Judge Ward told the killer, "that you are waiving your right of trial by a jury."

"Yes, sir, I do," Cook answered. He remained calm as the judge then pronounced sentence.

Stein, who was a few months older than Cook, was beaten by Cook with a blackjack, a lamp base, and then stabbed five times. Cook fled after the slaying, but was arrested in a suburb near New Orleans, La.

JUDGES CONFER ON PROBLEMS OF U. S. COURTS

Current problems confronting the federal courts were discussed yesterday at the annual conference of federal judges of the 7th judicial circuit which includes Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. The conference was held in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals building, 1212 Lake Shore dr., and was attended by all five Circuit judges and 14 of the 15 District judges.

The judges recommended changes in the manner of handling habeas corpus writs, an extension of the federal probation system, and compensation for attorneys appointed by the courts to defend persons charged with crimes.

Other problems, including permission for attorneys licensed out of the circuit to practice in the courts, and the transfer of District judges for temporary work in other circuits, also were discussed. Senior Circuit Judge Evan A. Evans of Baraboo, Wis., presided.

DEWEY'S OFFICE ANNOUNCES HE WON'T COMMENT

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7 [Special]—Gov. Dewey's office said today he would have no comment on the action of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee in making public correspondence in which Gen. Marshall asked Dewey not to mention in the 1944 Presidential campaign that the secret Japanese code had been broken.

The governor was at his home in Pawling, N. Y., for the week-end, but members of his staff here said he would not discuss any of the testimony before the congressional committee.

AURORA-ELGIN TO PUT DREAM CARS ON ROAD

BY LESLIE MONYPENNY

Monday morning commuters on the Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin railroad are going to get a pleasant surprise. For those under 18 it will be the surprise of their lives, because it was 18 years ago when the road last bought some new cars. There will be six new cars on the road.

The cars, painted a fire truck red, will literally fill a commuter's dreams and banish forever the little man who used a little crowbar to open a window. There will be heat and fresh air and special reading lights. Best of all, these are the cars with the "four inch bulge" to take care of the bulky passenger.

More Cars Planned

Technically, the story of the new features could go on for a long time. But the prospect of heat, light, and air, combined with shining, blended colors, and more room, should make the commuters happy.

The new equipment, with four more cars expected soon, will run 22 hours a day between Aurora, Elgin, and Chicago, helping move an average daily load of 24,000 passengers. More cars are planned, but for the present the cars will be absorbed in regular trains on regular schedules—altho an all new car train may be made up when possible.

Tubular steel seats are finished in mohair in apricot, coral, brown, capucine, scarlet, and red. Interior surfaces are done in matching colors—for example, ivory with apricot seats and green window shades. Each car has a smoking compartment.

Bulge Gives Width

The extra aisle width and seat width is obtained by a bulge in the car. It starts just above the platform width, which is standardized, and slopes outward to four inches at sitting level, then tapers to the ceiling. The increase on both sides totals eight inches.

A stout reporter and a stout railroad official just squeezed into an old style seat. In the new seats they chatted easily with plenty of leg and overcoat room.

Above each seat is a focused reading lamp. Forced ventilation provides 600 feet of filtered air a minute, tempered by electric heaters. Thermostatically controled heaters warm the cars.

Cost $45,000 Each

The wheels are the same as on streamlined trains, with shock absorbers. The cars cost $45,000 each and are paid for, O. C. Gettinger, superintendent of transportation, and P. R. Elfstrom, executive officer and general manager, said.

Each car is equipped with a "dead man's hand," which not only shuts off power if the operator should let go of the control, but automatically applies the brakes. The latter is a new type of control.

ORDER SEARCH WIDENED FOR 27 ON LOST PLANES

Miami, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP)—A dawn to dusk search of a vast Atlantic area by a rescue armada failed to turn up a single clue today to the disappearance of a formation of five navy torpedo bombers and a missing search plane.

Seaman A. S. Zywicki

All disappeared Wednesday. The six aircraft had 27 men aboard for whom hope was ebbing.

The navy alone had 252 planes in the air flying over 100,000 square miles of sea from north of Key West to north of Jacksonville.

A third day's search with the same forces was ordered for tomorrow. The area to be combed was extended to 350 miles out on a line reaching from Palm Beach to St. Augustine.

Those aboard the planes included Seaman 1st Class A. S. Zywicki, son of Mrs. Bernice Zywicki of 2131 Springfield av., Chicago, and Pvt. 1st Class William L. Lightfoot, marine corps, son of Mrs. Ora Lee Payne, Lexington, Ill.

SOMEBODY TRIED TO SELL SECRET, SAYS MARSHALL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—One man in on the secret of cracking the Japanese code before Pearl Harbor tried to sell it, Gen. Marshall reported today.

Testifying before the congressional investigating committee, the general said the army had a staff of only 44 officers and 180 soldiers and civilians four years ago to handle this intricate work. All of them were in Washington. A station employing 26 was at Fort Washington, Va., down the Potomac from the capital.

"One man from there was picked up endeavoring to sell this information in Boston," Marshall commented. He did not elaborate whether the man was a civilian or a soldier, or what happened to him.

YANK SOLDIERS QUIT SPHERE OF REDS AT ODESSA

(This is the concluding chapter of a series on conditions in Poland, told by a Chicagoan recently retired from the army. Fictitious names are used for all Poles mentioned in this story, in order to protect them.)

BY ROBERT E. DAVIS
[First Lieutenant, Army of the United States, Retired]

As told to CARL WIEGMAN
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

While I lived in style for several days in the Lublin home of Prince Buzek, other liberated American soldiers were having a rough time. There were 150 of them sleeping in a school building, getting meager food rations from the Polish Red Cross. Flight Officer Anderson and I went to see them and learned they were about to be kicked out of the school on orders of the soviet commandant.

The Reds wanted to turn the building over to French soldiers and refugees. At this time the French had recognized the Russian sponsored Polish government and had a consul in Lublin to look after their people. We had no representative nearer than Moscow and were not permitted to communicate with him.

Poles Find New Quarters

The Polish Red Cross people, distressed at the plight of the ousted Americans, found new quarters for them, but these were much less satisfactory than the school. Anderson and I talked over the situation, deciding that the prospects of getting out of Lublin were dim. We resolved to look for a chance to get to Cracow, then try to make our way thru Romania and Yugoslavia to Greece, where the British could help us.

Two days later, when we visited the Americans' new quarters, we found the place buzzing with excitement. There was a rumor that an American commission was coming to Lublin. The Russians suddenly had started to take an interest in our group. Even the Red commandant had visited them. Straw had been provided for beds, a kitchen had been set up, and the Red army had provided meat, bread and potatoes.

Coat Provokes Laughter

I felt much more hopeful that evening when I returned to the prince's house. His wife insisted on sending my laundry to be washed and my overcoat to be cleaned. She lent me a magnificent coat with a fur collar that had belonged to her father.

Next morning I went to see the Americans, and was greeted with howls of laughter.

"Hello, duke," they yelled. "Where in the hell did you get that coat?"

They wouldn't believe my explanation.

That day we got wonderful news. An American military commission was in Odessa and the Russians had arranged to send us there by train. I hurried back to the prince's house, explaining that I had to have my coat, clean or dirty. The family generously told me to keep the borrowed coat, but I refused. It was worth a small fortune in zlotys, which they needed.

Given Money for Food

After much scurrying, we got my coat and laundry back, and I told my hosts good-by. It was a tearful occasion.

I also went to the kindly merchant's house to say farewell. As I was leaving, his wife put her arm around me and slipped something into my pocket. It was 500 zlotys, and I protested against taking it.

"Buy food with it," she said. "You will have a long ride on the train and will need food."

I accepted the money, on condition that I send it back to her thru her uncle, who lives in New York. It was a good thing I accepted the money because it bought bread, a pound of butter, some sausage and cookies, all of which we needed badly on the 800 mile journey in box cars.

Melt Snow for Water

The trip was not like riding on the Twentieth Century Limited, but I never expect to enjoy another journey so much. All hardships seemed like trifles. We soon ran out of coal and we soon found the hardtack was too hard to eat. Our solution was to use it as fuel, for which purpose it was excellent. Getting drinking water was a problem. Whenever the train stopped we scooped up snow along the right of way and melted it on our little stove.

On the third day the Russians gave us soup, but by this time we had run out of other food supplies and needed more. We started selling our clothes to Russians who gathered at every station. They were pathetic people, sad eyed, hopeless and in rags. Most of them were women, whose chief garment was a shawl.

I decided that since I was going south, I could shed my winter underwear and sell it. Two Russian women fought over the opportunity to buy it. The top part I sold for 240 rubles and the bottom for 200.

Go to Health Resort

On the sixth day, March 2, we reached Odessa, and were met by a Russian general and an American officer. From then on we were comrades, brave soldiers, hands across the sea, etc. We marched by moonlight to buildings of a former health resort which had been assigned to us. On the way we passed what looked like beautiful estates. I was reminded of the homes along Lake Michigan in north shore suburbs of Chicago. Later, when we saw the places by daylight, they looked as tho they had been abandoned for many years.

Since our quarters were cold, we started cutting wood for the stoves. A Russian officer sneered at us, saying that in the Red army such menial work was done by enlisted men, not by officers.

Questioned by Women

Our soviet comrades did not permit us to leave the camp except under guard, which prevented us from seeing much of Odessa.

Soon after we arrived in Odessa two British ships put into the harbor, bringing Russian soldiers who had been set free by the allied armies. Stewards on one of the ships told us later that they almost had to drive the Russians off the ship and onto the soil of their motherland.

On March 6 we marched to the ship in a parade headed by a Red army band. We passed drab, unkept flat buildings with stove pipes sticking out of the windows. Russian children stared at us, dull eyed, and only a few waved, as children usually do at a parade.

Happy Crowd Sailing Day

We were a happy crowd of Americans when our ship sailed. We felt unchained. The ship carried us to Istanbul, and then to Port Said, Egypt, where we disembarked and stayed for a week. Another British ship then carried us to Naples. There I happened to meet a friend, an American naval officer, who told me I was the father of a baby girl, born March 6, the day I left Odessa.

From Naples I flew to Algiers in a navy plane, and then home in an army plane, landing in Washington, D. C., April 3. Since then I have read all the news given out about Poland. None of it has encouraged me to believe that conditions have improved since I left the country.

143 PNEUMONIA CASES LISTED IN WEEK; 37 FATAL

During the first seven days of this month, 143 cases of pneumonia, 37 resulting fatally, have been reported in the city, health department records showed yesterday. In the same period last year there were 69 cases and 29 deaths. Eight cases have been reported in the county area outside Chicago.

More schools were closed yesterday as influenza strengthened its hold in Illinois, but some officials said they hoped they might reopen their schools Monday.

Waukegan reported two more schools, Ivanhoe and Grange Hall, had been added to the list of five other Lake county schools closed because of the outbreak. Absenteeism in Lake county was reported as high as 60 per cent of the student body.

Army Bomber Crashes in Hawaii; Believe 7 Die

HONOLULU, Dec. 7 (AP)—Army transport command headquarters said today seven of eight persons aboard a mainland bound Liberator bomber were believed killed yesterday when the plane plunged into a reef off Keehi beach on the island of Oahu. All aboard were army personnel. The army is withholding names of the men until next of kin are notified.

LITHUANIANS HOPE U. S. WILL END RED TERROR

BY CARL WIEGMAN

Lithuania, which suffered three successive occupations by rapacious neighbors, now lies prostrate under the heel of soviet Russia, but Lithuanian-Americans have not given up hope that some day their fatherland will regain its independence.

Nearly 1,000 of them, representing a million members of organizations in the United States and Canada, met recently in Chicago in a national Lithuanian-American congress, and called upon the great powers to honor their pledge that all peoples shall have the right to choose their form of government.

Editor Hopeful of Future

Dr. Pius Grigaitis, editor of the Lithuanian Daily News, who was secretary of the congress, explained in an interview yesterday that the delegates to the congress were far from believing that their resounding resolutions were hopeless gestures.

"Nothing is settled yet in Europe," he said. "The key problem—Germany—is not settled. Poland's future is not settled. We do not agree that all Europe is fated to be communized."

Dr. Grigaitis said he believed Russia had passed the peak of her power, and that soon she will be obliged to withdraw from occupied lands to conserve her strength for maintaining order within her own borders.

Russia Has Home Problems

"The Russian masses were close to starvation when the war began," he said. "Their condition was more miserable than under the czars, in spite of communist propaganda to the contrary. In the war, Russia lost millions of her people and much of her industry; therefore she will be obliged, for at least five years, to use all her strength to keep Russians from starvation and disease.

"Now, Russia is trying to control 125 million hostile people, from Finland to the Balkans, not counting the Germans, and the job is simply too big for her. She does not possess the economic power, organizing ability, and administrative talent for the job. If she tries it too long, internal collapse is a strong possibility. There lies the hope of Lithuania and all the other subjugated nations. Men cannot be fed with bayonets.

Tyranny and Starvation

"Russia has nothing to give Europe—nothing in politics, economics, philosophy, or technical development. Even communism is a corruption of ideas developed in western Europe. Russia's economic order is simply starvation; her political order is simply totalitarian tyranny.

"On the other hand, Russia can offer something to the semi-nomadic tribes of central Asia. She can give them schools, an alphabet, and rudimentary technical knowledge."

Western Powers Repeat Error

"The western powers are repeating the same error that they made in appeasing Hitler," he asserted. "The United States should give aid to Russia only in proportion to her coöperation with us."

"Sooner or later, democracy will prevail in Europe," he predicted. "We hope the United States immediately will take measures to induce Russia to honor the soviet government's indorsement of the Atlantic Charter, Moscow declaration, and Yalta declaration to liberated European peoples and to withdraw soviet armed forces and Communist party apparatus from Lithuania, Latvia, and Esthonia.

REPORT COMMUNISTS STILL INFILTRATING INTO CITY OF CANTON

HONG KONG, Dec. 7 [Reuters]—Travelers from Canton, largest city in South China, where martial law was declared on Tuesday, today brought further unconfirmed reports of communist infiltration into the city and of small raids on railway supply points.

An 11:30 p. m. curfew is operating in the city and military patrols have been increased. Chinese guards also have been increased at Canton air field.

Two truck loads of wounded Chinese soldiers were brought into Canton a few nights ago, one report said.

The city otherwise is apparently normal. Canton-Hong Kong trains were running on schedule.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, Dec. 7 (AP)—Strong earth shocks collapsed some old walls in this capital early today.

BRITISH USE 12 PLANES TO BOMB INDONESE POSTS

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 7 (AP)—Twelve British planes dumped three tons of bombs today on Indonesian gun positions on a lake shore south of Ambarawa, and gunned and bombed buildings in a densely wooded hideout area on the opposite side of the lake.

Clashes continued at scattered points in Java, as British and Netherlands leaders returned to Batavia after attending a conference in Singapore yesterday called by Adm. Mountbatten, southeast Asia commander.

The air assault on the Ambarawa gun positions was ordered after Indonesian resistance forces had begun firing again at internment camps in that area. British transport planes continued to evacuate ailing and injured women and children from Semarang, mid-Java port city, 20 miles north of Ambarawa.

The British said three Indian troops were killed and nine wounded yesterday while escorting 500 refugees from the southern half of Bandoeng, 75 miles southeast of Batavia.

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 7 [Reuters]—Vienna university will close in midterm tomorrow for the first time in its 600 years because of lack of fuel. It hopes to reopen in January.

CHINESE AT MUKDEN; ARMY EXPECTS TO ENTER WITHIN 3 DAYS

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 7 (AP)—Chinese dispatches reported today that vanguards of central government forces had reached the outskirts of Mukden and should enter that Manchurian city within three days.

The drive from the Great Wall to near Mukden has been accomplished against negligible communist opposition with loss of less than 100 government troops, the Chungking accounts said.

Papers here predicted that Chiang Kai-shek's civil administration would take over in Manchuria from the Russians next week.

Elsewhere, Communists and government forces were reported clashing south of Kupeikow in one of the passes leading to Jehol province.

U. S. CAN'T HURT YOU, RIBBENTROP REASSURED JAPS

Pre-Pearl Harbor Parley Revealed at Trial

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 7—The Nazis connived with Japan against America nine months before the United States entered the war This was revealed before the international military tribunal today—fourth anniversary of Pearl Harbor—in a secret German document reporting conversations between Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's foreign minister, and the new Japanese ambassador, Hiroshi Oshima, on Feb. 23, 1941.

Both diplomats looked upon war with America as an undesirable but likely development from what they termed British influence in the United States and former President Roosevelt's belligerence.

"Concerning America," Ribbentrop told the Jap ambassador, according to the document introduced at the war crimes trial fo 20 top Nazis, "it must be noted that Roosevelt is the most bitter enemy of Germany and Japan. As far as he is concerned, he would like to enter the war. However, we have an interest in keeping America out of the war.

"Should America enter the war in spite of this, it could not wage war militarily at all. The vast spaces of ocean lying between us and America makes this impossible."

Plain Language Urged

The German-Jap conference report said that "the minister of foreign affairs pointed out that particularly in view of the desire to keep America out of the war, plain language must be used. Only if the United States realized they were confronting determination would they hold back.

"The people in the United States did not like national socialism. However, they were not willing to sacrifice their sons and, therefore, were against entry into the war. The American people felt instinctively that they were being drawn into war for no reason by Roosevelt and Jewish wire pullers.

"Therefore, our politics with the United States should be plain and firm but, of course, not aggressive."

Inducements to Fight.

Ribbentrop told Oshima that on the basis of "new affronts by the United States" the axis powers might be required to break diplomatic relations with America. He suggested that Japan join Germany and Italy in this move if the occasion should arise.

As inducements for Japan to fight the British empire, Ribbentrop pointed to the rich British and French colonial prizes to be had in the Pacific. He added that a surprise intervention by the Nips would bar American participation because, he said, the United States navy was too weak to invade the waters west of Hawaii and America would not want to expose the Philippines to loss by attacking Japan.

Hitler Intuition Bared

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 7 (AP)—Hitler began massing border troops to hurl against Russia almost 10 months before actual opening of the "drive to the east" and earlier fought a "phoney war" in the west for six months only because of bad weather, German secrets bared before the international tribunal today showed.

British and American prosecutors unfolded a fantastic story of Hitler's guesses which enabled the German army to crush seven small countries in 13 months, but failed miserably to estimate Russian power.

The erratic, intuitional character of the German leadership, combined with a ruthless military science and perfidious diplomacy, was disclosed in scores of captured German secret reports introduced as evidence.

The prosecutors introduced documents showing that Hitler began reenforcing troop concentrations on the soviet-German border as early as September, 1940, almost 10 months before his June 22 invasion of Russia.

On Dec. 5, 1940, Hitler told Herman Goering, Field Marshal Keitel, and Grand Adm. Raeder, now on trial, that he was planning to "achieve the annihilation of the Russian army and to prevent its regeneration."

Postponed Four Weeks

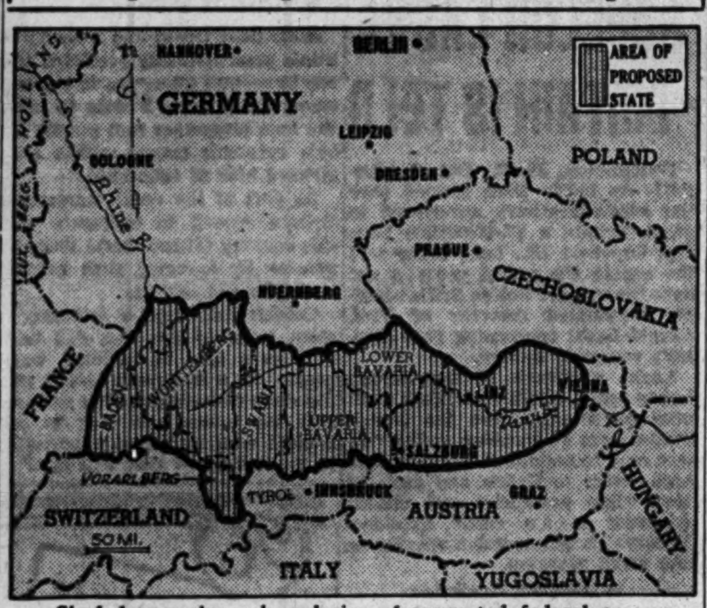
Altho he considered Russia a much more dangerous adversary than the United States, Hitler deliberately postponed his attack on the soviet union for four weeks until his armies had overrun both Yugoslavia and Greece, the documents showed.

The German records showed that Hitler's armies were poised to strike thru the Low Countries and France on Nov. 7, 1939, but because of bad weather the attack was postponed week by week for six months. When Hitler finally named May 10, 1940, as his "D" day, he complained he did so against his intuition.

The British prosecutor, outlining the part the defendants played in laying plans for the invasion while Hitler deceitfully told Holland, Belgium, and Luxemburg he had no plans to attack them, said:

"The story is very plain—a simple one—a story of perfidy, of dishonor, and shame."

Proposed Alpine State in Europe



Shaded area shows boundaries of suggested federal area.

20 Million in Region

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 7 [Reuters]—A movement to set up an Alpine federal state with more than 20,000,000 inhabitants as a breakaway from Austria and southern Germany has been launched in Bregenz, capital of the Austrian province of Vorarlberg, now occupied by the French, according to reports reaching Bern.

The state, covering about 195,000 square miles, would be federated, with autonomous provinces. The program of the Action Committee of the Alpine Democratic union, which is promoting the state, visualizes the frontiers as stretching southward from the western border of south Czechoslovakia to the Tyrol and Vienna, and then westward to the Rivers Rhine and Neckar. This would include Lower and Upper Bavaria, with the cities of Munich, Regensburg, and Ausburg, and the provinces of Swabia, Wurttemburg, and Baden.

Among the leaders in the movement are Dr. Emil Schneider and Dr. E. Seeberger, Austrians, and Dr. Bernhard Dietrich, mayor of Singen, Baden.

800 Bolivian Indians Rise Against Landowners

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 7 (AP) — A new uprising by 800 Bolivian Indians against landowners in the province of Aiquile was reported today. The reports said the Indians surrounded 23 rural guards sent to the Los Molinos estates to establish order. The prefect of Cochambamba immediately sent 120 additional guards to reënforce the garrison.

BERLINERS HUNT HEAT AS FIRST WINTER STRIKES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 7—The first real winter weather, with the thermometer well below freezing, disrupted heatless Berlin today. Hundreds of persons besieged crowded hospitals for shelter, but without success, as beds are available for only the most extreme accident cases. Thousands more tried to jam inside of any warm stores or shops and remain there all day long. Hundreds of scrub women employed in the vast group control council headquarters brought their children with them to enjoy the heat and the youngsters sat on the stairs while their mothers swabbed and scoured.

Apartment house tenants gathered in any neighborhood room which possessed a stove to thaw out after the frigidity of unheated flats.

Electricity and gas consumption leaped upward and authorities believe every one owning heaters had plugged them in despite the fact it is prohibited.

MURDER TRIALS IN HAWAII LIKELY FOR JAP CHIEFS

Homma to Manila

TOKYO, Dec. 8, Saturday (AP)—Informed sources said today Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, commander in the Philippines when Japanese soldiers perpetrated the Bataan "death march," will leave Tokyo for Manila shortly to stand trial as a war criminal. Homma, who submitted to arrest Sept. 15, has been held in Omori prison here. Homma said he was ready as "commander in chief of the Philippine forces to take full responsibility of any acts of my subordinates."

TOKYO, Dec. 8 [Saturday] (AP)—On this fourth anniversary of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, Gen. MacArthur's chief prosecutor for the impending war criminal trials indicated strongly today that some of the plotters of that attack may be tried in Hawaii for murder.

Joseph B. Keenan

Joseph B. Keenan, special prosecutor who has arrived in Tokyo with his staff, in discussing such an possibility, said:

"It is not the men who dropped the bombs but the men who set in motion the plans, who committed the more heinous offense."

United States Citizens Murdered

He said, however, that Hideki Tojo, the No. 1 man on the criminal list, who was premier at the time of the attack, would not be tried in Hawaii. Asked if "small fry" might be tried in the islands, Keenan replied that none of the men he would try were small fry.

"If any violation of federal statutes is involved, there is no reason why we should not try them in Hawaii," Keenan explained.

"Certain United States citizens at Pearl Harbor were murdered Dec. 7, 1941. Their lives were taken with premeditation. That is murder in the United States," Keenan said.

Start in January

Informed sources said today that quite soon Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, accused of responsibility for the brutal "Bataan death march," would be taken to Manila for trial.

The war crimes trials of top Japanese, including Tojo and his "Pearl Harbor cabinet," are scheduled to start in January, Keenan disclosed yesterday. Keenan said allied nations have been invited to nominate members of the court, which will be appointed by MacArthur, and to participate in the prosecution. None yet has named such personnel.

Keenan said the Japanese would be tried in groups, as in Germany, with "the accused presumed innocent until proved guilty."

Accusations will go back to 1937, when Japan started war in China.

Asked what penalties would be provided, he replied that every civilized country had a penalty to fit the offense of killing innocent persons.

Kido Blames Tojo

Marquis Koichi Kido, one of the highest figures yet named on the list of 286 suspects, put the finger on Tojo as chiefly to blame for the war. Kido, former lord keeper of the privy seal and chief adviser to Hirohito, said in an interview that Tojo "is clearly a war criminal from the standpoint of constitutional government in Japan. I think he is most to blame for the war."

As for himself, Kido said "I am not guilty. I have nothing to hide. Before the court I will speak frankly and I will speak the truth. I feel responsible politically but I do not think I committed any crimes."

He said the emperor wanted to conclude the war at several stages of the hostilities, but made no real move to end the conflict until last August.

U. S. Answers Yamashita

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The justice department asked the Supreme court today not to intervene in behalf of Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who has been sentenced to death by a military commission in Manila for condoning atrocities by his troops.

In a brief, Solicitor General J. Howard McGrath asked the tribunal to deny Yamashita's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and a writ of prohibition directing the judges to cease prosecution.

CONSERVATIVES URGE BRITAIN TO REJECT LOAN

Laborites Back Plan; Take Up Bretton Woods

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Labor government leaders whole-heartedly approved the proposed $4,400,000,000 United States loan to Britain today, but a small Conservative opposition in commons moved that the financial agreement be rejected.

Backed by their overwhelming majority, and motivated by Britain's almost desperate need for dollar credits, Laborite leaders planned for parliamentary approval of the loan next week along with passage of the Bretton Woods bill.

A government spokesman described the loan as "an agreement which will work," and admitted that Britain's only alternative would be an immediate austere future "far worse than during the darkest periods of the war."

Predicts Trade Disruption

Opposition came from two Conservative members within an hour after the Bretton Woods bill was introduced for parliamentary ratification, as proposed by the Washington, D. C., conferees on the loan agreement.

Moving that both the Bretton Woods measure and the loan agreement be rejected, Conservative Robert Boothby, a wealthy manufacturer, declared that acceptance of the loan would abolish the sterling area; restore an international gold standard, and force Britain to return to the principle of nondiscrimination in trade, with a consequent disruptive effect on the trade unity of the empire.

British participation in the Bretton Woods plan would put into action at once a large part of the funds which will be forthcoming from the United States if congress approves the loan.

"The British government's view," said a Laborite spokesman, "is that Bretton Woods in itself is a good agreement worth adopting, and one which becomes much better" in connection with the loan agreement.

Press Reaction Varies

He said it did not involve a return to the gold standard, but seemed to provide "a compromise between the need for international monetary stability and domestic needs for flexibility."

Parliament sources said they expected further Conservative opposition to develop with final consideration of the two measures next week, and said the criticism would hold that "Britain is buying a period of deceptive ease and tranquility at the expense of a harsh and disillusioning time later on."

The government's reply, they said, would argue that, had the United States refused the loan, Britain would have suffered gradual disintegration of the sterling group "because America would then be able to offer some of its members irresistible inducements to go over to the dollar group."

Petrillo Cited in Montreal for Contempt in Cafe Case

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 7—James C. Petrillo, of Chicago, president of the American Federation of Musicians, was cited in the Quebec Superior court yesterday for alleged contempt of court for violating the court's interim injunction by placing the Tic Toc cafe in Montreal on the "unfair list." The court was asked to subject Petrillo and the federation to a fine, and, in a second motion, attorneys for the cafe demanded that the Montreal guild of Musicians be likewise fined for contempt and that its officers be imprisoned.

25 MILLIONS IN U. S. GOODS SOLD IRAN SYNDICATE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 7—Packing up to leave Iran on Jan. 1, the American forces disposed of the last of their movable surplus property today. Making a $7,000,000 sale to an Iranian private syndicate, with other deals closed or pending, this makes a total of about $25,000,000 mostly in American currency salvaged from an expenditure of $100,000,000 in this country.

The final sale of movable surplus was concluded while former commander of the Persian gulf services, Brig. Gen. Donald H. Connolly, was enroute to Tehran to expedite the disposal. Accompanying the general in Harold Minor, Iranian expert of the state department, who will presumably make a close study of the revolt in northern Iran.

The final batch of surplus property, sold by Col. John Stetson Jr. of the foreign liquidation commission, consisted mainly of trucks, tires, other vehicles, and machinery. Six groups bid for it and Col. M. F. Henkel of Chicago, legal adviser to the commission here, said the highest bid was accepted.

RUSSIA HASN'T ASKED FOR LOAN, SAYS TRUMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—President Truman today said soviet Russia has not asked him for a 6 billion dollar loan.

He was asked about the soviet loan reports as he announced he will send a message to congress soon asking approval of the proposed 4 billion 400 million dollar loan to Britain.

It has been widely reported in the capital that the Russians would ask for 6 billions as soon as the British negotiations were out of the way.

Mr. Truman also said he will announce the appointment next week of the chairman of the American Red Cross and that he plans to return the coast guard to the treasury as soon as the secretaries of the navy and treasury can agree on a date.

CANADA GIVEN RIGHT TO EXTEND CONTROLS FOR RECONVERSION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 7—Parliament today granted the government authority to continue such controls as it may consider necessary during the reconversion period, particularly price and wage controls. It did this by passing the emergency powers act, under authority of which the government will act when the war measures act, in effect since September 1939, bcomes invalid at the first of the year. The war measures acts has given extraordinary powers to the executive.

Commons passed the bill on a vote of 121 to 46 after the government had given assurance it would use the powers vested in it only in such respects as it considered necessary during the transition period, and also that parliament would have the right to annul any orders issued under the new act if such orders should not meet with its approval.

Procope, Former Finnish Envoy, Faces War Trial

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 7—Hjalmar Procope, former Finnish minister to Washington, who is the defending lawyer for former President Risto Ryti in the war guilt trials, is expected to be among those who will be prosecuted as war criminals when the trials are resumed on Monday.

WANT A LOAN? SQUELCH LASKI, BRITAIN IS TOLD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 [Special]—As battle lines shaped over the administration's agreement to grant Britain a $4,400,000,000 loan, Sen. Capehart [R., Ind.] today told the senate the action would not have his support unless British leaders repudiated remarks of Prof. Harold Laski concerning this country's economic system.

Laski, chairman of the British Labor party, told a New York audience on Monday that the United States form of economy is the "direct road to serfdom." He also gave high praise to Russia and declared that "free enterprise and market economy mean war." President Roosevelt's widow was a speaker on the same program.

A Further Quotation

Sen. Capehart declared that "I for one will not support a loan to Britain" unless leaders of that country repudiate Laski's statements, which the senator said included the assertion that the "American private enterprise system must go."

"Coöperation is not a one way street," Capehart said. "If Prof. Laski likes Russia so well, he should make his domicile there and live in prosperity and contentment."

Recalling the remark once made by Winston Churchill, that he was not chosen prime minister to liquidate the British empire, Capehart declared:

"I was not elected United States senator to liquidate the United States government."

Backers Get Busy

The administration, meantime, strove to marshal arguments behind the huge credit offer, convinced that any major congressional change in it would imperil hopes for Anglo-American trade coöperation.

State department and treasury officials pessimistically predicted that any important alteration in the loan terms would force Britain to reject the loan altogether and pursue her own economic course within a restricted bloc of countries.

As part of the credit agreement, Britain agreed to coöperate with this country toward world trade expansion by lowering such barriers as tariffs and cartels.

Cordell Hull, former secretary of state, indorsed the loan and trade deal as a step in building world peace. In a statement issued thru the state department, Hull declared that the nation now may be confronted with its "final opportunity to make a peace that will last."

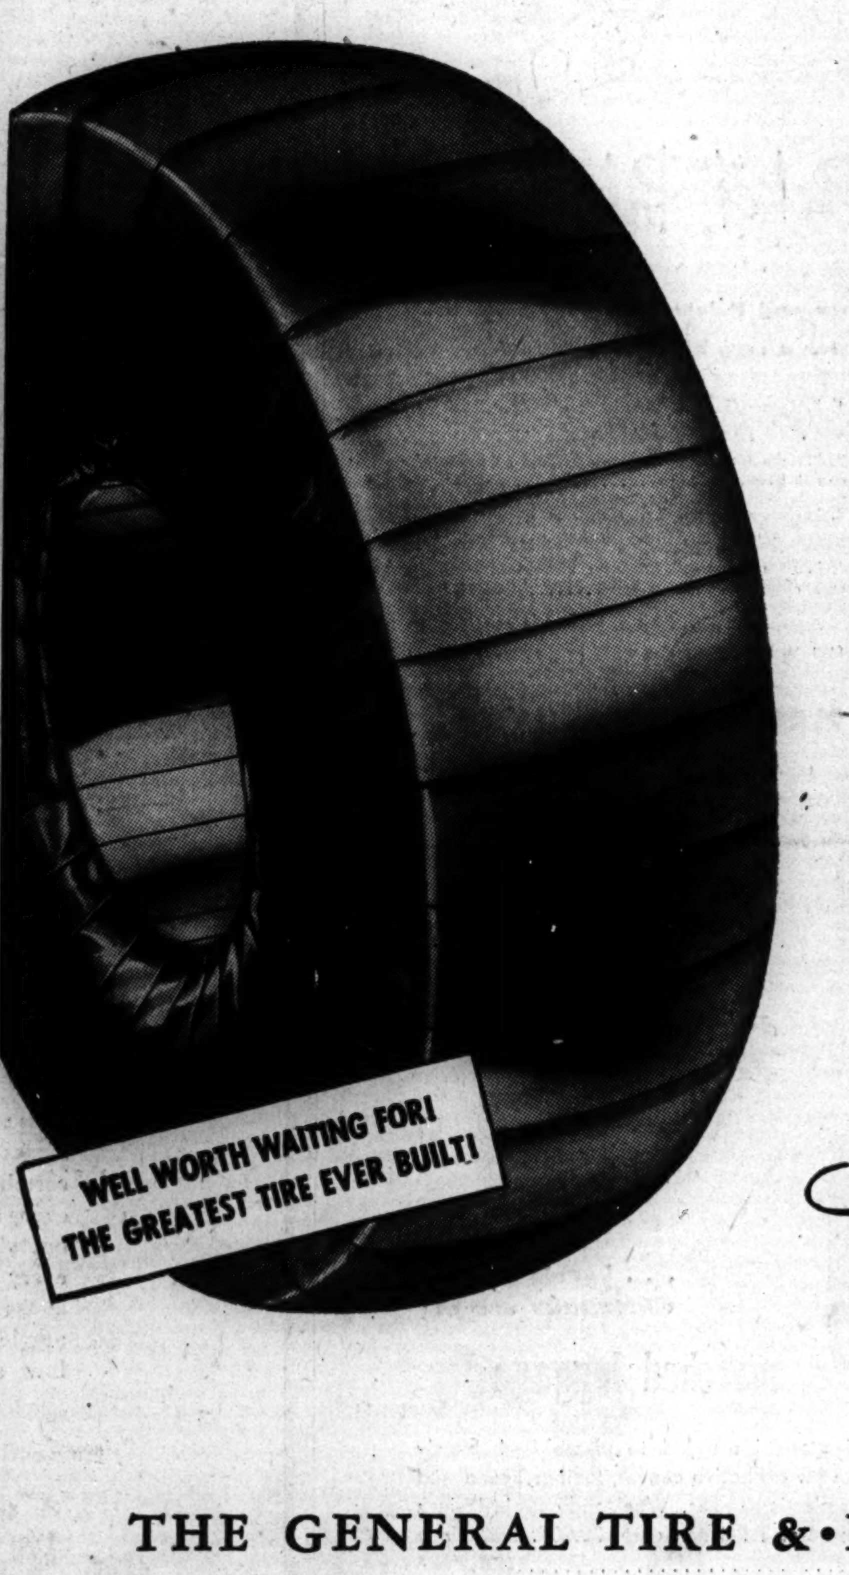
Wait for the New General !

THE GREATEST TIRE EVER BUILT !

Meanwhile, make your present tires last! Your General Dealer has the definite Plan available to you now!



AS SOON as rubber restrictions are lifted, General will present—proudly and without qualification—to the car owners of America the greatest tire ever built!

It will be well worth waiting for! Already thoroughly tested, the new General is ready to go into production as soon as —but not before—the finest natural rubber is again available and government restrictions permit us to use more natural rubber in passenger car sizes. The present allowance is only a little more than an ounce. This increase should come soon, if the government releases only a small part of the crude rubber stockpile now on hand.

Then, we will build into this new tire all the extra performance its advanced design makes possible and bring you the complete satisfaction you would expect of a tire designed to enhance General's famed Top-Quality reputation.

Even when our dwindling stockpile of natural rubber was one of America's most potentially dangerous wartime shortages, tire manufacturers were permitted to use 30% natural rubber in truck tires, because the military recognized that a certain percent of crude rubber is absolutely necessary for satisfactory tire performance. With 30% natural rubber and 70% synthetic, General is building the best truck tires ever built, proving that all we need to get the same performance from passenger car tires is to use a small amount of natural rubber.

All during the war, General was a large producer of synthetics and its research produced a number of important developments.

But, synthetic passenger car tires, while they have served during the era of 35-mile-an-hour top speed, do not represent even the starting point for the kind of tire that General wants to produce...and will soon!

Meanwhile, your General Tire Dealer has a definite Plan available to keep your present tires serviceable and guarantee you priority delivery of the new Generals as soon as they are available.

GREEN OUTLINES G.O.P. POLICY TO SAVE AMERICA

National Program Given Party's Committee

nist votes—and whether we do or not, we can never expect to get them—but we act as if they were about to fall into our lap if only we behave with circumspection."

The people are tired of double talk, at which Republicans shouldn't attempt to duplicate New Dealers, he continued.

New Deal Falsehoods Cited

"By this time, the country knows that the New Dealers cannot be trusted. They promised Palestine to the Arabs and to the Jews at the same time. They gave Poland to the Poles and to the Russians. They told us that lend-lease would keep the nation out of war when they knew it wouldn't. They told the fathers and mothers of America that their sons would not be called upon to fight on foreign soil. They promised peace when they knew war was upon us."

The party leaders were told that they had been deluded by local victories during 14 years of failure in national leadership.

"The Republican party was founded to elect, not sheriffs, but Presidents," Green admonished. "It was born as a national party, has always been a national party, and, if it cannot win national elections, has lost its main reason for existence."

"Our party has failed nationally, chiefly because it has not been true to the faith that is in us," he went on. "We believe in private enterprise, but we have offered only feeble protests as private enterprise has been hemmed in and restricted by federal taxation, regulation, and regimentation until it cries for help."

U. S. Defense a Cornerstone

"The cornerstone of our program must be the vigorous protection of the people of America from future attack," Gov. Green said. "This is the first duty of our government.

"We do not agree that the American people were to blame for Pearl Harbor. We are determined that there shall never be another Pearl Harbor. We demand that the superiority of our army and navy and their air arms in numbers and in scientific weapons of modern warfare shall be rigidly maintained."

Republicans must insist that the government promptly and unequivocally act to insure the permanent retention of air and sea bases vital for the defense of America, he continued.

We Stand for World Liberty

"We favor the fullest coöperation with other nations to insure peace, but we insist that the makers of our foreign policy cling to our American ideals of justice and liberty," said the Illinois governor. "We must never condone the suppression of liberty in Poland, in the Baltic states, in the Balkans, or in any nation in Europe, Asia, or elswhere. It must be our vigorous policy to use the leverage afforded by the discussion of forgiveness of lend-lease, or of requests for new loans, and every other peaceful means to speed liberation of the people of these nations.

"Just as vigorously we must support in our dealings with all nations concerned the right of free Jewish immigration into Palestine. May we not hope that American influence, properly used, can achieve that long cherished goal of world Jewry, with due protection of the rights of all?

Human Slavery Condemned

"The Republicans of the middle west will never approve the administration's indifference to the extension of human slavery, whether the victims be the peoples of the nations we have defeated in war or the unfortunate natives of Malaya and southeastern Asia."

To the national committeemen, Green sketched a Republican program to put the national economy on a sound basis.

"We believe that the time has come to bring national expenditures down to the tax receipts of our national government," he said. "We must live within our income, and basic thinking should govern our consideration of loans and gifts to other nations.

Would Guard Against Fraud

"We insist upon rigid honesty thruout the national administration, and that there be a prompt end to the use of public power for personal gain. Particularly, we urge congress immediately to enact legislation requiring full publicity to all deals for disposal of surplus war goods or alien property.

"We face the fact that the present and future prosperity of America depends on the prompt reconversion of American business to a sound peace time economy. Increased production of sorely needed materials, tools, and consumer goods is our paramount need today. Without increased production, we cannot check the current trend of inflation or achieve the full employment which is our hope to avoid the equally serious perils of deflation.

"We believe that such increased production can be accomplished only by the fullest coöperation of American industry, American agriculture, and American labor under the profit motives of our system of free enterprise. We believe that system has demonstrated its superiority to any system in the world, both in the miracle of our production for war and in the long range record of American industrial expansion which has produced for the American people the highest standard of living the world has ever known.

"We charge that our production has now bogged down mainly because the Truman New Deal administration has failed to clear away obstacles to reconversion created by oppressive federal tax policies and a maze of federal burocratic regulation. . . .

Regimentation Must Be Ended

"We believe that the regimentation of American business, American agriculture, and American labor must be speedily terminated; that special war controls shall be ended as quickly as possible, and that powers of congress and the state governments, delegated to the President in the war emergency, should be speedily restored to congress and the states. Freedom from regimentation is the objective of a liberty loving people; governmental controls should be limited to the prevention of abuses and dishonesty and the correction of gross inequalities."

Prosperity for both capital and labor has been made almost impossible by New Deal tinkering that has complicated labor disputes, Gov. Green said.

"The basis of virtually every labor dispute today is the natural desire of the workers to receive under peace time conditions a 'take home' pay at least equal to the amount they received while working overtime hours during the war emergency," he continued. "They are supported by those who argue that the levels of workers' incomes must be maintained to provide the buying power required to support the full employment program for our country.

Challenges Need of More Bureaus

"However desirable this may be, from the employers' point of view, it means an increase in his unit cost of production and, if he proposes to meet this cost by increased prices, he runs into the ukase of another group of New Dealers which says: 'You must not increase prices.' In this situation, the American business man is chanting the familiar words of a late leader of the Democratic party who could not stomach the New Deal: 'You can't have it both ways.' The President of the United States has been unable to show us how we can have it both ways, and I do not believe it can be accomplished by law or by the creation of any additional bureaus or so-called fact finding bodies.

"We indorse collective bargaining. The right to bargain implies the right to refuse terms offered—the right of labor to strike and the right of management to shut down if satisfactory agreements on wages and conditions cannot be reached. Strikes and shut downs are expensive to the public, but they are more expensive to the employers and employes involved.

Clear Labor Program

"We believe that most of our labor conflicts could be settled promptly if management and labor were free to negotiate in their own interests. I see no effective solution to this problem until free and unfettered collective bargaining is restored. I trust that the position you take here on labor will be clear and forthright, and that we shall not promise what we cannot perform."

Gov. Green reaffirmed Republican belief in the Bill of Rights, said that social security must be placed on a sound basis actuarially, and pledged full aid to returning war veterans.

Veterans' Needs Paramount

"The Republican party must pledge to the American people the fulfilment of our nation's obligation to provide a sound and happy future for the veterans of this war. That obligation transcends any supposed obligation to our allies or to the world."

He called for speedy discharge of soldiers "not absolutely essential to our national interests," and blamed New Deal bungling for the housing shortage.

"Finally, we believe the time has come to speak out for America; that the efforts of our government should be turned to benefit Americans; that the greatest service we can do for mankind is to keep America strong," he said.

"I believe that the people of America today will listen to straight thinking and plain speaking. I am convinced that here and now is the opportunity for the Republican party to put our country on the road to prosperity and sound progress."

HAIL GREEN SPEECH AS PUTTING HIM IN PRESIDENTIAL RANK

Republican national committeemen yesterday praised enthusiastically Gov. Green's speech calling for a no-compromise return to fundamentals in the 1946 campaign. Many commented that the call for vigorous leadership made the Illinois governor one of the party's major leaders.

"Green would have been nominated by acclamation if we had picked a Presidential candidate at this session," said Walter S. Hallahan of West Virginia.

Men from other states also expressed the opinion that Gov. Green should be considered for the 1948 Presidential ticket. The committee concentrated on campaign issues and otherwise little talk was heard of candidates in the Stevens hotel.

National Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. of New York said the Green speech was "inspiring and courageous." Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.], chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, said "Green's speech was inspiring; there is no conflict between his views and those adopted by Republican representatives and senators."

ASSERTS G. O. P. MUST LEAD WAY TO SANE WORLD

Martin Says A-Bomb Calls for Change

Rep. Martin [Mass.], house minority leader and former Republican national chairman, pointed yesterday to Democratic failures in public office and said:

"It is the historic mission of the Republican party to provide the leadership for this nation in the age of the atomic bomb."

Martin addressed the Republican national committee at a luncheon meeting in the Stevens hotel.

"If the citizens of this unfortunate world are to be spared the final agony of atomic incineration in war, then it will come about only under the stimulus of a strong, free, sound, and solvent America," he said.

Blames New Deal for Fears

"It will take an America so free from international bickering and selfish burocratic tampering that all its vast creative energies can be devoted to producing the wealth, the goods, and to making practical the philosophy which will restore the world to sanity and open the way to permanent peace."

Martin charged the New Deal not only has misgoverned American affairs, but has fomented confusion and fears thruout the world.

"If we can take the right road and lead the world back to peace among men of good will the marvels of atomic energy can enrich the lives of all men beyond the hopes of the most optimistic prophets of time," he said.

"We must refuse any longer to follow the will o' the wisp of New Deal socialism into the bogs of waste and the marshes of confusion. We must embark on a constructive program to correct New Deal follies and to release and revitalize the creative genius of our people. We must throw our full strength into the cause of peace."

Favors Primary Indorsements

Martin and National Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. both predicted that the G. O. P. would take control of congress in the 1946 election.

Brownell said that, in advance of the primaries next year, the national committee would be glad to work with the strongest candidates in 134 marginal congressional districts, including five in Chicago. He asked state chairmen to name the leading candidates by Jan. 1. Without a specific recommendation, he also discussed the possibility of having national headquarters set up its own state and precinct organizations, copying the New Deal political action committee tactics. He conceded that such a plan would be contrary to Republican principles.

State Leaders Report Gains

Predictions for victory in 1946 were bolstered by reports received from the state leaders, Brownell asserted at a news conference.

Rep. Reece of Tennessee was named chairman of the resolutions committee. Other members are Mrs. Ralph A. Harris, Kansas; G. Mason Owlett, Pennsylvania; Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois; Mrs. Gladys Knowles, Montana; R. B. Creager, Texas; James F. Dewey, Vermont; Clarence Budington Kelland, Arizona, and Mrs. Cecil M. Harden, Indiana.

Charles Hacker of Chicago was appointed sergeant at arms for the meeting with Frank Stebbins as his assistant.

SEEK AID OF ILLINOIS CONGRESSMEN FOR RETURN OF NAVY PIER

The Chicago Convention bureau announced yesterday that all Illinois congressmen will be invited to a special luncheon Dec. 27 in the Blackstone hotel to discuss means of prevailing on the navy to vacate Navy pier at a date earlier than that now scheduled.

The convention bureau and other civic groups will set before the congressmen facts and figures showing that continued tenancy of the pier will force many business groups to hold conventions in other cities. The navy has announced it does not plan to vacate the pier for at least another 12 months.

Convention bureau officials said four of the nation's biggest conventions have queried the city about available showroom space. Unless the vast space of Navy pier is made available, they said, these groups will have to go to other cities. These four conventions alone, they added, will mean a business of more than 90 million dollars to the city.

Vaughan Hospital Going to Vet Bureau by April 1

MAJOR RETURNS TO ARMS CAREER AS A SERGEANT

It was Pearl Harbor day in more ways than one yesterday for Herman C. Bundschuh, 41, of 4717 Wells st., a former major in the United States army, who reverted to the rank of master sergeant which he held Dec. 7, 1941.

Bundschuh, in the army air forces for 17 years, became the first World War II. officer of field rank to go back into the service when he took his oath as master sergeant at the army recruiting station, 166 W. Van Buren st. He had received the temporary rank of major as an engineering officer of the 46th service group in the 5th air force in the Pacific. He was discharged from the army Nov. 20.

Bundschuh said the army had become his career and is "the only life." His wife, Louisa, and two sons, Richard, 10, and Jerry, 2, reside in Chicago.

SHEIL TO STUDY REICH, POLAND FOR PRESIDENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, soon will be named by President Truman as a personal representative to study the politico-religious situation in Germany and Poland, it was learned today.

The bishop will report personally to the President. It is understood the study was initiated by the White House and was not proposed by the Roman Catholic church here or abroad.

Bishop Sheil is regarded here as extremely sympathetic to the Roosevelt administration. He is regarded highly by the Truman administration.

The bishop was born in Chicago, ordained a priest in 1910, and was named auxiliary bishop in 1928. He founded the Catholic Youth organization.

G. O. P. ASCRIBES RISE IN GIFTS TO TRUMAN'S STAND

Republican campaign contributions increased when it became evident that President Truman intended to follow New Deal policies, the G. O. P. national committee was told yesterday by James S. Kemper, chairman of its finance committee. Treasurer Jouett Ross Todd of Kentucky said collections during 1945 have been approximately $550,000 and expenditures $450,000. The reserve fund of $250,000 on hand at the start of the year thus has been increased to $350,000.

TRUTH BY THE SPOONFUL

Rep. Gearhart's accusation that the Democratic majority of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee had contrived to release testimony in disconnected driblets has been fully sustained by the conduct of the inquiry. As John Chamberlain said in advance of the hearings, "The Republicans will charge—and prove—that the Democrats, in revealing the skeleton in the closet piecemeal, now a femur, now a jawbone, have chosen tactics and timing designed to frustrate the expression of any effective political reaction to it."

The New Dealers, indeed, have planned it that way. The congressional investigation is the fifth that has been undertaken since the disaster at Pearl Harbor four years ago. First, there was the Roberts commission inquiry. Then there were the separate investigations of the army and navy boards of inquiry, the findings of which were released in fragments over a period of 10 months, with 52 pages of evidence still suppressed by the secretaries of war and navy.

Now, it develops from the testimony of Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, former army chief of intelligence, there was still another investigation, conducted by Brig. Gen. Carter Clark—at whose direction, for what purpose, and with what results no one knows. When some members of the congressional investigating committee expressed astonishment that the Clark inquiry was an unpublicized mystery, Gerhard Gesell, one of the committee counsel, announced that the Clark report was in his hands, but that it contained "top secret" information that the army didn't want to get out.

There are four separate investigations, and that by the congressional committee is the fifth. Each in turn was supposed to be complete, impartial, and conclusive, but parts of all of them and the entire findings of one of them are still suppressed for political reasons, and the result of each succeeding investigation has been so unsatisfactory as to decree the calling of another. There seems little reason to doubt that the present congressional inquiry will be similarly reduced to futility because of politics.

From the beginning the New Deal attempted to insure that the investigation would continue the aimless round of hide-and-seek. Mr. Stimson, the former secretary of war, sent to the senate with his indorsement a bill providing a $10,000 fine and imprisonment for 10 years as the penalties for making public the contents of any decoded messages, either ours or those of any foreign government. The intention was obviously to preserve the Roosevelt administration's secret that, by cracking the Japanese code, the top New Dealers were forewarned of Japan's decision of Dec. 4, 1941, to go to war with the United States and to initiate hostilities with a surprise attack, with Pearl Harbor as the only possible objective.

Step by step, the remnants of the Roosevelt inner circle have fought to delay and to impede effective action to bring out the truth. Why is the most important part of the army board report still suppressed? Why is Gen. Clark's report kept under wraps? For what other reason could these findings be called "top secret" than that they constitute further proof of the culpability of Mr. Roosevelt and his state, war, and navy departments?

We encounter deceit in the constant reiteration of the assertion that the American people were responsible for Pearl Harbor because they were not aroused to a war fever. How could they have been when all of the warlike maneuvers were made under cover by a tightly knit clique of White House intimates who never for a moment took the people into their confidence?

In all of the diversionary tactics to take the heat off the politicians who steered America into war there is a recurrent theme: that we were not prepared for war when the Japanese forced it upon us, and that somehow the people, or congress, or anybody except the politicians who were formulating the Roosevelt war policy were responsible for this unreadiness. The fact is that we were adequately prepared if the fleet had been properly disposed, instead of being scattered all over the world with reckless disregard for tested navy principles, and if its commander and the army base commander in Hawaii had been properly alerted on the basis of positive information known in Washington that war was coming where and when it did.

These things were not done. The fleet was exposed by the stupid diplomacy of Roosevelt and Hull to be sacrificed at Pearl Harbor, when a positive directive for an all-out alert in the face of known impending war was all that Washington needed to do in order to save it.

WHO GETS THE PULLMANS?

The department of justice prosecuted Pullman, Inc., as a violator of the anti-trust law and obtained a decree requiring the corporation to divest itself either of its manufacturing business, which is principally the construction of sleeping and other railroad cars, or of the Pullman company, which operated sleeping cars for most of the railroads of this country.

Pullman, Inc., elected, as it was permitted to do by the decree, to stay in the manufacturing business and dispose of the sleeping car operation business. It has received four bids to purchase the operating business, which are subject to approval by the court that entered the anti-trust decree.

One is a proposal by most of the railroads of the country to acquire the sleeping cars and operate them thru a mutually owned company—much as they now operate the railway express business. A second proposal came from Alleghany corporation, which controls several railroads, and associates of the officers of that corporation. There is a third proposal to buy the business and sell stock to the public, and the fourth bid is by a manufacturer of railroad equipment.

Now the anti-trust division of the justice department comes before the court and demands that all four bids be rejected. It advances technical reasons, some of which are not too clear, for attacking three of the bids, and of the railroad bid it asserts that it merely would substitute a new monopoly for the old one. There may be some merit in the anti-trust division's contention that under railroad ownership smaller or weaker railroads might suffer from discrimination, but the New Deal lawyers apparently overlook the fact that to operate sleeping car service on the railroads of the country with any sort of efficiency and economy something approaching a monopoly is virtually necessary.

One of the virtues of Pullman company operation was that, while part of its cars were regularly assigned to certain railroads for their regularly scheduled trains, a considerable number of cars were held in a pool and assigned according to seasonal traffic demands. The same Pullman car would haul vacationers to Florida in January, sports fans to the Kentucky Derby in May, and more vacationers to Minnesota in August. Without the pool each railroad would be required to own enough cars to handle its peak demands and during the major part of the year would have to keep a considerable number of those cars standing idle and earning nothing. The inevitable result of any such system would be, of course, that the public would have to pay more in the end to ride in sleeping cars.

The anti-trust department, at the moment, looks pretty silly. It didn't want Pullman, Inc., to operate sleeping cars and the court sustained it in that demand. It doesn't want any of the people who are willing to buy the business to get it and yet it has advanced no suggestion of its own for solving the dilemma brought about by its anti-trust action. Perhaps the division expects people to stop riding in sleepers and do their traveling by airplane. If it keeps obstructing the settlement of the matter a solution may be delayed so long that that will come about.

THE LOAN TO BRITAIN

The long negotiations over the loan to Britain have resulted, as was expected, in giving the British lords what they came over here to get. Keynes and Halifax can expect to move up a notch in the peerage. The sum they get is $4,400,000,000. The terms call for repayment in 55 years with interest at 2 per cent. The news was greeted in London with restrained expressions of satisfaction. The state department is squealing with pleasure.

This must be the strangest, as it is surely one of the biggest, international financial transactions in the record books. The American taxpayers are assuming all the risk, but while the negotiations were proceeding nothing was told them to show how solvent or insolvent the prospective debtor might be and nothing was said to indicate to just what uses Britain intended to put the money once it was handed over. This would be strange in any circumstances, but is particularly so in view of the fact that the same debtor defaulted on an obligation of just about the same size after the last war. If there is any reason to think that the fate of this loan will be different nobody concerned in the drafting of the agreement has been moved to present the facts to the taxpayers.

Once again our state department has shown itself to be merely a subordinate branch of the British foreign office. What are called negotiations are, in reality, merely one sided discussions, with the British certain to have their way after a decent interval spent in "examining the problem." In the end what is always achieved is a betrayal of American interests to the British.

The testimony of Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley at the senate hearings tells precisely the same story. The striped pants boys in Washington undercut him in China. There were, apparently, two groups of saboteurs in the department, but they could work together against him and the interests of America. The followers of Moscow were solicitous to keep the Chinese Communists going because that would serve Russia's interest. The pro-British wing of the state department felt the same way about it. If Chiang is obliged to spend most of his strength in the north against the Communists he will have little left with which to resist British imperial grabbing in the south.

What Gen. Hurley has said confirms, from the lips of an insider, what THE TRIBUNE has known from observation for a long time. From time to time the President or the secretary of state makes a speech defining American foreign policy. The President did it as recently as Navy day. The words uttered on these occasions have little or no relation to reality. The reality is that the department doesn't work for America, but is rather a colonial branch of various European foreign offices, particularly the British. That is the significance of the Hurley incident.

The British element in this country will try to persuade congress to approve the loan on the theory that it is in America's interest. Before considering the question congress ought to insist that the British cease their propaganda in this country. Congress should insist, also, that the British cease murdering Indonesians and that they free their other slave peoples. Americans in good conscience cannot give billions for the enslavement of the world's weaker peoples by the British empire.

MR. PEPYS CHECKS UP

8th Dec.—Received my income tax bill to wind up 1945 [est.], which I don't have to pay until I car figure out final returns. Which reminds me to write to the collector, asking what about that overpayment of $200-odd I made by gross error on my 1944 return, and which hasn't been knocked off yet by the eagle-eyed bookkeepers of the internal revenue, altho I have gone thru the motions they recommended. In such cases, it seems, the reels of red tape unwind slowly, if ever.

Have been checking up on Linebook sales and find there are plenty of copies on hand to take care of the Christmas trade. They are to be found in some bookshops, no doubt, and also at the Tribune Public Service offices, which also handle mail orders. This book was voted my best number at the Line o' Type contributors' dinner, so it ought to make a good Christmas present at low cost, especially since inexpensive items are scarce this season.

Among my office visitors this week was a veteran Tribuner who immediately spotted my desk as having made its start in life under the late Percy Hammond, drama critic. Then he told how Percy would write a piece for the paper, always on the edge of the deadline. He would get out a percolator and brew coffee, with a tin can to drink from. He would drag up two chairs, one to hold Webster's Unabridged and the other, Bartlett's Quotations and Roget's Thesaurus. Then he would monkey around between the coffee can and the books until the editors and printers went crazy. Finally he would start to write in long hand, using the weirdest words he had found while warming up.

His style was once described in the Line o' Type column under B. L. T. as "a queer patois." Percy grabbed his books, looked up "patois," and didn't speak to B. L. T., with whom he was chummy, for a couple of weeks.

FOR DECEMBER'S CHILD

I light my candles from a star
And hear in trembling melody
Words a myriad angel choir
Sang above Judean hills,
Annunciation of His birth,
"The Christ is born! Peace, peace on earth."

Now shining trees glow thru the night
While troubled hearts grow calm and light;
Now lighted hearthfires draw us near
To share their warmth and Christmas cheer,
The while each hoarded, glowing ember
Gladdens the darkness of December.
Truly it is a blessed thing,
Sharing the birth-month of a King.

How to Sell Goods on Sunday

Three parts pleasure with one part business—that was Uncle Bill's idea of running our small town "Fair" store. Customers became his pals, especially the farmers, so no matter where our Sunday hunting or fishing, some farm wife expected us to "sit down." There'd be a churn or a new style dish in the surrey for her, also a case of beer and boxes of 5 cent seegars for an afternoon under the sycamores or elms.

After dinner [maybe squirrel, rabbit, quail, with persimmon pudding], the grapevine would fetch a few neighbors. Then came horseshoe pitching, while the lager and seegars went round with tall tales and fun. Some one would say he'd buy a handpainted chamber set for his wife's birthday or a red plush family album for the parlor table, and what about a new whalebone buggy whip with a silk lash, eh?

Driving home, the odor of stale beer from the empty bottles mixed with country smells drifting thru the surrey. A-sprawl on the back seat, lank Uncle Bill snored thunderously as his king's size Adam's apple shuttled back and forth. Letting the homebound Prince have the bit, I mulled over my uncle's unorthodox but certainly pleasant way of doing business. It just didn't fit in with what my other uncles were teaching me about selling goods.

T. W. S. writes: "We are confused by recent stories about eligibility for education under the GI bill. Some stories have said time spent in ASTP and navy college training may not be counted and other stories have said the time may be counted. What does the law say and how has it been interpreted by the veterans' administration?"

Part VIII. of public law 346, the so-called GI bill provides that any person who served in the active military or naval service on or after Sept. 16, 1940, and prior to termination of the present war and who shall have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, and whose education or training was impeded, delayed, interrupted, or interfered with by reason of his service, or who desires a refresher or training course, and who either shall have served 90 days or more exclusive of any period he was assigned for a course of education or training under the army specialized training program or the navy college training program, which course was a continuation of his civilian course and was pursued to completion . . . shall be eligible for and entitled to education or training under this part. Education under the bill must be started either two years after date of discharge or the end of the war, whichever is later and no such education shall be afforded beyond seven years after termination of the present war. The administration has ruled that service men who were assigned to college courses which were not completed may count the time spent in school toward further education, but those who merely continued civilian courses in medicine, dentistry, and theology may not.

DO YOU SEE RED?

WITH every war, interest in color-blindness is renewed and many conjectures are always made on the subject. A few years ago it was suggested that victims of this disorder could be used as observers in planes to spot camouflaged enemy positions. The plan was probably not successful as authorities supplied no further comment on it.

In our industrial world the ability to distinguish colors is important, particularly among those who work for railroads, steamships, aviation lines, and in weaving factories. Even the motorist may be given a ticket should he fail to heed the traffic lights.

The term "color-blindness" is misleading inasmuch as the majority are capable of seeing the fundamental colors but have trouble with certain shades. For this reason, it is believed that "color-confused" is a better term. Many are unconscious of this handicap as they have learned to recognize colors by light intensity. For example, a man knows what blood looks like. He interprets every other shade of red by his perception of the pigmentation of the vital fluid.

In the strict sense, the primary colors are limited to red, green, and blue. From these, the others are derived. Those with average or almost normal color sense are termed "trichromatics." The dichromatics can identify only two; everything appears gray to the monochromatic. Those in the third category may have associated eye symptoms and many are over-sensitive to light. Blue-blindness is rare but red-green derangements are observed more frequently. It has been estimated that 4 to 10 per cent of our population is afflicted with varying degrees of distortion, at the ratio of approximately ten men to one woman. It is a family affair and is transmitted thru the female.

Several examinations have been devised to ascertain whether the defect exists. Among these is the wool test in which the individual is handed several bits of yarn. He is then given a green sample and asked to match it. If he is successful, his color vision is not disturbed. The red-blind person may choose blue or violet to go with a pink skein whereas those who cannot perceive green are likely to select this hue.

Other tests are available, such as the Stilling and Ishihara charts. These plates contain figures which are made up of dots of the primary colors. The background, on the other hand, consists of similar dots but of confusion colors. The normal person reads the numeral readily but the color-blind either sees an incorrect number or none at all. Lanterns containing discs simulating the appearance of signal lights under all weather conditions are also employed.

Large doses of vitamin A are alleged to be helpful in treatment and improvement is noted in some during the period that this medication is administered. Special training is also tried in an attempt to restore the color sense. Unfortunately, many of these cures are difficult to evaluate since it is possible to memorize the charts used in testing.

Other than the hereditary basis, there has never been any satisfactory answer to the cause. The malady should not be mistaken for lack of knowledge of the various shades. In these cases, an acquaintanceship with colors has never been developed.

The Reason for It

If you have [or can borrow] a $1 bill, please turn it over and look at the green side. There, a little left of center, as the administration loves to phrase it, you will see a picture of a pyramid with an apex so radioactive that it has by sheer buoyancy detached itself from its base and appears miraculously suspended in midair, emitting a glorious aura.

Various explanations, some of them backed by all the sober erudition of the pyramidologist, others on the irresponsible imagination of the legend weavers, are offered. But the most nearly credible, I am sure, is this: The $1 bill is the money you possess temporarily; the pyramid symbolizes the money you owe—i. e., the national debt, which has blown its top. Frightfully Awkward, Don't You Know?

The Chicago branch of a London haberdashery and custom tailoring establishment which for years has maintained branches both here and in New York ran an advertisment last week with the heading "Pardon us, Messrs. Gilbert & Sullivan, but . . ." An illustration showed a Scotsman lifting a glass with two well curried gentlemen. Beneath that was the musical refrain, "I want, what I want, when I want it!" "Need more be said of ——'s gift certificate?" the ad asked. Much more was said. Letters of protest came tumbling in. One writer accused the establishment of being so "frightfully British" it was not willing to concede the worth of any songsters other than Gilbert and Sullivan. Another suggested it "let the punishment fit the crime." A third declared that its use of the song title was as corny as its use in the film, "Thrill of a Romance." A fourth, and this is the one that hurt, said he hoped the firm's tailoring was more accurate than its knowledge of operettas, for the song, "I want, what I want, when I want it" was written by Victor Herbert with lyrics by Henry Blossom.

Land of Wilted Cherry Blossoms

[Excerpts from a soldier's diary]:

We glided down to an air field on the outskirts of Tokyo, boarded trucks, and started out. What would it be like, this land of wilted cherry blossoms and conquered rice eaters?

Roads are narrow and rough but well designed. We watch for low wires which could behead you in a flash. Little two-story houses twinkle with lights from the many square panes in windows. Puccini's music that glamorized a Japanese girl named Madame Butterfly drifts into the mind. Since then the West has met the East.

Midget cars buzz past. Trees still thick with leaves. Altho it is November, the weather feels like October. Buildings, black, bombed-out, line the road, safes rusting among the rubble. Already there are signs of cleaning up, rebuilding, reconversion. The Japanese work with care and persistence.

Great trees arch over the boulevards as we near the center of Tokyo. Street cars bounce along. Street lamps flushed with little fans of yellow light. Towers and skyscrapers. A beautiful city, with clean streets. Clogs clattering on sidewalks. Silk kimonos bright in the moonlight.

We are stationed in the swanky San Shin building, stone and cream brick. Crowded with windows. Near-by are all the theaters, off limits to GIs. All Japanese are moviegoers. Two blocks down is Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, a gray, block-like building, cubistic design. We didn't see the general. We did see his parked sedan, shiny black and five silver stars in circle on red license plate. MPs on watch, their white helmets evident in the dark. Across the street are the emperor's palace grounds; high walls and moats. More guards than any bank.

We are breathless carrying our barracks bags to the third floor, where we each have a cot and space. Former offices with desks and chairs remain. China cups for ash trays. Collectors would rave over them. Wide stairways, light brown marble, blue cloisonné decorations, brass trim. Modern conveniences at every turn. No heat or hot showers, but after months of mud, tents, and malarial mosquitoes this seems paradise.

NAVY INSURANCE AID

Great Lakes, Ill., Dec. 1—Thank you for the editorial "Keep Your Insurance, Veteran" which appeared in THE TRIBUNE on Nov. 13.

In the last paragraph of your editorial you made the suggestion that an insurance officer be assigned to explain to men being discharged the value of their insurance and tell them how to convert it into permanent forms and realize its benefits. We have an insurance officer who, prior to joining the navy, was associated with one of the major life insurance companies for 13½ years as a leading salesman. This officer has a staff of approximately 75 officers and enlisted men to answer any questions that dischargees have in regard to their government life insurance. It is the practice of the insurance department to "sell" each dischargee to keep his maximum, $10,000 of national service life insurance on the term plan and not convert it until he is out in civilian life and is financially qualified to pay for the premium on the permanent insurance plan. All men being discharged must attend a lecture on insurance and those who wish additional information may get this information by asking for an individual interview.

Because of the extreme influence editorials in your paper carry thruout the 9th naval district we would appreciate it if you would continue your interest and help all dischargees take advantage of the maximum benefits that are provided them by law.

NOT INTERESTED IN LOSSES?

Chicago, Nov. 29—John Joseph Ryan, in his letter to THE TRIBUNE on rent control says, "Surveys conducted since 1942 show landlords better off than in the pre-war years of 1939-'40."

To make this double talk more clear, why doesn't Mr. Ryan tell how and where these surveys were taken? Certainly not in this city, as I have yet to meet an owner of rental property in Chicago who has ever been contacted by OPA as to whether he was better off under rent control. If Mr. Ryan would take the trouble to send a questionnaire to Chicago landlords, he would find 90 per cent of them losing money for the four years since rent control went into effect.

Yes, OPA has petitions for rent adjustments. The writer made several trips to comply with all the red tape in connection with this petition, and after producing facts and figures showing a loss of $315 on an apartment building, I was bluntly told by one of the burocrats at 222 W. Adams st., "We are not interested in your losses—our job is to keep rents down."

The OPA's survey showing landlords better off now than in 1940 would be an excellent remedy for settling all these CIO strikes. Let every CIO union revert to the wages they were getting in 1940 and also give the same amount of services and then the members will find themselves all better off with no occasion for striking and no reason for asking a 30 per cent raise. Chicago, Nov. 29—On Nov. 21, I wrote you regarding certain difficulties we have had in attempting to purchase equipment from the reconstruction finance corporation. In our interview with the RFC today it was explained what difficulties they have had in inventories given them by the armed services, over which they at first had no control.

Altho our complaint was justified, I do believe the RFC is making an honest effort to serve and dispose of the surplus equipment. It is a question of setting up routine to handle orders promptly, and of proper control of inventories. I. G. LARSON

WORSE THAN APPLE SELLING

Grinnell, Ia., Dec. 1—Mr. Roosevelt once promised that the veterans of this war would never have to sell apples on the streets. Perhaps they won't have to, but I wonder which is the worst, selling apples on the streets or having to live in it. MRS L. F. MORRISON

BEGIN TRANSFER OF 6,650,000 TO 4 GERMAN ZONES

Largest Group to Come from Poland

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The allies have begun the gigantic task of transferring 6,650,000 Germans from Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Poland into the four occupation zones of Germany.

The state department disclosed today that the allied control council in Berlin approved a plan for the transfers at a meeting Nov. 20. The plan outlines tentative allocation of the transferred Germans among the zones of occupation and sets up a schedule for their movement.

Transfers begin this month and are scheduled to be completed by Aug. 1, 1946, the announcement said.

Give Allocations

Here are the allocations:

Of the total German population of 3,500,000 to be moved from Poland, 2,000,000 go to the Russian zone and 1,500,000 to the British zone.

Of 2,500,000 to be transferred from Czechoslovakia, 1,750,000 go to the American zone and 750,000 to the Russian zone.

From Hungary 500,000 go to the American zone.

From Austria 150,000 go to the French zone.

The council plan should "greatly alleviate" certain difficulties which have arisen from the premature migration of Germans into Germany from Poland and territory now under Polish control, the announcement said.

Work on World Basis

The state department said the United States has observed "with satisfaction" that the Czechoslovak and Hungarian governments are planning direct conversations in an attempt to solve differences over the transfer of Hungarian speaking persons from Czechoslovakia to Hungary.

It is the American view, the announcement said, that problems involving large scale population transfers or exchanges could be solved "only on the basis of international agreement and not by unilateral action."

MURDER-SUICIDE VERDICT GIVEN IN TWO DEATHS

A verdict of murder and suicide was returned yesterday at an inquest into the deaths of John G. Eberler, 61, of 2206 W. 107th pl., and Thomas Cantwell, 41, of 9641 Marion st., Oak Lawn. Eberler, a railroad shop foreman, was slain Thursday afternoon during a union-management conference by Cantwell, a worker, who believed the meeting had been called because of him. The shooting occurred in the offices of the Rock Island railroad shops at 4929 Wentworth av.

The jury, after hearing evidence that Cantwell had been distraught since the death of a son last August, decided that he was "temporarily despondent over ill health." Carl Zuegel, 7812 Indiana av., general shop foreman, testified that Cantwell had stormed into the meeting, called on other union matters, demanding to know of Eberler what he held against him.

Mrs. Lucille Lawrence, 9643 Marion st., Oak Lawn, a sister-in-law of Cantwell, told the jurors that Cantwell and his wife had been disturbed by their son's death and had separated.

REPORTS NAVY MEN BANNED IN JAP VICE AREAS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—A report from Navy Secretary Forrestal that "all houses of prostitution have now been placed 'out of bounds'" in the Yokosuka area of Japan was entered in the congressional record today.

It was inserted by Rep. O'Hara [R., Minn.] in reply to a letter from Chaplain Lawrence L. Lacour of the navy which O'Hara previously had placed on record. Lacour had reported that a large brothel apparently was operating with navy sanction.

Forrestal explained that many sections of Yokosuka had originally been placed "out of bounds," but that "unfortunately" some houses were in the "in bounds" area.

Forrestal added that, "In order to protect the health of the men prophylaxis stations were established where they would be most effective; and in one instance this was at the entrance to a house of prostitution."

1945 ASSESSMENT VALUES PLACED AT $3,492,293,308

County Assessor John S. Clark yesterday announced the assessed values in Chicago of real estate for 1945 tax purposes. The total of $3,492,293,308 is about 117 millions under the 1944 assessment, reflecting cuts made in the 1943 and 1944 rolls by the board of tax appeals.

Comparison of 1944 and 1945 assessments, by city townships, follows:

Town	1944	1945
Hyde Park...	$556,649,313	$537,755,478
Jefferson	481,388,072	476,301,390
Lake	536,768,826	529,621,950
Lake View ..	356,017,816	337,658,027
North	255,088,890	238,876,081
Rogers Park.	100,185,945	96,652,096
South	642,057,448	619,005,641
West	681,534,560	656,422,645
Total	$3,609,690,870	$3,492,293,308

The figures are exclusive of railroad properties. Several days ago Clark announced the total realty values in the country towns at $1,014,629,019, giving a total for the county of $4,506,913,327.

Two Air Lines Seek to Adjust New York to London Fares

One Asks Raise

New York, Dec. 7 [Special]—Two air lines operating trans-Atlantic travel service—American Airlines and Pan American Airways—today announced moves to change their rates so they would coincide at a fare of $375 between New York and London.

American Airlines sought permission of the civil aeronautics board to act on one day's notice in reducing its rate from $572, the established war time fare.

The line also petitioned to cut its Chicago to London rate from $604.85 to $404.65, and its Chicago to Shannon, Eire, fare from $538.80 to 364.65. The new round trip rate from Chicago to London would be $738.10 and to Shannon, $664.30.

Raises Fare to London

American Airlines' action followed an announcement by Pan American Airways that it would increase its New York to London rate from its present price of $275 to the suggested British fare of $375. Pan American said it would retain its $275 rate to Ireland.

Decision to file with the civil aeronautics board a petition for an increased tariff was made necessary, Pan American said, by the "reported offer of American Airlines to operate at a higher rate and thus gain a major share of the American-flag frequencies."

Allowed 2 Trips

Under a permit obtained in 1937, Pan American was allowed two trips a week to the United Kingdom, but had been flying five flights on a temporary basis. The British recently ordered the line to resume the two flight weekly schedule.

Pan American said the increased fare would be asked so the line might be permitted to operate a fair share of the provisional American-flag frequencies to the United Kingdom now being authorized.

Pact with Portugal

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The state department tonight announced an air transport agreement with Portugal which allows the United States a variety of privileges in that key country on trans-Atlantic sky routes.

The agreement provides that American and Portuguese air lines have the right to pick up and discharge international passengers, cargo, and mail on their assigned routes in almost any profitable manner.

Under the agreement the United States is given the right to operate three air routes involving Portuguese territory:

1. From the United States to Azores to Lisbon and beyond with one leg to London and another to Barcelona and beyond.
2. United States to Lisbon with the right of nontraffic stops at the Azores and thence to Madrid and points beyond.
3. The United States across the Pacific to the Portuguese colony of Macao on the South China coast and thence to the British colony of Hong Kong with a possible leg to Canton, China.

Lines affected are Transcontinental and Western Air, Pan American Airways, and American Airlines. All three routes will operate planes in both directions.

Portugal is authorized to operate an air line from Lisbon by way of the Azores and Bermuda to New York, and return.

SALUTE FIRST OF THREE SONS BACK FROM WARS

Spotlighted banners topped by a huge sign, "Welcome Home," in the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Majszak, 6250 Roscoe st., yesterday heralded return from the wars of the first of their three fighting sons.

A 12 foot sign over the porch welcomed an ex-marine, Sgt. Albin R. Majszak, 25, a veteran of two years in the South Pacific, just discharged at Great Lakes.

The family will put the display up again when the two other sons, Staff Sgt. Harry, 32, a veteran of two years in Europe and the Pacific, and Pvt. Edward, 22, who has been in this country for two years, head for home.

ORSON SILENT; WELL, ON RITA'S PLANS, ANYWAY

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 7 (AP)—Orson Welles flew in from the east today, ducked in and out of his studio, and paused only long enough to issue orders that he wanted to see no one, and had nothing to say—presumably about Rita Hayworth's announcement of their separation.

Miss Hayworth's studio reported she was working thruout the afternoon, but that Welles made no attempt to contact her. Earlier she had said they would issue a joint statement upon his return.

Welles and the actress have been married two years and have a child.

ASSAIL TRIALS OF CIVILIANS BY ARMY TRIBUNAL

Hawaiians Carry Fight to Supreme Court

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—War time trials of two civilians by military courts in Hawaii were assailed before the Supreme court today as having been held without actual authority of law.

The court heard arguments by attorneys for the civilians on the fourth anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack. Martial law was declared immediately after the Japanese attack and the right to the writ of habeas corpus was suspended in Hawaii.

The attorneys said the justice department sought to justify the trials on the authority of the government to declare martial law. They asserted such power does not carry with it the power to try any civilian in a military court.

Only One Justice Absent

Frequent questions were asked by the justices, all of whom sat in the case except Justice Jackson. He is in Europe for the Nazi war criminal trials.

The court asked particularly for details of the factual background of the cases and the circumstances of issuance of various military orders.

Edward J. Ennis, special assistant to the attorney general, contended the exercise of federal powers involved in the two cases was required by military necessity and therefore was constitutional.

Martial law was suspended and the right of habeas corpus was restored in the territory by Presidential proclamation Oct. 24, 1944.

In one case before the court, Harry E. White, a Honolulu stock broker, asked a determination whether a military court had jurisdiction to try him on a charge of embezzling funds of a customer in violation of a municipal law. He was convicted by a provost court Aug. 25, 1942, and sentenced to five years in Oahu penitentiary.

Sentenced for Assault

In the second case, Lloyd C. Duncan, a civilian shipfitter employed at the Pearl Harbor navy yard, challenged the authority of a provost court presided over by a naval officer to try him on a charge of assaulting two marine sentries. He was convicted March 2, 1944, and sentenced to six months in jail.

White contended that since the territorial courts were open and fully staffed, the army had no right to try him for a violation of municipal law or deny him a jury trial in an established court.

Duncan argued that at the time of his trial all civil courts of Hawaii were able to perform their normal duties and that no military necessity existed for military courts.

THIRD COMPANY SHOWS INTEREST IN CITY HOUSING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Dec. 7.—Four Chicago aldermen, members of a city council subcommittee on housing, left New York for home today confident they have secured the possible aid of at least three large insurance companies in the developmnt of housing projects in Chicago. The fifth member and chairman of the group, Ald. Moss [5th] stayed here to attend the United States conference of mayors which starts Monday.

The third company to promise consideration of Chicago as a site for housing projects was the Prudential Life Insurance company of Newark, N. J. Carroll M. Shanks, executive vice president of the company, told the aldermen a Chicago representative of the firm would consult them within the next week as to possible sites for housing and that a committee of experts on housing would come to Chicago shortly after Jan. 1.

The two other companies who indicated previously they were considering building in Chicago are the Equitable Life Assurance society and the New York Life Insurance company.

HOUSE GROUP BLASTS SENATE JOB MEASURE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The house expenditures committee assailed today as "a gigantic and unworkable proposal" the administration's so-called "full employment" bill which has been passed by the senate.

In a formal report paving the way for a house vote next week on a substitute measure, the committee said it "unqualifiedly rejects" any theory "under which employment thru private enterprise would be perfunctory and the guaranty would really rest on federal investment and expenditure."

Adoption of such a theory, the committee said, would entail continued deficit spending and destroy the United States system of free competitive enterprise.

The substitute measure provides that in periods of existing or threatened widespread unemployment, government can stimulate private enterprise by expanding normal public works, encouraging the states to do likewise, and by making loans to promote employment thru private enterprise.

$50,000 BLAZE ATTRACTS 5,000; TIES UP TRAFFIC

Fire of undetermined origin in the two story brick building at 3130 S. Michigan av., occupied by the Federal Storage Battery company, last night drew a crowd estimated at 5,000 and tied up traffic for several hours. The fire apparently started in the rear of the building and burst out thru the roof. Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan estimated damage at $50,000. He said no one was in the building when the fire started.

MRS. LUCE PINKS ASSERTED RED IN HOUSE DUEL

BY GUY GENTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Rep. De Lacy

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7—Rep. De Lacy [D., Wash.] today was branded on the floor of congress as a man "long loved and cherished by the Communist party" by Rep. Luce [R., Conn.], who read a list of his asserted communist activities dating back to 1938 "so the members of this house may better understand his views on American foreign policy."

"We all know that the Communist party is the house organ, the tool of the Kremlin," Mrs. Luce said.

De Lacy made the mistake of renewing his debate with Mrs. Luce on the nation's foreign policy and the recent charges of Gen. Hurley. She had charged in the house Wednesday that a speech by De Lacy on Nov. 26 was "filled with factual errors," and he arose to reply late today.

Offers Some Sarcasm

"The gentlewoman from Connecticut has many attributes," said De Lacy. "It is a marvel, this easy dexterity with which she manages effectively to champion the principles of Herbert Hoover while she maintains the unswerving support of the Bridgeport socialists."

Republican members repeatedly asked De Lacy to yield the floor for questions, but he said he would yield only to Mrs. Luce. She, however, refrained until De Lacy had used his half hour of allotted time.

Holding up a recent copy of the Daily Worker, New York communist newspaper, containing an article lauding De Lacy for his speech against Hurley and in favor of the Chinese communist movement, Miss Luce remarked that "many of us have been embarrassed by an occasional mention in this newspaper."

"Long, Tender Embrace"

"But," she added, "when it has been a long and tender mutual embrace from Munich until now, we are entitled to conclude that the gentleman from Washington is attracted, if not wedded, to the Communist party."

Saying that since De Lacy had made a facetious reference to her Bridgeport support she was entitled to scan his record, Mrs. Luce listed organizations and movements, all of them deeply tinged in red—including the presidency of the "American Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born," the "committee to free Earl Browder," and the "League for Peace and Democracy"—which she said De Lacy joined. She cited numerous individual actions by De Lacy in which she said he acted in behalf of known communists or followed the party line.

"Definite Communist Bias"

"I cite this record," Mrs. Luce said, "only because it lends weight to the ideas on foreign policy of the gentleman from Washington. He has a definite communist bias.

"I do not challenge his right to that bias nor those who travel with him, but, knowing that bias, the members of this house can more clearly view his remarks on democracy in China and his eager desire to see American foreign policy conduced in the interests of the Chinese Communists."

Citing testimony of State Secretary Byrnes before the Pearl Harbor investigating committee in which he said Hurley had carried out the policies of the administration, Mrs. Luce added: "The gentleman must now transfer his attack from Mr. Hurley to Mr. Byrnes."

Make this a Christmas to remember...

THIS year, the beautiful old Yuletide sentiment—"peace on earth"—means something far more real to most of us than it did, perhaps, at any previous Christmas.

Four years of war's distractions and anxieties, at last, are gone—and millions of American homes once more can look with bright anticipation upon the coming of the holiday season.

Many intend to remember relatives and friends at Christmas with costly, and possibly short-lived, expressions of affectionate regard. But others, mindful of how dearly our peace was won, are choosing to make their Christmas gifts significant gifts of Victory Bonds.

Surely, none of us could do anything more appropriate than to give Victory Bonds. Each Bond is more than a mark of high esteem—it is truly a present with a future—an endearing, enduring reminder of our nation's most inspiring and most memorable Christmas.

Two Benefits Tonight Will Draw Crowds

BY JUDITH CASS

TWO benefit parties tonight will attract large crowds to the Drake hotel and to the Casino club near-by. The larger of the two parties and one of the most unusual events in the city's benefit annals, will be the Victory Derby dinner-dance of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, in the Drake.

Some of the events which will set it apart as an entertaining evening will be the auctioning of a live race horse and of a new oil burner [installed], among other interesting items, and a series of horse races with professional models riding wooden ponies. A complete pari-mutuel system and betting booths will be installed for the racing interlude.

Mrs. Jacob Baur, chairman of the benefit, has announced that dinner will be served promptly at 8 o'clock. The first race is scheduled for 9:30 and racing "forms" giving the height, weight, coloring, etc., of the mannequins, will be sold by a group of debutantes, post-debs, and young matrons who will assist at the party.

The benefit is expected to net well over $100,000 as the committee has already received $75,000 from Sportsman's Park second charity race week and more than $26,000 from the advertising in the dinner programs.

Some of those entertaining at cocktail parties before the benefit are Mrs. Donald F. McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Morse Jr., Mrs. Aldis J. Browne Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Brooks McCormick, the Frank Hiters, the Waldo Logans, Mrs. Charles True Adams, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, the Thomas J. Flemings, the Joseph A. Kroecks, and the George F. Barretts. Mrs. M. Peter Miller Jr., who donated Sweep Flag, the race horse, and Mr. Miller will be among Mrs. Browne's and the McCormicks' guests.

The Mary Crane League Nursery school will receive the proceeds from tonight's other benefit, a dinner-dance in the Casino. Strolling musicians will entertain guests during the cocktail interlude from 7 to 8:30 o'clock, when a filet mignon dinner with all the trimmings will be served. Mrs. Winton Brown is chairman of the party.

Debutante News

The magic word, dancing, appears on a large percentage of tea time invitations which debutantes of the season and their beaux are receiving. It appears on invitations sent out by the John Walker Thompsons and Miss Penelope Harding Thompson for the afternoon of Dec. 21 in the Racquet club; on those issued by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Hough and Miss Nancy Emaline Hough for the following afternoon in the same club, and on the engraved cards from Mr. and Mrs. John Otto Stoll and Miss Elizabeth Ann Stoll for the afternoon of Dec. 27 in the Woman's Athletic club.

Also out are invitations from Mr. and Mrs. James Norris and Miss Marguerite Ann Norris to a supper-dance Christmas night in the Racquet club and from Mr. and Mrs. Halford Harrison Kittleman and Miss Katherine Ann Kittleman to a tea Dec. 28 in the Arts club. Lt. Peck and Betty Bennett Wed

Lt. (j. g.) and Mrs. Philip F. W. Peck Jr. (Betty Bennett) following their marriage yesterday in St. Chrysostom's church.

Church Setting for Ceremony by Candlelight

The carillon of St. Chrysostom's church pealed forth in joyous notes yesterday as Lt. [j. g.] Philip Field Wythe Peck Jr., and his bride, Mary Elizabeth Bennett, emerged following their marriage at 4:30 p. m. The pretty blonde bride, who always is called Betty and who is the second of James Ewing Bennett's five daughters, wore a stunning white satin gown of her own design. Most of the interest was centered at the back, for the long train was topped by a generous bustle, and the wreath of bouvardia which held the veil to her head was worn at the back of her head instead of above the forehead. She carried white amazon lilies centered by three white orchids.

Tall standards bearing three candles each and entwined in greens and small white chrysanthemums lined the main aisle of the church, and the altar was decorated by two vases of calla lilies. Banking it at either side were green ferns and more calla lillies. The Rev. Dudley Stark read the service by candlelight.

Lt. Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peck of Lake Forest, and his bride will live in Miami, Fla., where he is stationed.

The five young women who preceded the bride to the altar, including three other sisters, Miss Ruth Ann and Joan and Janet, who are twins, were gowned alike in long sleeved plum colored velvet dresses and pale pink feather hats, and carried pale pink camellias. Neatly reversing this color scheme was the gown worn by the bride's older sister, Mrs. Thomas B. Satterwhite, who stood with her father at the head of the receiving line at the reception following in Mr. Bennett's Wellington av. residence. With a gown of pale pink, she wore a plum colored hat trimmed with waxy pink flowers.

Weddings Today

Because most of the members of the John Rice Reilly family are away in the service, only Mrs. Reilly will be able to attend the marriage today of her son, Mr. Reilly Jr., and Miss Susan Learoyd. The ceremony will take place at 4 p. m. in the Episcopal church in Wakefield, Mass., followed by a small reception in the Wakefield home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Learoyd. The Rev. Clark Stewart Harbinson will officiate.

Miss Learoyd will have her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles H. Learoyd Jr., as her only attendant. John Leslie of Winnetka will serve as best man, and ushering will be Mr. Learoyd Jr. and George Lester Mattheson. Mr. Reilly will take his bride on a skiing trip in New Hampshire before they go to Indianapolis, Ind., to live. He recently was discharged from the army air forces, in which he served as a captain overseas. His father, Lt. Col. Reilly, who also has returned from overseas duty, has been assigned to a new post at Camp Hood, Tex.

The marriage of Miss Rosemary Ann Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Curtis of N. Bell av., to Jay Allan Grunewald will take place today in the rectory of St. Henry's church. The bride will be attended by Mrs. Donald Keuth and Mrs. Robert Thomas. Glenn Grunewald, recently discharged from the army following duty in Europe, will serve as best man for his brother. The bride's brother, Capt. Harry A. Curtis Jr., who has returned from the Pacific and is on terminal leave from the army air forces, will usher.

Mr. Grunewald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Grunewald of Arthur av., and his bride will live in Chicago. He has been discharged from the army, in which he served for more than two years in the Pacific.

Thru the Looking Glass

We find, circulating among cosmetic minded women of all ages, that bath salts are steadily returning to favor. They give the quickest bath a feminine and fluffy quality if they're sweetly scented, and they also have the trick of making a bath more exhilarating than it is when it's garlanded with the kind of trimmings that help induce relaxation. "I'll take bath salts," said one business girl. "They have some zip, where the oils and bubble lotions make me want to curl up—which I can't afford to do."

Exquisite bath salts in April violet scent.

This girl has some interesting preferences among bath salts; it occurred to us that these might make the perfect "little" gift for some women for whom you might have to shop.

The salts are fine; they dissolve almost instantly and give your tub not only perfume but a bubbly sparkle. They're the products of a house that has specialized for many years here and in England on bath preparations of top quality and sound taste—and in the scents of lavender or April violet or red roses they are a very special delight.

Lavender, of course, is one of the eternally good fragrances. It's dainty, it's refreshing, and it's clean and clear. Every woman loves it. The violet, tho, is sweet and romantic [and this is a particularly true violet, not marshmallowy] and it's only for the woman who is extremely feminine in her tastes. The rose is, as roses are, a little on the lush side, for the woman who likes soft luxury.

Bath salts like these might be just the different gift thought you've been seeking.

Arts Club Has Striking Works in Two Exhibits

BY ELEANOR JEWETT

Two intriguing exhibitions opened yesterday in the Arts club. In the larger galleries is a stunning collection of paintings and drawings by the late Marsden Hartley, and in the little room is a group of French primitives by Louis Vivin.

Vivin reminds me of Kate Greenaway plus our Chicago primitive, Hoyer. His figures are flat against his landscape and his entire composition in muted tones is quaint, funny, cute, and utterly charming. This comment is true of each and every one of the paintings, tho it is a little more true in some cases than in others. "Winter," perhaps, is the finest example of his storybook art.

The Marsden Hartley memorial exhibition is a rugged and sturdy show. The paintings in the first gallery we found mannered and hard. Most of the pictures there boast of just two dimensions. Only "Pink Hibiscus" and "Sunday on the Reefs," two decorative still lifes of flowers, seemed to fit smoothly under a classification of paintings with appeal. In fact, if the show had ended with the works displayed in this first gallery, our impressions of Hartley, the painter, could have been put on a postage stamp, that is, if one considers pleasant impressions.

A page in the exhibit is turned, however, in the adjacent galleries where Hartley's drawings and pictures hang. Enthusiasm showed its head first as we caught sight of the abstract "Himmel" and then mounted with the fascinating little landscape, "Summer," "Song of Winter," and "Mountainside." Here is color and warmth, richness of pigment, and sentiment.

"Give Us This Day" is a striking and amusing composition of gulls and fish, the leading gull voicing the benediction. "Black Duck" is stunning, and "Flowers from Claire Spencer's Garden" is a magnificent still life.

Among the 10 drawings, three stand out. One is of a waterfall, another of trees, and a third of flowers. Among the paintings that you must not miss are "Fox Island, Maine," "The Log Jam, Penobscot Bay," "After the Storm," "Kinsman Falls," "The Lighthouse," "Maine Coast Still Life," "Robin Hood Cove, Georgetown, Maine," and "Kennebec River."

Thriving Firm Molds Plastics for Countless Civilian Uses

BY EDITH WEIGLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boonton, N. J., Dec. 7—The busy molding plant in this little New Jersey town is interesting on two counts. Its employes, who never have become unionized, have not gone on a strike in the company's 25 years of growth. And the factory is turning out an amazing array of objects, all made of plastics.

This modern Noah's ark and its array of little occupants are made of a colorful plastic.

Sixteen various types of these manmade materials are used. They come into the plant in the form of a granule or powder, in the form of small pellets, and in the shape of discs. These molding compounds then are put into steel molds and hydraulic presses, subjected to both heat and pressure and to rapid cooling, and come out in the form of children's toy furniture or animals, cigaret or vanity cases, rouge boxes, golf club heads, bottle caps, kitchen utensil handles, skirt markers, kitchen clock cases, unbreakable plates and cups, holders for thermometers, bases for electric toasters, aircraft instruments, blocks, dials, and thousands of other shapes ready for use or for assembly into machines.

All these plastics are divided into two main classes according to their behavior under heat and pressure. The thermosetting group, of which bakelite is a member, will soften under heat and will go thru an internal chemical reaction and harden. Once the process is finished, the product is set for all time and holds its shape rigidly.

The second group, called thermoplastic, also softens and becomes malleable under heat and can be shaped into many forms. But it will respond again to high heat, even after the process has been completed. It can be likened to paraffin, which can be changed in shape by heat and pressure, cooled, and finished, and then can be entirely altered if desired by simply repeating the process. Nylon is a thermoplastic. Others of the family, with very fancy names, indeed, are: polyethylene, styrene, vinylidene chloride, and the acrylics.

At the Boonton plant the 16 types of plastics molded can be colored in more than 11,000 hues, and the color is built in and permanent. The products can be transparent and colorless, like glass, or they can be translucent or opaque. They can also be made to resemble marble or mahogany.

Thus, for example, if you have the money and the inclination, you can have a pale blue telephone, door handles of the same cream white tone as the finish of the door itself, a dresser set of pearly pink, a salad bowl like a gigantic bubble and about as heavy as two feathers, a rosary with beads that look exactly like ebony, chess pieces that have the lustre of hand carved ivory, and a bright red or purple steering wheel for your car. Literally millions of objects in every color imaginable are possible with plastics.

Experts in the field do not claim that their synthetics are better, in all cases, than nature's own materials. But some are better for certain uses. All have their place, just as does wood, marble, silk, or cotton. And in many cases they can substitute for nature's supplies, when those supplies are low or unobtainable. Almost always they have remarkable strength and toughness, long lasting qualities, lightness of weight, and attractiveness of appearance. Plastics are going to play an increasingly important role in the post-war world.

About Those Yule Neckties: Get 'Em Now!

BY REA SEEGER

Since a lot of fun is poked at well intentioned women who give ties, and all the masculine grousing about atrociously colored cravats is leveled at the same shoppers, here is pertinent information about the available supplies of these important and hazardous gift selections. Any notion that assortments are ample will be only wishful thinking, week after next, but, so far, there are enough colorful items strewn in kaleidoscopic glory all over the counters—with women four deep on the side.

The fabulous ties of one famous creator are still obtainable, but don't be surprised to see many of the smartest designs imprinted on fine rayon. The few precious all-silks are almost guarded behind bars. The designs continue to be the same distinctive hand blocked ideas of former years. No cravat collection anywhere compares with these famous, handmade, and artistically individualized cravats . . . they're cravats, too, if the cost is shrewdly evaluated. The colors and color combinations are still outstanding. Each tie is a flawless and original creation, with the clever signature of the vivacious designer, appearing on the lower end, a decorative signature ingeniously incorporated in the rest of the design.

Swank knitted ties in stunning colors are more than welcome, especially by the gentlemen who effect casual clothes and smart tweeds. Copper, gold, russet, wine, deep green, and deep blue are some of the most interesting colors. Also in the same category, are the durable, virtually wear-forever ties of fine soft wool, featuring hand woven texture, like effective homespun textiles. The same rugged colorings as in the knitted ties, are pleasing ideas in the wool showings.

Koussevitzky's Matchless Orchestra Introduces Brilliant Prokofieff Symphony

Concert by the Boston Symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor. Presented in Orchestra hall Friday evening, Dec. 7, 1945. The program:

Classical Symphony..................Prokofieff
Symphony No. 5..................Prokofieff
[First Chicago Performance]
Symphony No. 2, D major..........Sibelius

Serge Koussevitzky and the matchless Boston orchestra played a superb concert in Orchestra Hall last night that not only honored Jan Sibelius, who is 80 years old today, but gave Chicago its first performance of Serge Prokofieff's Fifth Symphony, a work Mr. Koussevitzky believes to be the finest of its kind since Brahms and Tschaikowsky, and for which he puts up a magnificent argument.

For this great conductor is no niggardly admirer to teeter cautiously on the fence of opinion when it comes to a score that wins his mind and his heart at one stroke. He gives it full devotion, tremendous enthusiasm, deep understanding, intuitive skill. He brings it richly to life, and no greater boon can befall a composer than to have his music fall in such hands. Some one said last night the Prokofieff certainly could be botched up by the wrong performance. Certainly it could be. The point is that it was not. It was gloriously and to me persuasively presented. In other words, I was sold.

All the way? I don't think that is particularly important. What I do think important is that we have a brilliant new work by a superior craftsman who seems to me not writing to order, as some have suspected, but saying precisely and vividly what he wants to say. In fact, I think that is why Mr. Koussevitzky programmed the work with the Classical Symphony of 30 years ago, just to contrast the tongue in cheek skill of that sardonic jest at writing to academic order with the mature brilliance of a man who is heeding just one voice, his own.

And, of course, the fact that he could write the one so deftly so long ago made possible the development of the other For the Fifth Symphony is lovingly wrought to a great orchestra's measure. Its opening is a challenge that demands to be heard. The scherzo is gay as confetti, with a wonderful trio exquisitely introduced and withdrawn by the winds. A delicate, insouciant trumpet hovers in the air—the whole thing heralds what Mr. Koussevitzky so aptly calls the carnival of the finale, a carnival heard in a dream, a dream induced by the lovely variations of the slow movement and from which you wake to the intricate but clean and shining sound of Russian bells.

Last night's, I believe, was Mr. Koussevitzky's eighth performance of the Prokofieff this season, so that it had the full benefit of the orchestra's magnificence, which is an almost indefinable whole made up of wonderful equilibrium, a glowing tone that builds to incandescent climax, a virtuosity founded on the true elegance of simplicity, and, of course, the conductor who has devoted his life to making that orchestra possible. I am sorry not only that Prokofieff was unable to hear the performance, but that Sibelius was so far away on his birthday. Because that must be exactly the way he wanted his Second Symphony to sound, with the deep throated song surging up and up until at last it breaks thru the dark Norse legends to shine in the glory of the northern sun.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 7—The good neighbor story of the week concerns a couple of our ace writers, Stanley Davis and Elon Packard. While enjoying a beer at Palm Springs, they invited a sailor to sit with them. He turned out to be Larry Storch, who, after 15 months in the South Pacific, was hitch-hiking back to his home in New York. More than that, they soon discovered he was the greatest mimic they'd ever heard. So they turned his footsteps around and brought him back to Hollywood. In one hour they had him set for a radio performance with the Music Hall, and another with the Christmas show sponsored by a watch manufacturer. They then brought him to my office, and when he opened up I'd have sworn I was being entertained by Humphrey Bogart, Frank Morgan, Peter Lorre, Clark Gable, Jimmy Cagney—in fact, all the male stars in Hollywood—so perfect was his imitation of them. So I sent him to Ciro's for an audition with H. D. Hover. Then he went to rehearse the Music Hall show with Frank Morgan. Frank had forgotten his glasses so Larry took over and became Frank Morgan. Frank was so enthusiastic he took him over to Ed Gardner, and said, "Do Ed Gardner." That sold Ed. Now he's writing special material for Larry for two of his shows. Bewildered by this sudden storm of success, the sailor said, "Now I know how it feels to be king for a day."

She'll Grace Hollywood

Sorry I missed Grace Moore's midnight birthday party. Grace will be out our way in January, and soon after that she goes into rehearsals for "Madame Pompadour." The role should fit her like the proverbial glove. She'd be delighted if she could hear all the nice things said about her along the air line over which she travels extensively. . . . Marie Gambarelli, who's just about to leave for New York and "Angelica," is wanted so badly by Walt Disney for his Salvador Dali picture that he's asking if they can't postpone the opening of the play. If they can't, he'll hold up the picture until she's free to return here. . . . George Sanders and Akim Tamiroff, two of our most delightful heavies, presented Producer Douglas Sirk with a 20 pound birthday cake at the finish of "A Scandal in Paris." They figured they'd eaten that much of his. George remained for an hour and a half to play request numbers on the piano for the grips and carpenters after the big shots had left.

Roll Out the Band

Eddie Albert and Margo phoned me right after their marriage. First thing Eddie said, after breaking the wedding news, was, "Will you call my agent, Sam Jaffe, and tell him to have a picture ready for me in a week, and ask the storage company if I can have my clothes back?" Eddie was set for one major role with Claudette Colbert, but had to turn it down when the cameras started rolling before his discharge. . . . Lisette Verea, leading lady in the Marx Boys' last, "Adventure in Casablanca," has gone to New York to see her Swiss industrialist heart throb. She's even having her apartment redecorated to fit the El Morocco motif, where the two first met. That's what I call love! . . . Speaking of New York, one of the prettiest parties given while I was there was for Irving Berlin's elder daughter. While she danced in one room, Irving and Ellin waited in the next, just so they could be handy in case the young folks needed anything.

By Alice Campbell

INSTALMENT XXX.
PLANS OVERHEARD

Suddenly the enormity of what she was doing rushed over her. This ransacking personal belongings—O, it was beastly. She put the envelope back in its place and covered it with the hats.

Olive hadn't been fool enough to keep a weapon in her room. Was this why she had bolted from the house, to satisfy herself some outside hiding place hadn't been disturbed? A hole under a hedge, on the other hand, well raked over. . . . Easy to get at, too, if by chance one wanted a pistol again. . . .

She had totally forgotten Erica's tea tray. Up she toiled to tap on the schoolroom door; but no voice responded. A quivering uneasiness seized her when she turned the knob, peered in on emptiness.

Where was Erica now? Outside on the landing Avis was glancing uncertainly at the roof stair. From the region behind it she heard low whispers, the scrape of some heavy object on bare boards, followed by a stricken cry. The boxroom! Erica and Moravian were in there together. Why? She caught Moravian's warning "S'sh! My sweet, we must be very guarded—and very sure. This is the bag she took away with her from Turrets."

"A. T.!" Erica moaned in stark terror. "Her initials! Her new bag—I gave it to her for her birthday. O, this is what Maud was lugging up the back stairs!"

The murdered woman's suitcase—stuck behind old trunks.

"It has clothing inside," Moravian's whisper seeped round the iron stair. "No, don't touch!"

Avis beat a swift retreat into the schoolroom, darted across the shabby carpet, and in the bathroom beyond fumbled at the door leading into her own abode. Locked on the other side. She got the landing door open for a cautious exit and risked a peep into the firelit dusk. Erica's shrunken little figure was collapsed. Moravian was raking the red embers.

"Yes, Erica." His tone was gentle, but at the same time it was ominous—grim. "At last I have shown you proof. What have you to say?"

"O, Ossie, I—I don't know!"

The piteous wail rid Avis' mind once and for all of its burden of ugly doubt.

"What," Oscar soothed, "is holding you back? It is your life, yes, your very existence, I am considering. What has happened to Aggie will happen to you."

"It's—it's Turrets," Erica chattered. "It's my home."

"I know. But if Turrets means death? Only in the way I suggest can you hope to break from these prison walls alive."

"I—it must be true, only——"

"True! It is a miracle you have escaped till now."

"Maud! My own sister . . . O, Ossie, she must be mad!"

"My poor little field blossom, has it never dawned on you that you are the mad one? To shut you in an asylum has been her aim. Extinction in legal form."

"Shut me—" Erica shrieked. "Ossie! She wouldn't dare!"

"Hush! She is afraid. First of Aggie, now it is you. She is convinced that when you choose you can expose her. My beloved, you've not allowed her to suspect——?

"But, Ossie, I don't know anything! I've stood up to her because Aggie told me I must, but I've never known why, because Aggie never explained."

"This morning's incident," he murmured, "was most regrettable. She will make capital of that bitten hand—but at a time when her version cannot be modified . . . Erica, am I the Big Bad Wolf that you do not quite trust me?"

"No, O, no, Ossie!" the little creature protested. "I can see why Maud wants me to believe—but to—go away with you, like this——!"

He took firm hold of the fluttering hands. "Safety first, my little Erica. There is, you must grasp it, no other way. All I urge is that you will let me be your shield; altho how that shield can be made to serve you without the title of husband——!"

Paper rattled. Moravian was easing some document from his waistcoat pocket. Coaxingly he said, "See, Erica, a special marriage license. It means that a ceremony can be performed anywhere, at any time. At 10 tomorrow a car will be waiting, just round the bend of the lane. Pack nothing, come as you are."

She was eyeing the marriage license in fascinated dismay. "Of whom are you afraid?" he said as tho speaking to a child. "Your sister will be out, and long before anything can be reported to her you and I will be in Bath. Is it the young housekeeper? Mrs. Marks? The boy?"

"Not Avis," Erica quickly denied. "Robin? He's never liked me, you know," she hesitated. "I can see him trying so hard to be nice, and of course he'd do anything for Maud. Olive is nice—at least . . . My rabbit! O, Ossie, I can never leave poor Benjamin behind, he'd be destroyed, he——"

"Who talks of leaving Benjamin? I myself will hide him under my coat and smuggle him out to the car. At 10 precisely."

"So soon!" she gibbered. "Must it be tomorrow?"

"Listen, Erica, it should have been today. Still, this last night will be safe enough, so long as this matter is a profound secret between our two selves. I, your Ossie, will not close an eye. If there is the slightest sound . . . You hear something now?"

"Out there!"

On her feet, Erica pointed at the landing door. "It was only Miss Marriott," Moravian said. "Who else could it be? I watched the others leave the house."

He bent his head, and reverently kissed Erica's hands. Unromantically he sneezed; and under cover of that Avis made the door, bound for the boxroom behind the roof stairs. Let her see the suitcase herself, and make certain Erica wasn't being tricked.

She drew back, hugging the wall. There was some one out here in this total blackness! Whoever it was seemed to be in the very act of moving stealthily away from the schoolroom door. From the light switch beside the door jutted out a tendril of loose wire which was always catching her sleeve. It had just done that to another sleeve now.

Who was it? If she had caught a rustic! But no, nothing—only that snick of projecting wire snarling up some one's clothes. Quite sufficient to advertise an unseen presence. Erica's plan had been overheard.

Mrs. Sarah Tanner, late of Plumstead, beamed at Inspector Headcorn across the superintendent's wide table.

"Mystery woman!" she chuckled. "It didn't arf make me laugh. Right away in Glamorgan I bin, regular off the map as you might say. Meant to travel by rail, only for the train pulling out just as I was setting foot on the platform. Station master says, 'If it's Cheltenham you want, there's a bus leaving the monument at 7.' It give me my connection, see? But Miss Brown, it's her paper shop I'm minding part time, she never knowed; and I never knowed as how you police gentlemen——"

"Naturally," Headcorn cut in. "And you are more or less a stranger in these parts, therefore you weren't recognized in the bus. But you did know Miss Trimble?"

"Well, not to say knowed. Seen her I had, time she was asteaming out of the Bull, me dodging in for a mite of change. It was the hat took my eye. Old-fashioned, all them pansies and the veil. The minute I sat down beside her I says to meself, 'This is the pore old gal wot's been kicked out of her job, looks a bit barmy, all hunched over.'"

"Veil! She wore a veil, did she? What sort?"

"Real thick, draped round, and right down to her shoulders."

"Could you tell anything about her build, her height?"

The big Rome Beauty apples are perfect bakers. Stuff 'em with mincemeat or chopped dates and nuts, place them in a pan with about ¼ inch of water in it, and bake at 350 degrees until almost tender. Then pour half a cup or more [for four stuffed apples] of maple flavored sirup over the apples, finish baking, and serve them warm with cream. Perfect dessert!

The deep frying kettle has come out of the cupboard with the end of fat rationing. Isn't it wonderful to have french fried potatoes, shrimps, fish fillets, homemade doughnuts and croquettes, batter fried onions? There's a Christmas cookie you fry in deep fat, too, a Norwegian delicacy known as fattigmandes bakkels, "poor man's cookies."

Fattigmandes Bakkels I.

2 eggs
½ cup milk
3 cups flour
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted fat

Beat eggs slightly and add milk. Sift flour with sugar and salt. Stir liquids into the dry mixture, and add fat. Roll dough on lightly floured board, a small amount at a time, as thin as possible. Cut into diamonds about two inches across. Cut a gash in each, lengthwise, and pull a corner of the cookie thru the slit. Drop into hot fat at 365 degrees and fry until delicately brown. Cool and sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

Fattigmandes Bakkels II.

6 egg yolks
3 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon melted butter
6 tablespoons cream
½ teaspoon crushed cardamon seed
½ teaspoon vanilla or ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
About 3 cups flour

Beat egg yolks until thick and light. Combine with sifted salt and sugar, melted butter, cream, and flavorings. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and add enough flour to make a rollable dough. Divide dough into portions, rolling each separately. Roll as thin as possible, cut into diamond shapes two or three inches across. Cut a slit in the center of each, lengthwise, and pull a corner thru the slit. Fry in deep fat, 365 degrees, until a delicate brown. Drain and sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

My department is mailing Christmas cookie recipes to hundreds of women these days. Recipes for seven delectable holiday cookies may be had free of charge, for we've mimeographed them. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Included are Russian tea cakes, toffee squares, date bars, Scandinavian cookies, spritz, brownies, and walnut slices.

Many other old favorites such as pfeffernusse, lebkuchen, cinnamon stars, Norwegian Christmas wreaths, and springerl are included in our booklet "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes," 5 cents in stamps, by mail.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Sweet Potato Fluff
[Serves six]

4 medium sweet potatoes
1 large ripe banana, mashed
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅓ cup hot cream
1 egg white, stiffly beaten

Bake or boil potatoes and mash. Combine with banana, salt, butter, egg yolk, nutmeg, and cream; whip until fluffy. Fold in egg white and turn into a greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 20 minutes.

Laughton Sails Seas Again in 'Captain Kidd'

"CAPTAIN KIDD"

By Mae Tinée

Capt. Kidd has better manners than did Capt. Bligh, perhaps because he hired a gentleman's gentleman to caution him against slobbering and smacking, but he's the same old black-hearted villain. Charles Laughton has taken to the high seas once more, and altho he has numerous lines of colorful dialog and sneers and smirks with a will, he doesn't make your blood run cold as he did when bedeviling the crew of the Bounty.

As a pirate unwittingly selected by King William to protect his shipping from just such thieves and cutthroats as himself, Capt. Kidd has an opportunity to bedeck himselves in silks and satins, quietly dispose of his former mates who know just where the loot from previous days is hidden, and lay his greedy hands on some fabulous treasure intended for the king.

However, he reckoned without Mr. Randolph Scott, who also is reputed to be a former pirate whose career ended in Newgate prison but is actually Lord Blayne, son of one of Kidd's victims. Murder will out, and the nobleman escapes death miraculously, rescues a fair lady from an amorous rogue, and brings old debbil Kidd to the gallows.

The film is full of short and snappy ways of wiping out your enemies singly or in bunches, occasional gun play, a tepid love affair, and so much plotting, scheming, and assorted villainy that another death more or less doesn't matter much by the time it's half over.

In fact, it's pat and smug and not very convincing, in spite of Mr. Laughton's eye-rollings and pudgy swaggerings, and sanctimonious "God rests" over his numerous victims. Mr. Scott has a trying role, and even more trying costumes, and definitely does not look his best with his head wrapped up, pirate fashion. Miss Britton is a very genteel heroine, with nothing much to do but look distressed. Unless you're crazy over the skull and crossbones stuff, I doubt whether you'll be able to prevent a few yawns.

Complicated Comedy

Produced by Columbia, directed by Leslie Fenton, featuring Fred MacMurray, Marguerite Chapman, Akim Tamiroff, William Demarest, Rita Johnson, Harry Davenport, Douglass Dumbrille, Karolyn Grimes, Dewey Robinson, Hugh Prosser, Tom Moffatt, Herbert Evans, Frank Moran, George Chandler, and Charles Arnt. Presented at the Apollo.

This plot has as many complications as a hypochondriac's story of an operation, and there are times when it's just as wearing to follow.

It starts out innocently enough with Fred MacMurray and Bill Demarest diving happily into civilian clothes, their army pay in hand, all set to start a mink farm. They're picked up at the point of a gun and hauled into the presence of a literate and polite gangster, who refuses to be convinced that MacMurray is not one Francis Pemberton and demands $12,000 in payment of a gambling debt. He takes the boys' savings as a token payment, gently but firmly demanding more.

In an effort to correct this sad state of affairs, the pals call at Pemberton's home, where they are welcomed, after a fashion, and immediately become involved with a crotchety grandfather, a domineering uncle, a divorced wife, a Pemberton child, a pretty girl, a couple of detectives, and a number of more or less unimportant characters. Seems Pemberton is a heel and while the boys only intend to stick around long enough to collect their dough, they are soon up to their necks in trouble.

The cast is made up of able performers, with MacMurray, Demarest, and Akim Tamiroff turning out the best work, but the plot tries much too hard and is only occasionally amusing. It's supposed to be light comedy, but succeeds in being heavy handed and a bit monotonous.

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. George Miller, 64 W. Schiller st.]

THE QUESTION

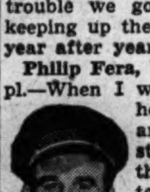
Should a child be taught that there is no Santa Claus?

WHERE ASKED

The Continental hotel.

THE ANSWERS

Miss Loretta Stafn, cashier, 2976 N. Ridgeway av.—The story of Santa Claus has been believed in for so long that it has lost the aspect of a lie. It is part and parcel of the Christmas tradition. The look in a child's eyes is worth all the trouble we go to in keeping up the Santa Claus legend year after year.

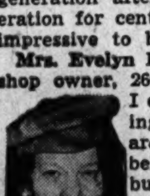


Philip Fera, bellhop, 1402 E. 66th pl.—When I was a kid I liked to hear about Santa Claus and see him in the stores. It was a big thrill to look forward to every year. Children should be taught to believe in him because it has been going on for years. Kids should believe in Santa until they are 10 or 12.

Michael A. Dolinyak, lawyer, 501 W. 118th st.—If there were no Santa Claus something would be lacking at Christmas time. Precedent proves that it hasn't hurt children very much when they get past the "waiting up for Santa" stage. To tear down the Santa myth is to shatter an age old tradition.

Miss Jean Bartel, singer in "The Desert Song," Los Angeles, Cal.—I was never taught to believe in Santa Claus, but my parents taught me the spirit of giving. I think it is better that way. A child doesn't have to suffer the disillusion of finding out it was all a hoax. If a child chooses to believe in Santa Claus, fine!

E. J. Hiegendorf, coal company executive, 6059 Kirkwood av.—Definitely not. There is something about the Christmas story and about Santa Claus that leaves an impression for life and to the advantage of a person. It has been carried on generation after generation for centuries and it is too impressive to be torn down now.



Mrs. Evelyn Rosenthal, sandwich shop owner, 2607 Milwaukee av.—I don't believe in fooling children. Children are happy when they believe in Santa Claus, but it is a big disappointment to them later to find it all a frame-up. It gives them the wrong impression. I believe a child should be taught early to face reality.

Tell Querying Child the Truth About St. Nick

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If you're in a questioning mood about the Santa Claus belief—or if your children are getting to the questioning age—you've probably read with personal interest some of our recent articles.

To be sure you already may know exactly what you're going to do about it now, when your child is just being initiated into the fairyland that is Christmas; later, when his first doubts dawn, or still later, when he asks you pointblank whether there really is a Santa Claus. But if you don't know, here are a few suggestions. And, what you decide to do will depend somewhat upon your idea of what constitutes truth and your attitude about fairy tales. There's no rule to be laid down.

To begin with, no one needs to start things by deliberately saying anything definite about Santa Claus. It's already in the air. A child absorbs Santa from the beginning of his life. There the old chap is—in the talk of other children, in picture books, in department stores in full costume, and in that marvelous old poem, "The Night Before Christmas."

To be sure, some of a child's grownups love to foster the myth, and when he or she asks, "How does Santa do this or that?" will tell him or her in fantastic made-up detail. Result: Great fun and magic and wonderment for the child, and a stilling of his momentary doubts. Personally I think this pushing of the belief is a mistake. Let them imagine, but don't force it. But many parents do so.

But then, when the crisis arises and a child asks pointblank: "Is there really a Santa Claus?" I believe you must tell the child the fact of the matter. For most children the realization that there is no Santa Claus seeps in gradually, minus shock. And it should. Certainly, I think it is unfair to enter into a conspiracy to prolong the belief in Santa past the pointblank question. This direct answer is one way of meeting the crisis.

Here is another: One mother I know always tells Santa as a story from the very first, and turns it into a jolly make-believe game, so that Santa isn't left out, and yet no disillusionment lies ahead. Santa Claus is a beautiful fairy tale, she tells the children, that people have loved for hundreds of years. Or Santa Claus is the spirit of Christmas—of merriment, of giving; and believing in Santa is a kind of Christmas game that every one of every age enjoys.

Teen Age Tip: Take Time Out for Hand Care

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

on the SOLID side

It's been a busy day for you, hasn't it? Besides your regular classwork, you stayed after chemistry lab. to wash out a rack of test tubes, you helped your mother with the supper dishes, and spent two hours this evening with your current Joe at a football bonfire with your hands jammed in your pockets because the weather'd turned cold. You're an active young gal with a lot on your hands and, by the way, with all that activity—just how do your hands look these days?

It takes daily care and thought to keep them lovely to look at and good to work with, so put a 15 minute a day for hand care interlude on your grooming schedule. For any high school gal, a daily care of the hands and fingernails consists simply of keeping them smooth with an emery board, scrubbing them with a brush, cleaning under them with something dull, such as an orange stick, and pushing back the cuticle with your finger covered with a towel every time you wash your hands.

Careful filing will help to prevent hangnails and a weekly nail massage with olive oil or cold cream, pushing back the cuticle gently with an orange stick, will improve the shape of the nail. Give a bit of thought to the natural shape of your hands and nails before shaping the nail with an emery board.

If your fingers are long and pointed, a long, oval nail usually is most attractive. And if your fingers are short and stubby, a semi-short nail with a rounded end is most flattering. Sharply pointed nails rarely are attractive or practical. Keep a small private bottle of hand lotion tucked away in your top drawer and give your hands the final softening finish before you leave for school in the morning and before you drop off to sleep at night.

Attractive, well groomed hands are important because they are something you simply cannot hide. A touch of lipstick or a pat of powder can work wonders to your face, but no amount of nail polish can touch up your hands if they are red and rough and the nails are ragged. You can make hand care a habit and, since a habit is hard to break, you'll have attractive hands all your life. You're a smart girl and a smooth one—so why not give yourself a good hand right now!

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Can you give me a recipe for fruit cake glaze and directions for using it?"

A simple fruit cake glaze is made by combining ½ cup sugar, ½ cup corn sirup, and ¼ cup water and cooking until the mixture thickens, but not long enough for it to spin a thread. Almost any kind of fruit pulp may be used to make a glaze. Combine 1 cup of fruit pulp with 1½ cups sugar and cook the mixture slowly to 240 degrees or until sticky. Spread the glaze over the tops and sides of the cake and press fruit or nuts into it. When the first coating dries, apply a second coating over the decorations. Glazing is usually done a week or two before the cake is to be used. After glazing, wrap fruit cakes lightly for storing.

"How should meat drippings be stored to keep them fresh?"

Meat drippings should be handled the same as other fats, that is, packed firmly in a tightly covered container and stored in a dark, cool place. Since fats which contain particles of food decompose rapidly, meat drippings should be used as soon as possible. If a large amount of drippings has accumulated, clarify it before storing. Heat the fat with an equal amount of water for a short time at a moderate temperature, then while hot strain it thru a cloth. When the strained mixture is cold the fat will be solid and can be removed from the water and stored.

"Should flour always be sifted before measuring?"

Yes, it should be sifted once before measuring because flour packs down in the container. Sift onto wax paper or a plate and then spoon the flour lightly into the measuring cup.

HELD AS FORGER AFTER DEATH OF CHICAGO WOMAN

Ex-Choir Singer Jailed in San Francisco

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 7 [Special]—Alfred L. Cline, ex-convict and one-time choir singer, was held in jail here on a forgery charge tonight while police investigated the sudden death of a wealthy widow he married last year.

Mrs. E. D. Krebs Cline

Alfred L. Cline

His arrest yesterday at the request of Chicago police marked the second time he has been held for inquiry into the deaths of associates in his past. Several of the persons who died suddenly were women who, shortly before, had made wills leaving him their property.

The Latest Death

The latest death was that of Mrs. Eva Delora Krebs Cline, 60, widow of Charles E. Krebs, a wealthy Chicago manufacturer who died in 1936. Cline and the widow were married in Chicago on May 26, 1944, and left there soon afterward.

She died on Nov. 29 in a hotel in Portland, Ore. Dr. A. A. Grossman signed a certificate that death resulted from a cerebral hemorrhage. Four days later Cline was registered in the Mark Twain hotel here. Police said he had obtained about $250,000 thru the sale of securities, had purchased automobiles for several women in San Francisco, and was living luxuriously.

Attorney Brings Charges

Following his arrest yesterday, Cline was held without charge until this afternoon when Gilbert Ryan of Chicago, attorney for the estate of the Chicago woman, arrived here by plane. Cline then was charged with forgery of securities valued at $1,000 which had belonged to the former Mrs. Krebs.

Cline served a two to five year sentence for forgery following his arrest in Denver in 1929 and several years later was sent to Folsom prison, in California, upon his conviction of drugging and robbing a Los Angeles business man. He was released from Folsom in February, 1943, only about a year before he was married to Mrs. Krebs.

In 1933, before he was sent to Folsom, Cline was held by Los Angeles authorities while they investigated the following deaths of persons with whom he had been associated.

His wife, Mrs. Bessie Van Sickle Cline, who died Sept. 26, 1933, apparently of a heart attack, leaving him $20,000.

Her Brother Dies

Her brother, Lucius Brandt McCreery, who died earlier the same year, presumably of a heart attack after drinking a glass of buttermilk with Cline.

The Rev. Ernest F. Jones, English evangelist, who died in 1932 while traveling with Cline, two days after making a will leaving Cline his estate of $11,000.

Mrs. Carrie May Porter, who died in 1931, presumably of a heart attack, while on a trip to Santa Cruze with Cline, leaving him her estate of $20,000.

Former Indiana Soldier Is Executed for Attack

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 7 (AP)—Alexander D. Butler, 23, former soldier at the New Castle army air base, was hanged today for rape of a 12 year old girl. The trap was sprung at 10:58 a. m. at the New Castle county workhouse. Two physicians pronounced Butler dead at 11:15 a. m. A jury of 12 summoned by Warden Elwood H. Wilson witnessed the execution. Butler, a native of South Bend, Ind., was convicted July 29.

HUNT MURDERER OF SHABBY MAN WHO HAD MONEY

Among his multiple jobs and acquaintances police yesterday sought clews to the murderer of Richard Oppedahl, 66, whose body was found yesterday morning with the head bashed in and the face and throat slashed in a one room cottage at the rear of 3416 Ozanam av.

To residents of the neighborhood, where he had lived for several years, Oppedahl was known as Richard Johnson. He dressed like a hobo but wore a $300 diamond ring and was known to carry from $1,000 to $1,500 in his wallet.

He worked as a sewer digger by day and as a watchman for a real estate firm at night. In his spare time he collected empty beer bottles which he returned for the deposit money. As a sideline he dealt in used cars.

Oppedahl apparently had been dead more than 24 hours when his body was found at 8 a. m. by a neighbor, Chris Winter, 3412 Ozanam av., who went to Oppedahl's cottage to get aid in starting his automobile.

STORE OFFICIAL FIGHTS GUNMAN, BUT LOSES $3,391

Forced to Open Safe in Heart of Gary

A pint-sized gunman held up Raymond Sprowl, 41, assistant manager, in Muir's Drug store at 521 Broadway, in the heart of Gary, yesterday and got away with $3,391.71. Sprowl was alone in the store, but scores of pedestrians and a stream of traffic went past during the half hour that the robbery required.

Sprowl, who lives at 236 Polk st., Gary, was opening the store when the gunman swaggered in, pushed a .32 caliber revolver into the assistant manager's ribs, marched him to the rear, and there tied him up with his pharmacist's coat.

Sends Gunman Sprawling

Sprowl is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs about 130 pounds. The robber was only 5 feet 5 inches, but he matched Sprowl in weight. Sprowl got his hands free and punched.

A right to the jaw sent the gunman sprawling before he could reach his revolver, now in his pocket. Sprowl dived on top and they threshed around.

"I'll shoot you, so help me," cried the gunman. Sprowl took a firmer grip.

Forces Him to Open Safe

Sprowl lost his glasses, which shattered on the floor. The robber bit Sprowl's hand, banged his head against the wall, and managed to pull out the revolver.

Sprowl was compelled to open the safe. The robber took out five bags of coins and an envelope filled with currency, which he piled in a wooden box after removing the spray guns it contained.

The robber compelled Sprowl to open the back door and then tied him up again. He heard an automobile start up in the alley and five minutes later had freed himself again, but it was too late for police to pick up the gunman's trail.

Trial of Sailor on Rape Charge Is Set for Dec. 12

Judge Ralph J. Dady in the Lake county Circuit court in Waukegan yesterday set Dec. 12 for the trial of Ernest H. Pugh, 18, of 1610 N. Mason av., Chicago, a sailor at Great Lakes Naval Training center, on a charge of rape. Pugh is accused of raping a 20 year old student nurse in Waukegan last Aug. 10. He was arrested by Oak Park police for an attempted attack on a 56 year old woman and was turned over to Lake county authorities. A defense plea of insanity will be made, Pugh's attorney, Cecil L. Cass, said.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 8—Eli Whitney Born

THIS is the 180th anniversary of the birth of Eli Whitney, who by his invention of the cotton gin changed the history of the United States and played an unwitting part in establishing slavery in the south.

In the winter of 1792-'93, young Whitney, a New Englander, was visiting in Georgia. He learned in conversation that one of the country's great problems was the difficulty of cleaning and preparing for market the only kind of cotton that, in large areas of the south, could be successfully grown in quantity.

Whitney was told there was a crying need for a machine that would separate the cotton from its seed. When done by hand, this was so slow that it took a worker a whole day to get a pound of cleaned cotton.

Then Whitney, whose interest in machinery was intense, went to work. He produced in a few weeks a device whose principal feature was a wooden cylinder encircled by thin spikes set half an inch apart. There was also a grid with bars so close together that the seeds could not pass. When the cylinder was revolved by hand, the spikes pulled the cotton thru.

The effect of the cotton gin on the economy of the United States and of the world is indicated by the contrast between the quantities of cotton exported in 1792 and in 1800. In the former year, the figure was 138,328 pounds, in the latter it was 17,790,000 pounds. King Cotton's long reign was beginning.

Slavery, an unprofitable and dying custom, almost immediately became an important system. Vast man power could be utilized profitably in the large scale cultivation of cotton.

Hyman Furst, 42, of 17 E. Delaware pl., owner of a collection agency at 105 W. Monroe st., was booked by police yesterday on a charge of rape and will get a hearing in Felony court Monday.

Furst was arrested on the complaint of the 24 year old wife of an overseas soldier, who said she became dazed after having two drinks with him in a near north side cocktail lounge last Friday evening. The next she knew, she told police, she was in Furst's apartment.

The woman said she was attacked by Furst and by another man while in the apartment. She finally regained her clothing from Furst, she declared, and got away.

Halversen, who escaped from Jefferson Barracks, Mo., in November, was seized in the woman's apartment shortly after her body was found at the rear of 1017 Wilson av. He admitted striking her when she resisted his advances, police said.

KIDNAPED BABY'S FATHER IS TOLD BABY WILL DIE

Chelsea, Mass., Dec. 7 (AP).—A mysterious telephone caller tonight notified the parents of 6-months-old Ronald Carlan, kidnaped 10 days ago, that they would get their baby "back in a box" because they had notified police of an earlier call arranging for the payment of ransom.

Navy man James J. Carlan, who has never seen his missing baby, told police he answered the phone and heard a man's voice say, "Are you the kid's father?" When he answered in the affirmative, the man said: "Tell your double-crossing wife that the deal's off because she tipped off the police. Tell her you'll get your baby back in a box." Then the caller hung up.

Earlier in the evening Mrs. Carlan received a telephone call in which the caller demanded a ransom of "thousands of dollars" and arranged for her to appear at a Boston theater every day between the hours of 1 and 4 p. m., dressed in a white hat, white dress, white shoes, and black hat. He had told her that a contact man would meet her there.

WILMAN INCREASES LEAD IN PIN TOURNEY

BIG 10 RETURNS TRACK MEET TO PRE-WAR BASIS

Gives O. K. to New Tribune Award

BY WILFRID SMITH

The directors of athletics and faculty men of the Western conference yesterday approved the suggestion of the track coaches that the Big Ten meets revert to the pre-war program of two days. This was the first official action of the meetings in the Sherman hotel planned to return conference athletics to peace time conditions.

The indoor conference track meet will be held March 8 and 9 at the University of Chicago. The outdoor games, for the third consecutive year, will be held at Illinois. The dates are May 31 and June 1.

Other conference dates sanctioned yesterday are: Tennis, May 30, 31, and June 1 at Northwestern; swimming, March 8 and 9 at Minnesota; wrestling, March 8 and 9 at Illinois, and golf, May 31 and June 1 at Minnesota.

Approve Basketball Award

The conference yesterday approved a most valuable basketball player award by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which will be identical with the football award made annually by THE TRIBUNE since 1924. Each basketball squad will elect its most valuable player at the end of the conference campaign. A committee of coaches and officials then will name the most valuable player in the Big Ten.

The conference also approved filming the highlights of conference football.

The faculty representatives also approved the directors' proposal to recognize championships in those sports in which points are not tabulated such as track and swimming. In football, for example, tie games now will count a half point and games won will be scored a point thus creating a tabulation on which an official award will be made. As on all faculty committee action member schools have 60 days in which to voice disapproval.

The sportsmanship proposition, submitted by John Stichnoth of Iowa, which would create a panel of student representatives for discussion of sportsmanship at conference games was heartily endorsed by the faculty committee. Conference medals and trophies now will be paid for by the commissioner's office. The faculty committee also confirmed mail ballots taken this summer which again denied post-season football games and clarified permission of athletes to compete on nonconference teams during the summer or holiday periods.

Kimpton Heads Faculty

This is the 126th meeting of the conference, now in its 50th year and Dean Lawrence A. Kimpton of Chicago was chosen as chairman of the faculty committee for next year. Prof. Frank Richart of Illinois continues as secretary.

The Central Collegiate conference yesterday decided to resume its cross-country meet which will be held at Drake university next Nov. 16. The indoor Central collegiate track meet will be held March 9 at Michigan State and the outdoor games are scheduled June 8 at Marquette university. The conference swimming meet is set for March 8 and 9 at Michigan State.

Minneapolis and Milwaukee are seeking the National Collegiate track meet which probably will be held June 21 and 22.

The directors and faculty men met last night at dinner in the University club. The informal discussions will be continued this morning. The executive meeting of the faculty committee will start at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the University club.

Big Leaguers Invade Loop to Match Wits

BY EDWARD BURNS

Major league magnates, a fair scattering of employed ball players, managers, and coaches and a few droves of receptive free agents will be on display in Palmer House beginning this morning and milling on and on thru next Wednesday. The major league convention does not open formally till Monday but there was a great surge in this direction following the breakup of the minor league convention in Columbus, O.

President Will Harridge of the American league was the lone official of the big three—Harridge, Ford Frick, president of the National league, and Commissioner A. B. Chandler—to come directly to Chicago, but virtually all club presidents and other ranking officials are on hand for the warmup sessions. Frick went from Columbus to his native Indiana to visit relatives and Chandler went to Cincinnati, where he is arranging the furniture in his new headquarters.

They'll Reply to Minors

The members of the big three will have some neat shadow boxing and perhaps a bit of slugging to do in the several sessions here next week, both while the leagues are in separate conclave and in the joint meeting before the commissioner Thursday. Among other things, a lot of minor leaguers must be slapped on the wrist as a result of resolutions passed in Columbus.

One of the things to be passed upon is the ambitions of the Pacific Coast to become a major league. Some of the strongest figures in the circuit are reported to be concerned anent the reaction from this innocent bit of glamorizing of the far west. It is said the press of the Pacific coast, which includes some of the grandest sectional boosters extant, has failed to go for the idea.

Happy's Not So Happy

Almost the entire grist of the minor league deliberations in Columbus, some of it frankly irritating to Commissioner Chandler, will be up for approval in the Chicago sessions. There may even be some fireworks, for the commissioner has his dander up and is honing for a showdown before the sniping proceeds any farther.

The night baseball thing is going to bring heated debate, with the two St. Louis clubs and the Washington Senators leading the field for unrestricted lamp play.

APPROVE COAST BID

Columbus, O., Dec. 7 (AP)—The most controversial minor league meeting in years wound up today by approving a law barring all player bonuses in baseball and granting permission for the Pacific Coast to move up into the big leagues, if it can get the majors' okay.

Both of today's actions must be seconded by the major leagues at their get-together in Chicago next week. But, just as it was here, the highlight of next week's sessions probably will be the fight between minor league baseball men and commissioner, A. B. Chandler.

Vote, 14-2 Against Bonus

The minor league presidents, who refused yesterday to change their own bonus regulations which Chandler ruled "illegal and unfair," voted 14 to 2 today to have all baseball—majors and minors alike—wipe out extra-curricular payments to players.

The Pacific Coast circuit was given unanimous permission to retain its membership in the minors' National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues pending decision next week on its bid to break the 40 year exclusive major league circle formed by the American and National.

First Pin Boys Strike—Then Bowlers Go Home

A strike of pin boys last night at the Neva Bowling alleys, 2362 N. Neva av., forced cancellation of the Rutherford-Galewood Community league when a request for ten cents extra from each bowler was turned down. According to Dan Gullickson, manager of the alleys, the pin boys agreed to return to work after a 45 minute delay but the bowlers went on strike—home.

O'Connor Says He's Going to Like Sox Job

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Leslie O'Connor, who as of Dec. 15 will become general manager of the White Sox, returned yesterday from the minor leagues jamboree in Columbus fully convinced he is going to like the job.

Altho 25 years at a desk in the baseball commissioner's office hardly fitted him for the more rigorous duties of an executive, O'Connor discovered he was as good as the next man when it came to staying on his feet.

And with the help of Manager Jim Dykes and Harry Grabiner, who is stepping down, O'Connor got some first hand experience in the ivory market.

They Did Some Business

At Columbus the Sox shipped Johnny Humphries to the Phillies, arranged a working agreement with the Milwaukee Brewers, took on a head scout in the person of Patsy Rourke and acquired a rookie pitcher named Frank Martin from the Utica, N. Y. club.

Supposedly the Sox also arranged, for future announcement, the transfer of some of their excess ivory to minor league jobs and what is more important, they didn't shut the door on the scheme by which they may acquire Jeff Heath, the outfielder who wants to get away from the Cleveland club. The club feels the same way about Heath but for more than two season's hasn't been able to make up its mind what he's worth, if anything.

Sox Still Interested

"We'll talk with them again next week if Heath remains available," said O'Connor, but the way in which he said it indicated he didn't have much expectation of the Sox being able to get a definite proposition from the Cleveland officials.

There was some belief that the Cleveland club's present indecision in the Heath case is because of rumored possibilities of the sale of the club. Gentlemen who own important chunks of stock in the club insist they know nothing of a sale.

PICARD PACES MIAMI MEET AT HALFWAY MARK

Miami, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP)—Henry Picard hit the comeback trail today after a six month layoff by shooting a three under par 67 to take the lead at the halfway point in the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament.

The Cleveland veteran's 136 total led the defending champion, E. J. [Dutch] Harrison, by a single stroke at the end of the second round. Frank Stranahan, Toledo, O., amateur, was tied for third at 138 with Gib Sellers, who equaled the course record for the back nine with a 30.

Jim Foulis, La Grange, Ill., pro, had a 139 total and fourth position.

JAKE LAMOTTA STOPS PARHAM IN SIXTH ROUND

Stadium Loser Is Down 10 Times

Fight Decisions

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

At Chicago Stadium—Jake Lamotta stopped Charley Parham [6]; Joey Lamotta beat Art Brown [10]; Gene Roberts and Herman Mills [drew] [5]; Red Grant beat Butch Maxwell [5]; Jack Hill stopped Art Saxell [5]; Bob Satterfield knocked out Collins Brown [1].

At New York—George Horne beat Artie Levine [10].

BY FRANK MASTRO

Jake Lamotta, foremost contender for Tony Zale's middleweight championship, stopped Charley Parham, pint sized Milwaukee welterweight, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 round bout which headed the final 1945 boxing show in Chicago Stadium last night.

The show attracted 7,647 paying customers, who contributed to a gross gate of $33,800.

Parham didn't have a chance against his big opponent and the engagement was the poorest of an otherwise interesting program. Jake might have ended the uneven match sooner if it hadn't been for the threat Parham carried in his wild lefts and rights, some of which landed.

Loser Down 10 Times

Jake had little difficulty winning every round, altho he had to shorten his punches in order to land because of Parham's shell-like crouch and back pedaling tactics.

Parham gave clear indication he was overmatched from the start. Parham was down 10 times, twice each in the second, fourth, and sixth rounds; once in the third, and three times in the fifth. Only four of the knockdowns were the result of punches. Referee Dave Miller finally stopped it after 59 seconds of the last round amid mingled boos and cheers.

Jake weighed 160 pounds and Parham, 154.

Joey Lamotta, 19 year old brother of Jake, was awarded a decision over Art Brown, Chicago welterweight, in a fierce 10 round semi-windup. The unanimous verdict of referee Frank Sikora and Judges William O'Connell and Louis Straka was booed by the crowd.

That's 28 for Joey

Joey, in scoring his 28th victory in 30 fights, started hostilities by flooring Brown for no count in the first round and then slugged him to the canvas twice in the second for nine counts. Joey added to his lead in the third, but was unable to register another knockdown in this or any subsequent round.

Robert Satterfield, former city Golden Gloves champion, knocked out Collins Browns, also a Golden Gloves product, in 1:14 of the first round of a scheduled 10 rounder which followed the main event.

I. I. A. C. CHIEFS VOTE TO PERMIT SUMMER BALL

The Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference yesterday relaxed its athletic code to permit baseball players to play professionally during the summer months without jeopardizing their eligibility in any collegiate sport.

The action was taken after a three year survey from which the conference said it concluded that numerous athletes could help finance their college studies by playing professional baseball.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Joe Wilman, the ex-soldier from Berwyn who is one of the best home grown products in Chicago ten pin history, yesterday refused to be budged out of the lead in the fifth annual All-Star tournament which goes into its penultimate day this morning on the smoothly tailored lanes of the Auditorium Service Men's center under the auspices of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

The baldish, bespectacled Wilman, who took Thursday's opening lead in the big show which closes tomorrow, wound up yesterday's chores with a total pin match game record of 6,819 and a Petersen point system score of 161.19. In the 32 games thus far rolled, he has won 25 and lost only seven. Thus, Joe, last year's runner-up for the championship, goes into the third quarter of the run for $2,000 and the national match game title the leader on every count.

Andy Varipapa Second

Much to the amusement of the big crowd, Joe's nearest rival going into today's third drill, beginning at 11:30 a. m., was none other than Andrew Varipapa, the man of a thousand grimaces and gestures, from Hempstead, N. Y. Andy, usually considered a trick shot impresario, has been as stubborn as former Pvt. Wilman in refusing to slow the swift pace at which the field has been moving since the nine day marathon began a week ago this morning.

Andy hasn't as handsome a games-won-and-lost mark as Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., the wiry master who has won the All-Star crown twice, and Walter Ward of Detroit, Mich. They have hit 20—12 over the 32 game stretch, but Andy, in spite of winning only 17 in his 32, has piled up pinnage running to 6,761 in accumulating 154.11 points. In the space between that figure and Wilman's 161.19 lies the real story of the second day. Joe had come into yesterday with a mere two points plus margin over Andrew. Now Wilman moves along with a 7 point—eight pin swing on the old exhibitionist.

Gibson, Day Move Up

This is not to say that Wilman and Varipapa have taken charge of the show. There are still the small matters of today's and tomorrow's assignments.

The same program as has obtained the last two days will continue today and tomorrow. Squads will begin rolling their four game matches at 11:30 a. m., 12:50 p. m., 2:10 p. m., 3:30 p. m., 5:40 p. m., 7 p. m., 8:20 p. m., and 9:40 p. m.

LONDON IN LINE FOR OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1948

National A.A.U. Meeting Opens in Richmond

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7 (AP)—Amateur athletes of the post-war world not only must fend off the private promoter but also must avoid the temptations of governments and clubs seeking political gain, Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the U. S. A. Sports federation told delegates to the 57th annual A. A. U. convention today.

"I have just returned from Europe where plans for the 1948 Olympic games were discussed, Brundage said. "London, which had been awarded the 1944 games before World War II. started, likely will be the site and a mail poll of the international Olympic committee now is being taken."

Question of Participation

On the touchy question of what countries would be eligible for Olympic competition he said that "all countries that have a national Olympic committee and those that have been accepted into the comity of nations" would be permitted to participate.

Later, in an interview, he said that Germany and Japan were not now in the comity of nations and that Russia had no national Olympic committee. Brundage also said the Pan-American games probably would not be held until 1950 because of political unrest in various South American countries.

Boston May Get Boxing Meet

Brundage's address was the highlight of the opening sessions of the convention and was preceded by committee meetings in which it was recommended that the national senior boxing champions be decided in Boston, Mass., on April 8 and 9 and that men's basketball tournament be run off in Denver, Colo., the week of March 17. All recommendations must be approved by the convention as a whole before becoming final.

Recommendations for sites of the much sought after men's and women's swimming competitions were delayed until later when the committee became involved today in a debate over rules interpretation. Other recommendations:

Revival of a pair of intrastate basketball rivalries matching Marquette with the University of Wisconsin in Madison and Western Michigan with Michigan in Ann Arbor headline tonight's midwestern basketball program. Other Western conference teams in action include Illinois, host to Great Lakes; Iowa, which may find Denver its first real test in three games in a contest in Iowa City; Indiana, booked against Washington university of St. Louis, Mo., in Bloomington; Minnesota, which opposes Nebraska in the Gopher field house; Ohio State, playing Pittsburgh in Columbus, and Purdue, only conference team scheduled away from home, which will play the University of Louisville in the Kentucky city.

Two colleges which in pre-war days produced somt of the section's top ranking quintets will return to regular competition tonight when Loyola university meets the American College of Physical Education in the Loyola gymnasium and Bradley Tech entertains Augustana of Rock Island in Peoria. It will be Bradley's first major sports contest since March, 1943, while Loyola is returning to regular competition under the direction of Coach Tom Haggerty after playing an informal schedule last season.

The Loyola team, like its schedule, still is pretty much of an unknow quantity. Individuals on whom Haggerty will rely greatly are Jack Dwan and Bernie Carmen, who played on the 1942-'43 team before joining the army, Bob Azar, Tom McCue, Gene McKeough, and Tony Phillips.

Name Behr Athletic Director of Illinois A. C.

Johnny Behr, who has been assistant manager of the Illinois Athletic club since his discharge from the army a few months ago, was appointed director of athletics of the club yesterday. Behr will take over his new duties tomorrow and will start immediately to organize athletic teams to represent the club.

LOOP CHURCH'S 70TH BIRTHDAY TO BE MARKED

Long History of Central Congregation Recalled

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Chicago's loop possesses three distinctive religious organizations, each of which may be regarded as unique in its own way. These are Central church, Studebaker theater; Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, and First Methodist church, Chicago temple. The last named, with its skyscraper structure and cross-mounted steeple, chimes, and crowded services, is the oldest and possibly the most spectacular.

But Central church, which celebrates its 70th birthday tomorrow, still carries on the atmosphere of breadth, ambition, and fraternalism of the 1870s when the city built its way back after the great fire. The church sprang full-blown out of another calamity. Prof. David Swing had sadly left Chicago in 1874 after his vindication in a heresy trial. He had preached to crowded congregations of Fourth Presbyterian church in old McVickers theater following the fire.

Citizens Bring Him Back

The growing, friendly city felt his loss. A spontaneous movement to bring him back got under way, and 50 citizens of various faiths each guaranteed $1,000 for his support if he would return to his teaching and preaching. He came back in 1875 and Central church was founded. A broad 96 word creed was adopted. For five years McVickers theater was too small. Then citizens built Central music hall as Dr. Swing's pulpit on Sunday mornings when an average of 3,000 persons attended.

Dr. Swing died in 1894. His successor was Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, who, after five years, was called to Dr. Henry Ward Beecher's former pulpit in Brooklyn, N. Y. Then came Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, of whom Peter Clark MacFarlane wrote: "He is the sweating, striving, conquering spirit of Chicago. He is Chicago, religiously, morally, artistically considered."

Pioneer Radio Preacher

Dr. Frederick F. Shannon followed Dr. Gunsaulus when the latter devoted his entire time to the presidency of Armour Institute of Technology [now Illinois Institute of Technology] which he had founded. Dr. Shannon was a pioneer radio preacher of the country. On his retirement in 1939, the present minister, Dr. Harold Ruopp, was called from the chair of the history and art of preaching at Boston University school of theology.

Tomorrow's anniversary preacher will be Dr. Albert Edward Day of Pasadena, Cal.

STASSEN URGES CONFERENCE ON ECONOMIC ILLS

Advises 'Average' Wage Increases

BY CHARLES GOTTHART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Dec. 7—Suggestions for a full scale conference to solve current economic problems and for a world campaign to "sell" American ideals and the private enterprise system were made tonight at a dinner concluding the 50th anniversary meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Harold E. Stassen

Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor and Republican Presidential aspirant, urged President Truman to call a "real" economic conference of business, labor, and agriculture, "our ablest economists," and representatives of both major political parties.

He said the conference should recommend average wage increases, larger unemployment compensation, and deal with other phases of a security program.

Assails Lack of Policy

"The real cause of the current wave of strikes is the lack of an accepted national policy on economic problems," said Stassen. "It is possible that the administration has had a policy that it has not directly revealed of squeezing out the profits of business.

"If that is the attempt it can only result in injury to the entire economic system and in extreme industrial strife."

In the conference labor would be asked to terminate all strikes, renew the no-strike pledge, and begin producing the goods needed to end the threat of disastrous inflation, he said.

Robert R. Wason of New York, president of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, Inc., manufacturer of heavy industrial equipment, who was elected president of the N. A. M. at the concluding session of the Congress of American Industry, excoriated "too many of those who today determine and administer government policy," blaming them for inflation.

Robert R. Wason

"They say that only the government stands between the public and inflation," he said. "They should say that primarily it is government policy, past and present, that is responsible for the inflation we have up to now and the danger of more inflation that impends."

America Held a Threat

H. W. Prentis Jr., president of Armstrong Cork company and past president of the N. A. M., advocated the program to "sell" America to the world. Asserting the country has been lax in promoting an understanding of the ideals for which this country went to war, he said:

"Millions of people thruout Europe today see us as a potential threat. Millions who refuse to accept the teaching of Russian economics are equally unwilling to look to America for guidance.

"We must come to the intellectual rescue of these people. We have just what they are looking for—politically, materially, culturally, and spiritually. We must renew our own faith in our free institutions that undoubtedly has been shaken by government planning during the war and the persistent assault on our system by collectivists."

Fleet Adm. King also addressed the dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Earlier, Sen. Butler [R., Neb.] said he will introduce a bill in congress tomorrow to revolutionize federal budgetary procedure and end the "complicated arithmetic of government." Butler was co-sponsor of a bill signed by President Truman yesterday ending the immunity to congressional control previously held by scores of government corporations.

Goals Set by Organization

His project fitted into the general pattern of N. A. M. goals for a federal "atmosphere of recovery and reconversion" thru reduced taxes and government expenditures, a balanced budget, and labor legislation to end what the manufacturers consider New Deal bias in favor of the unions.

Asserting reduced taxes could come only thru lowering government operating costs, Butler said his bill would discontinue permanent appropriations and place the year's entire appropriations in a single bill so that congress would have more control over costs.

One N. A. M. resolution indorsed the position taken by management in the recent labor-management conference on "coercive and collusive labor practices, responsibility for adherence to collective bargaining agreements, equal treatment of labor and management under the law, and fact-finding panels." It recommended legislation to carry out the program.

Another resolution demanded balancing of the federal budget not later than the 1947-'48 fiscal year and modification of tax rates to encourage peak production and maximum employment.

Roswell Magill, New York lawyer and chairman of the committee on post-war tax policy, financed by Falk Foundation, said taxes on individual income brackets should start at no less than 15 per cent for some time, and that present exemptions of $500 should not be increased.

Aurora, Elgin Plan Is Filed; Stock Left Out

A plan for reorganization of the bankrupt Chicago, Aurora, and Elgin railroad was filed with Judge John J. Barnes in United States District court yesterday by Atty. Arthur L. Schwartz, trustee of the road. A hearing was set for Dec. 18.

Formation of a new corporation was proposed in the plan, with participation limited to present holders of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due April 15, 1941, and first and refunding 6 per cent mortgage bonds due Jan. 1, 1951. This would eliminate holders of 7,460 shares of cumulative preferred stock and 95,000 shares of $1 par common stock, and all general creditors.

Only Common Stock Provided

Capitalization would consist entirely of common stock, with 500,000 shares authorized and 471,924 issued.

For each $1,000 of unpaid principal and interest holders of the 5 per cent bonds would receive participation trust certificates for 257 shares of the new stock. Holders of the 6 per cent bonds would receive 100 shares for each $1,000. Only $142,000 of the 5s are in the hands of the public, but $4,354,300 of the 6s are outstanding. Both figures are principal amounts. Interest has not been paid since 1932.

The certificates would be replaced with stock after the expiration of a voting trust of three members which would operate the new company and vote the stock for three years unless the time were extended or shortened by these trustees. When they withdrew, the stockholders would elect five directors, who in turn would select the officers.

Places Top Value at 2 Million

The plan also provided for establishment of a land trust to supervise the disposal of 37 parcels of real estate valued at approximately $350,000, with proceeds distributed to the bondholders.

Ben Copple, attorney for Schwartz, said he expected to establish at court hearings that the value of the line was 2 million dollars or less. Copple also said $205,000 of preferred claims would be waived, adjusted, or paid in cash. Total claims were approximately 18 millions.

In receivership since 1932, the road was placed in bankruptcy last May on the petition of three stockholders, Ray T. Haas, Charles Lueck, and Anna E. Simons.

URGES CLOSING 7 U. S. MAGNESIUM PRODUCING UNITS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The surplus property administration recommended today that 7 of 13 government owned magnesium plants be taken out of production. It said the other six should be disposed of "on condition that they be kept available for magnesium production even tho they engage in the production of other materials."

SPA said in a report to congress the country's privately owned plants can produce sufficient magnesium to meet estimated consumption in the next few years.

The government's investment in the 13 federally owned plants is 370 million dollars and the plants represent 90 per cent of the country's total magnesium producing capacity of 293,000 tons a year, said SPA.

The seven plants covered by the recommendation, and their cost to the government, are:

Basic Magnesium at Las Vegas and Gabbs, Nev., $132,700,000; Dow plant at Ludington, and Marysville, Mich., $39,900,000; International plant at Austin, Tex., $18,800,000; Permanente plant at Manteca, Cal., $6,200,000; Amco plant at Wingdale, N. Y., $7,100,000; Ford Motor company magnesium plant at Dearborn, Mich., $10,500,000; and the Mathieson plant at Lake Charles, La., $48,800,000.

20 Million Dollars' Credit Made Available to Mexico

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The Export-Import bank today announced it had signed a loan agreement with Mexico providing a credit of 20 million dollars to assist in financing purchases of equipment and services in the United States. The interest rate is 4 per cent.

NEW WURLITZER ITEMS

Are details available regarding Rudolph Wurlitzer company's plans to diversify its products?—C. G.

New products to be added to the Wurlitzer line include a soft drink dispensing machine and an electronic organ known as the orgatron, all rights for the manufacture of which were purchased a few months ago from the Everett Piano company. Preparations are being made for their introduction in 1946.

Wurlitzer's regular products include automatic phonographs [juke boxes], pianos, and accordions. Manufacture of these items, suspended during the company's 100 per cent conversion to war work, is being resumed, and they are expected to be ready for the market shortly. Efforts will be made to obtain more satisfactory ceiling prices on pianos. On juke boxes there are no OPA restrictions. The company's seven retail stores in Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania, sell all types of musical instruments and radios.

In the fiscal year ended last March 31 Wurlitzer's profit was equal to $1.61 a share on 819,146 shares; and in earlier years, as adjusted for a 100 per cent dividend in stock: 1944, $1.13; 1943, 82 cents; 1942, 75 cents; 1941, $1.24; 1940, $1.19; 1939, 90 cents; 1938, $2.42. The interim report for six months ended last Sept. 30 showed share earnings of 45 cents. Cash dividends in 1945 have totaled 85 cents a share. Net working capital last March 31 was $8,865,000. There was no funded debt.

PROFIT CASHING FAILS TO HALT RISE IN STOCKS

Rails, Amusements Especially Strong

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Altho many stocks declined on profit cashing, renewed strength of selected rails, motors, amusements, and specialties today enabled the market to post another average price peak for nearly 15 years. Gains of fractions to 3 points were well distributed thru the list. Transfers of 2,050,000 shares compared with 2,290,000 yesterday.

The belief that labor difficulties soon may be overcome in the automotive and steel fields stimulated buying, as did inflation views and dividend prospects. Expanding traffic aided carriers. Big box office receipts buoyed the moving picture group. Accounts were trimmed in a number of cases because of the thought that the long advance made the list vulnerable to a sizable reaction.

Radio Spurts to New Peak

The Associated Press 60 stock average rose 0.3 to 76.7, a top since April 13, 1931. The industrials equaled their high of March 9, 1937. The rails were at a top since March 17, 1937.

Among 162 issues at new highs were New York Central, General Motors, Packard, Youngstown Sheet, Paramount Pictures, R-K-O, Twentieth Century-Fox, and Shamrock Oil.

Radio corporation climbed in the final few minutes to close up 1⅞ at a high of 18¾.

On the Curb, Valspar soared 10¼ points. Omission of a dividend dropped American Hard Rubber 2¼. Turnover was 1,090,000 shares against 1,190,000 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS CLIMB

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Gains of fractions to more than 4 points in secondary rails highlighted general advances in domestic issues in a slightly more active bond market today. Monon 6s of 1947 advanced 6 points and the 5s and 4s made 4 point advances. Missouri-Pacific general 4s closed at 64¾ for a 4 point gain and the convertible 5½s at 45⅞ were up 3.

Other carrier gainers of fractions to more than a point included the heavily traded St. Paul adjustment 5s and convertible 4½s, Alton 3s, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s assented, Florida East Coast 5s, Northern Pacific 4s, Lehigh Valley 5s, and Rock Island convertible 4½s.

Industrials and utilities moved in a narrow range.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN

Gains outnumbered losses on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in turnover of 60,000 shares. More active issues included Domestic Industries and Chicago corporation, each up ⅛; Kellogg Switchboard, up ⅜, and Commonwealth Edison and Admiral, each unchanged. Domestic Industries and Kellogg were among nine stocks at new highs.

HOGS REBOUND TO CEILING THO SUPPLIES GAIN

The market for hogs swung widely yesterday at the stock yards on the second heaviest Friday receipts since January. Large buying orders arrived after the early 10 to 20 cent price slump and first losses were erased in lively bidding. Final sales were steady with the Thursday prices and the top returned to the $14.85 a hundred pounds ceiling. The average declined 5 cents to $14.65.

Arrivals in Chicago totaled 24,000 head, including direct shipments to packers, an increase of 36 per cent over Friday last week and a slight gain over a year ago.

Action was brisk in other meat animals, but no price changes occurred.

Illinois' Jobs and Pay Rolls Dip in Month

Employment in Illinois declined 0.5 per cent and pay rolls 1.4 per cent between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15, the Illinois department of labor reported yesterday. The figures reflect contradictory trends—decreases of 1.8 and 2.7 per cent in manufacturing and increases of 2.9 and 2.8 per cent in nonmanufacturing.

The Chicago area and state trends were similar except that total employment in Chicago increased 0.8 per cent. Area pay rolls were down 1.2 per cent. Manufacturing employment and pay rolls decreased 0.3 and 2.2 per cent and nonmanufacturing indices rose 3.0 and 1.7.

Strikes Cause Declines

Declines in manufacturing were attributed to three factors, principally the strikes which occurred in farm implement and printing plants, petroleum refineries, and various types of metal working establishments. The others were the seasonal employment decline in the fruit and vegetable canning industry and more war job layoffs.

These declines were offset partly by increased employment in the leather goods, textile, clothing, and paper goods industries.

The increases in nonmanufacturing lines were accounted for principally by hiring for the Christmas shopping season by the wholesale and retail trade group.

Averages Below War Peaks

Robert L. Gordon, Illinois state labor director, said weekly earnings in manufacturing averaged $45.24—$50.59 for men and $30.81 for women. Men's earnings averaged nearly $6 less than their war time peak in March and women's pay decreased more than $4.

In nonmanufacturing establishments the weekly average was $53.01 for men and $21.39 for women. Gordon said part time working, particularly by women, caused a tendency toward these lower averages.

ARMOUR ORDERS $3.50 DIVIDEND ON SENIOR STOCK

Armour & Co. directors yesterday declared a dividend of $3.50 a share on the $6 prior preferred stock, payable Jan. 9 and applicable to arrears amounting to $30 a share. A dividend of $1.50 ordered last month on the shares is payable Jan. 2. Payments in 1945 amounted to $6.

National Container corporation declared an extra dividend of 10 per cent payable in common stock. The management expects to continue its quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the increased stock.

Twin Coach company declared a dividend payable in Divco corporation common stock at the rate of one share for each 50 Twin Coach common shares held. The most recent cash payment was 50 cents last Dec. 23, the only distribution in 1944.

RULES SOY BEAN BUTTER TAXABLE AS SUBSTITUTE

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 7 (AP)—Soy bean butter is taxable as a dairy butter substitute, Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet ruled today in a suit brought by Howard O. Butler, Cedar Lake, Mich., soy products manufacturer, to prevent collection of the tax.

Butler contended his product was not a butter substitute, but Judge Moinet held it had the color, texture, flavor, and general appearance of dairy butter and was produced in imitation of butter. It was estimated that Butler's tax would amount to $3,000 weekly, or a total in back taxes of about $150,000.

U. S. REVERSES ITS POSITION ON PULLMAN SALE

Backed Acquisition by Rails Earlier

BY THOMAS FURLONG

With the filing of a new government brief in the federal court in Philadelphia the anti-trust case against Pullman, Inc., has taken a new turn.

The government opposes in its last brief the sale to the railroads as a group of Pullman company, service operating subsidiary of Pullman, Inc. This reverses a position taken by government attorneys in court hearings earlier this year when they recommended that Pullman, Inc., be given the widest latitude in negotiating a sale to the railroads.

Since that time three other groups have emerged as rival bidders to the railroads. Among the new contestants is a group headed by Otis & Co., Cleveland, for whom Thurman Arnold, former chief of the government anti-trust division, is counsel. Arnold headed the anti-trust unit when the Pullman case was started.

All Bids Are Criticized

The brief outlining the new position was filed last Monday, but its contents were not disclosed publicly until Thursday. The brief criticized all the bids that have been submitted to the court for the purchase of the service company, but the severest words were directed at the railroad proposal.

The government attorneys said acceptance of the railroad bid would "substitute a new monopoly for the one now condemned by the court; eliminate all competition between railroads as to both service and type of facilities; perpetuate the existing manufacturing monopoly; eliminate the car pool; give the railroads additional monopoly on a nation-wide system of transportation, and result in discrimination against weaker roads."

At a hearing last March 19 Judge John Biggs Jr., one of the presiding judges, asked Fowler Hamilton, assistant attorney general, if it was the government opinion that Pullman company could be sold to any group not tied in closely with the Pullman interests.

How It Could Be Done

"Precisely," answered Hamilton. "Sell the stock, sell the cars to the railroads, sell part of the cars to the railroads, all of the outstanding Pullman stock, or by floating stock on the market."

Earlier Hamilton had told the court: "I think they [Pullman] should have full latitude to dispose of the business in any way they care."

Judge Biggs then said: "In other words to say in effect at least, this is your proposition, 'You may sell in any way you see fit.'"

"That is right," answered the government counsel, "at any price."

Since that hearing the Pullman interests and the railroads have agreed on a plan under which the railroads would take over the service company and Pullman has asked court approval of the proposal. The court will rule on this and other proposals Monday.

May Open Case Again

If the court is guided by the government recommendations the entire matter may be thrown open again. In its comments to the court on the Otis bid the government attorneys noted "several advantages." It is the only bid that guarantees "continuation of the sleeping car pool," said the brief. It also promises greater improvement in sleeping car facilities, it said. The bid of Glore Forgan & Co. of Chicago was described as not a firm offer and too vague. The bid of Standard Steel Spring company was said to be "not in harmony with the court's findings that the pool of sleeping cars is economically desirable."

2 MORE MAY ENTER CASE

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 7 (AP)—Trustees of the Missouri-Pacific and St. Louis-San Francisco railroads have filed petitions in federal court asking advice on entering into an agreement with other railroads to purchase 75 million dollars of Pullman company stock.

Total cost of the Frisco's obligation, based on proportionate use of Pullman cars, would be $448,074, and that of the Missouri-Pacific approximately 1 million. Federal Judge George H. Moore set Dec. 20 for hearing on the petitions.

Diesel Power Gets Trial in Lake Shipping

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Diesel-electric propulsion equipment similar in operation to that of railroad locomotives will be tested in Great Lakes shipping, the Inland Steel company disclosed yesterday. Its ore carrier, the E. J. Block, will have its steam equipment replaced by diesel-electric engines during the winter lay-up.

Just as the first diesel-electric locomotives were pioneers whose performance was under the scrutiny of all the railroads, so the E. J. Block next spring will be observed as a major experiment in lake shipping, Inland officials said. Some naval craft and other ocean ships have diesel-electric drives.

Craft Will Be All-Electric

The E. J. Block, built in 1908, will be reëquipped from stem to stern except for the hull. When it emerges from the yards of the American Ship Building company at Lorain, O., it will be an "all-electric" craft. All auxiliary steam power equipment on the ship will be replaced by electric, with diesel powered generators used.

Inland also is contemplating equipment of the vessel with radar as an important safety factor in hazardous navigation during stormy and foggy weather.

The new power plant will consist of two 1,000 horse power engines built by the General Motors corporation diesel division. They will drive generators supplying power to two main propulsion motors, which in turn will be geared to the drive shaft. This will be a radical departure from the direct diesel drive in ships. The Ford Motor company has two ore carriers of this type.

Gain in Maneuverability

Among the advantages sought thru the new equipment is greatly improved maneuverability. It is said that the Block's course may be almost instantaneously reversed from full speed ahead to full speed astern, and that the motors can be driven at any desired speed in either direction. Further, the propelling plant will be under direct control from the bridge.

Electric equipment to be installed in the vessel includes a new hydraulic steering gear, with electric and telemotor control, new windlasses forward and aft and deck machinery.

In rebuilding the 532 foot ship a new forecastle will be installed, providing the crew most modern quarters. The forward quarters will be rearranged and numerous other improvements made.

Inland officials said they could not predict operating costs with the new type of propulsion, that being one point which will determine whether other craft will be similarly equipped.

SALES OF SEARS, WALGREEN SET NOVEMBER PEAK

Both Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Walgreen company yesterday reported November sales substantially exceeding any previous November on record. Montgomery Ward & Co. also reported a gain, but no record.

Sears' sales rose 8½ per cent to $119,039,753 from a year earlier. The all-time record was $119,822,908 set last December. Sales in the first 10 months of its fiscal year, begun Feb. 1, rose 3.3 per cent to $848,469,101.

Walgreen sales increased 9.9 per cent to $10,511,040 in November, and decreased 0.1 per cent to $106,640,224 in the first 11 months of 1945. Ward November sales rose 3 per cent to $77,012,615, and 10 month's sales increased 5 per cent to $568,447,497.

Butler Brothers reported consolidated November sales were $11,508,278, up 12.65 per cent. Eleven months' volume was $110,258,236, up 1.89 per cent.

RYE LEADS GRAIN PRICE ADVANCE IN LIGHT TRADE

Grain futures prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Rye led the upturn with gains of ⅝ to 1¾ cents a bushel. Trade in wheat was light and the close was unchanged to ½ higher. Corn was unchanged at ceiling prices. Oats were active and gained ⅛ to ⅞ and barley rose ⅝ on May, the only active future.

Rye traders were cautious pending outcome of a hearing of the senate agriculture committee on the recently announced rye ceiling of $1.42 a bushel, Chicago basis on the 1946 crop.

December Egg Futures Reach Six Months' Peak

December egg futures rose 1.05 cents a dozen to their highest price since June 14 at one time on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, but closed up 0.9 cent at 42.65 cents. Heavy demand resulted from reports that the army would accept offerings of fresh shell eggs thru Dec. 24 and that this source was absorbing most marketings of top grade eggs and about 50 per cent of medium grade.

CITRUS FRUIT PRICES

Week's price range as quoted by the department of agriculture is as follows: Oranges, st. sales, box, Cal., $3.75@6.75; Fla., $4.00@5.25; Texas, $4.25@4.50; auctions, Cal., $2.30@8.10; Fla., $2.70@4.60; Ariz., $2.05@6.80; Tex., $1.75@4.95. TRUMAN BACKS PRICE CURBS ON HOME BUILDING

Materials Priority System Planned

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—President Truman said today some sort of control over real estate prices is required to prevent inflation. He told his news conference the administration shortly would announce a plan to reëstablish a priorities system on building materials.

The purpose of the priorities would be to channel supplies of lumber and other materials to home construction, said Mr. Truman.

The President said price control on real estate seemed to be needed especially for small residential building. No definite program had been worked out on this, he said.

Snyder Turned Down Plea

A few weeks ago Reconversion Director Snyder turned down a request of several government agencies that the administration ask congress for authority to fix price ceilings on housing. Snyder also told a meeting of construction industry representatives that the administration had no intention at that time of asking congress for such authority.

Since then Rep. Patman [D., Tex.] has introduced a bill which would create a housing director with authority to fix price ceilings in any area where they are ruled necessary.

The President said he had hoped to announce the priorities program today, but that it was not completed. The objective is to see that building materials available are used principally for residences, he said.

Priorities on building supplies were revoked shortly after the war. They could be restored under the second war powers act.

Used for Commerical Building

In advocating that they be restored government housing officials have said that virtually all materials and construction labor have been going to commercial and industrial building.

The new program, drafted by the office of war mobilization and reconversion, would not prohibit use of materials for commercial and industrial projects, but it would permit such construction only after home building needs had been met.

Another part of the plan is a special preference rating for veterans who wish to build homes, it was understood.

The program may restrict the use of priorities to firms and individuals building low and moderately priced homes. One official said the top sales price may be the $8,000 ceiling which was in effect in the war for all new houses.

Housing officials said the home construction industry has taken a leading role in urging restoration of the priorities system.

STUDEBAKER'S ORDER CLAIMS QUICKLY CLOSED

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 7 (AP)—Studebaker corporation's pre-termination program was credited today with making possible settlement 105 days after V-J day of all claims involved in 110 million dollars' worth of terminated government military truck contracts held by the company. The settlement included 445 claims from 367 subcontractors.

"We estimate that at least two months' time was saved in accomplishing the settlement because of the pre-termination agreement," said Courtney Johnson, assistant to Studebaker's board chairman.

The program was developed in coöperation with the Chicago ordnance district before the war ended.

AIM FOR 10,000 MORE BEDS FOR CANCER VICTIMS

Society Head Stresses Better Hospital Care

A plea that cancer hospitals should not be permitted to become mere "morphine institutions" for dying cases was made yesterday by Dr. Frank E. Adair of New York City, president of the American Cancer society, in addressing a 26 state conference being attended by 100 representatives of the organization's field army in the Continental hotel.

Pointing out that 165,000 persons die yearly of the malignant growth, Dr. Adair said that hospitals in the United States need 10,000 more beds to care for victims of the disease. The society, he added, will aim toward increasing the number of beds from 26 to 40 per cent in institutions having 100 beds or more.

Humane Care Stressed

In stressing the necessity for "better, more humane care of the terminal cancer case" in this country, the speaker declared that even in small communities, in county hospitals, and alms houses, the dying cancer patient should receive the care required to ease his pain and suffering.

He emphasized the important role played by the general medical practitioner in making an early diagnosis of cancer and proposed that the society embark on a program of education by motion pictures and planned refresher courses in cancer for the family doctor.

Early Diagnosis Important

"Success in treatment," he declared, "depends upon that early diagnosis, and the general practitioner is the man on whom we must rely."

While many cancer patients die in hospitals from what to date has been an incurable disease, many others die without realizing they suffer from cancer, Dr. Adair said.

He asked for more clinical research in the various states and urged the field army to establish cancer information centers, distribute loan cabinets that contain surgical dressings and other equipment, and promote the program for cancer nursing aids.

Norman Winters, public relations director for the society, said latest figures disclose that nearly 2½ times as many children from five to 20 die of cancer yearly in the United States as die of infantile paralysis.

CITY TO ACQUIRE AIRPORT SITE IN 3 MONTHS: KELLY

The city's initial steps in acquiring the 1,400 acre Douglas airport thru condemnation proceedings are expected to be taken within the next three months, Mayor Kelly announced yesterday. Contracts for runways and other construction probably will follow within a year.

The army, which now owns the site, is willing to dispose of all but 200 acres of the tract, the mayor said. To that portion will be moved the buildings that were used by the Doungias Aircraft company during the war and that will be [illegible] by the army air force as machine shops.

Terminal on Site of Buildings

A city owned terminal building is expected to be erected on the site now occupied by the Douglas buildings. The mayor said that an agreement will be sought to determine whether the expense of moving the present buildings to the site selected by the army will be borne by the city of the federal government. The city, he said, has no use for the buildings.

Mayor Kelly's announcement followed a conference with Public Works Commissioner Hewitt upon the latter's return from Washington, D. C, where he consulted with officials of the army and the surplus property division. Hewitt said that the surplus property division expects to submit a report fixing the value of the tract within the next two weeks.

Favor Permits for Two Lines

The council finance committee yesterday voted to recommend approval of an application by the Pennsylvania Centrail Air Lines and the Delta Air Lines to construct a temporary terminal building at Chicago airport. Pennsylvania Central is eager to increase its flight activities by Dec. 15, Hewitt told the committee, and Delta officials want to inaugurate regular Chicago-Miami flights.

John A. Casey, supervisor of operations at the port, said that tricolored lights will be installed on all 18 runways to provide, with radio, a dual system of control for planes.

Lights to Make Flying Safer

The lights, red, green, and blue, will be mounted on steel standards to be set in concrete on each runway. They will be operated from a control tower in conjunction with radio controls.

Casey estimated that a year will be required to install the new control system. It will make flying much safer, he said. The installation will be the first of its type in the country, Casey added.

13% CUT IN GAS BILLS FORECAST ON NORTH SHORE

The 29,000 customers of the North Shore Gas company, operating in the towns from Winnetka to the Wisconsin line, are expected to get a 13 per cent lowering of their bills if the company is able to supply natural gas to the territory. If North Shore has to continue serving with manufactured gas, the customers may have to stand a 20 per cent increase in rates.

These forecasts were made yesterday at an Illinois commerce commission hearing by A. W. Conover, president of the company, which is asking the rate lowering as soon as the natural gas can be supplied. George A. Curran and Daniel Roberts, commission examiners, indicated they would recommend the cut in rates.

The federal power commisson has been asked by the Natural [illegible] Pipeline Company of America to allow it to sell to North Shore, and if the commission looks favorably on the proposal, natural gas may be flowing into the north suburbs' mains in six or eight months, Conover said.

CHIMES RING IN STATE ST. YULE CAROLS MONDAY

Christmas chimes will ring out in State st. at noon Monday and will be heard each week day from noon to 8 p. m. Other instrumental music will be heard with the chimes in the familiar Christmas carols. The music is carried over a loudspeaker system which has 80 outlets between Lake and Congress sts. Interspersed with the music will be a reminder from the state street council that it suggests the purchase of Victory bonds as Christmas gifts.
